

FRIDAY 18 JULY 1997

SUZANNE MOOR VERSACE'S

TABLOID

SOARING HOUSE

OFFER PAGE 27 FREE: ENJOY A THAI FOOD DISH UP TO THE VALUE OF £8

Mir, a disaster movie in the making

and Charles Arthur Science Editor

e in the company

The three astronauts on board the holed Mir space station were ready to abandon ship last night as they struggled to restore power to its gyroscopes, to try to prevent it from spinning out of con-trol and crashing to Earth.

However, Russian mission control denied media suggestions that the astronauts might have to blast off at 11am BST today if they cannot get power. They insisted that there is enough bottled oxygen for five more days, and that the temperature will remain high enough to be tolerable for another two. If Mir is abandoned, and falls out of orbit, the results could be catastrophchunks of the station could survive the re-entry into the atmosphere, and come crashing to the ground.

Mir's crew, including British-born Michael Foale, were forced yesterday morning to retreat by flashlight into the Sovice escape capsule after one of them - Russian mission control would not say which - accidentally pulled out a data cable to one of the main

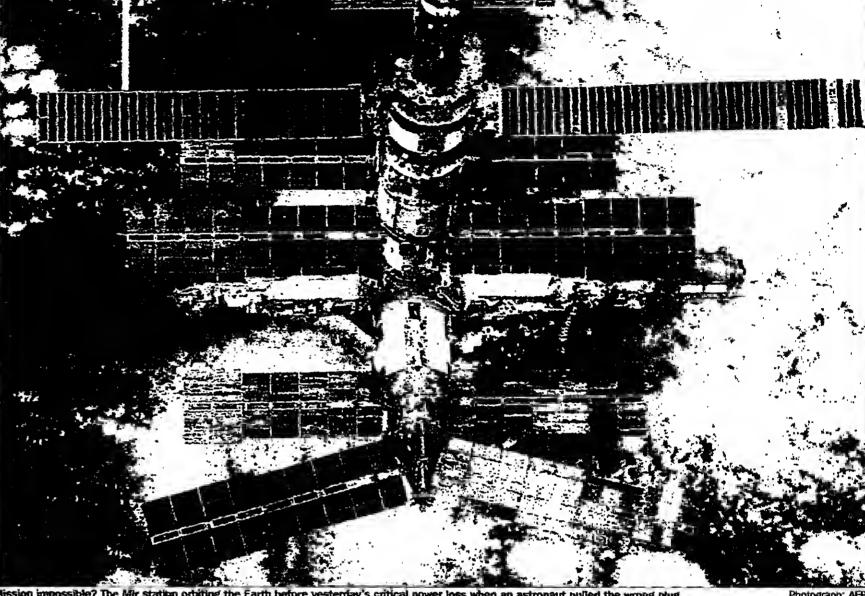

That led to almost complete power loss, leaving the crew in darkness, without oxygen generators and unable to stop the 70-tonne spacecraft spinning chaotically so that its solar panels could not gather power from the Sun.

The crew is already increasingly exbausted, the result of three weeks living in a spacecraft which has lost more than a third of its power, ever since a mistake while practising docking maneouvres caused a crash on 25 June that holed one of the six modules.

As the crisis broke, the tension among Russian ground controllers, who have been battling with a new problem every other day, was visible. One was heard barking instructions to the commander into a microphone: "Shut It down! Shut it Down!"

The cosmonauts did so, plunging Mir into darkness for half of its 90-minute orbits - the period when it is out of view of the Sun. "This is a kindergarten," ian Mission Control director, after ending one radio conversation with Mir's crew. Earlier he was heard demanding: "Have you switched everything off? Switch everything off on the left

By yesterday evening, officials were calmer and more confident. Mr Solovyov said Mir's orientation towards the Sun would he restored this morning and the gyrodines system, which keeps the station in the best position to accumulate energy, would be re-stored tomorrow. "We are not plan-

But the crisis, the latest in a catalogue of blunders and breakdowns, had made its impact. New question marks now hang over the future of Mir, a station that was designed to last for five years hut has from a tour on Mir. once told an interviewer there are two words that now operated for 11 - not least because Russia is desperate for the US dollars that it receives for working alongside Nasa. The American astronaut, Jerry Linenger, who recently returned ning to return the crew, we are plan- a cosmonaut dreads: fire and de- Mir to lose almost half its power. in the space walk. While he was pre- think they are in serious danger ... months. Mir has had both.

In February, there was a serious fire on board in which one of the escape routes was blocked by molten metal. And on 25 June, the Spektr scientific module - where Mr Foale had his living quarters and laboratory - had to be hastily sealed off after a cargo drone bumped into it, punching a hole in a wall and causing the air to rush out. In the ensuing scramble, power cables running from solar arrays in the module were disconnected, causing week. As plans were being drawn up for a sortic into the dark, eramped Spektr to find and recon-nect the cahles. Mir's commander. Vasily Tsibliyev, began to complain of an irregular heart beat. This was not the first sign that tension was beginning to take its toll; officials at his Mission Control revealed he had been repeatedly complaining about overwork and tiredness.

A committee of specialists in Moscow ruled that he had arrhythmia and could not participate tronauts should abandon ship. "I switched to whether Mr Foale, a 40year-old astrophysicist born in Lincolnshire, would take his place. Nasa yesterday said he could train for the mission, although it has yet

While both Nasa and Moscow wonder what to do next, their critics are mustering. Professor Andre Balogh, an expert in space technology at Imperial College, London, yesterday declared that the Mir as-to give him clearance. It is planned would give the order to evacuate. What is happening now is the culmination of two or three weeks' of problems. The impression I get is that it is very serious. It is like a disaster movie, but in real life ... it will almost certainly go out of control if it is abandoned" "It's hig enough, there are pieces that will survive re-entry, the equivalent of two or three Skylabs | The US space station which crashed into

Australia in 1980]". Catalogue of errors, page 14

Internet grinds to a costly halt

Charles Arthur Science Editor

The information superhighway turned into the information bridleway yesterday, as the after-effects of a hacking incident last week caused the network in the United States to slow almost to a crawl.

The incident was the worst crash to affect the network since 1988, hut affected far more people because of the Internet's growth since then. Millions of Americans found that, as far as the computers which operate the network were concerned, they had ceased to exist. And aithough the problem had begun to be cleared up by midday yesterday, the repercussions may be lasting.

volved the essential "root servers" which automatically look up millions of Internet addresses every day and convert them into machine code. Anyone trying to access a machine whose Internet address ended in .com" - the default for any American company - or "net the default for companies offering Internet access - found their browsers and e-mail stalled. Search engines, used to look for data amidst the gigantic World Wide Web, were particularly affected. Without heing able to use them to search for data, much of the information on the Internet became as useless as a jumbled dictionary. Blame at first fell on Eugene

Kashpureff, the operator of an

Washington state. Last week be altered the software on the root servers belonging to Network Solutions, a privately held company based in Boston. which allocates commercial Internet names (such as "abc.com"). When users tried to access Network Solutions' systems, they would be direct-ed to Alternic's page.

But though Network Solutions said yesterday that it had solved that problem, British Internet companies said that in doing so, the company may have led to yesterday's slow-down. "I think that in rebooting their systems they screwed up," said Instin Keeney, technical director of Cerbernet, a gested that Network Solutions

Internet company called Alternet service provider.

UK Internet service provider.

The "root servers" are essential to the Internet. They perform the same process as a directory enquiries service, but are far more essential because there are far too many machines on the Internet for any single machine to be able to list

> Instead, when a user enters the name of a Weh site - such as "independent co.uk" - another computer analyses the name, starting at the back. The root server would identify that address as being in the UK, and belonging to a company. It would then direct the enquiry to a "name server" dealing with UK companies.

But yesterday it was sug-had created a bug in its own sys tems so that seven of its eight root servers were flawed. Only two other root servers, both belonging to the US military, were still working yesterday af-

Mr Kashpurell and his company, Alternic, could not be contacted yesterday: the phone had been cut off. He, however, has been a long-standing advocate of an expansion of the Internet's naming scheme so that ".com" could be replaced by a virtual infinity of names such as ".newspapers", ".sport" and so on. The US recently forced through such a move, expanding the number of possible "domains", against the wishes of European companies. It may now decide that it was premature.

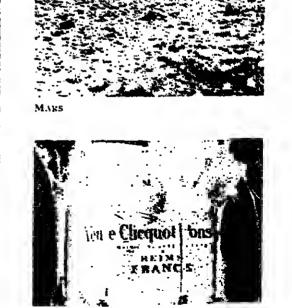

Blair's campaign A secret campaign to soften up public opinion over the relationship between Princess Charles and his mistress Camilla Parker Bowles is gaining momentum and could lead to a semi-public appearance by the couple in September. Page 3 Murder freezer style

A middle-aged California woman was to appear in court yesterday charged with killing her sister, storing the dismembered body in a freezer, and successfully impersonating the older woman for at least two

The Broadsheet Business & City . .22-26 Comment . . . . . . . 19-21 Cryptic crossword . . .32 Foreign news . . . . 13-17 Gazette ......18 Home news . . . . . . 2-12 Leading articles . . . . . 19 Letters . . . . . . . . . . . . 19 Obituaries ......18 Sport .......27-32 CIOJBAT BHT Architecture ......6,7 Arts reviews ......19 Classical music ...16-18 Concise crossword . .22 Culture .........2,3 Games ......22 Rock .....8-14

Value Concurse Gord Cur Posts Find Combras Page COALS WITE 1-11 August III - Sit Angust EDINGS BUILDING A LINE OF FIGUR VALUE TROUBLE LINE'S 11-14 September Stagmen Borst Treas, Stamponto 19 September 14-71 Separation BRITISH MINTLEY LINE La Fratting Mrs Cit of Streets, Gallet Militial

Veuve Clicquot CHAMPAGNE OF THE SEASON

Nineties fathers grow more caring

Glenda Cooper Social Affairs Correspondent

The popular image of absent fathers abandoning their children is contradicted by a new report which says nearly threequarters remain in contact, and half see their offspring at least once a week.

The report, from the Family Policy Studies Centre. notes that modern fathers are increasingly taking the emotional side of child-rearing as seriously as the economic responsibility.

It found that a typical father in the 1990s tended to be in his 30s before he had children, lived with his biological children and was married. He was still more likely to be the main breadwinner but was spending more time on caring for his chil-

In fact, both fathers and mothers spend more time caring for their children than 30 years ago. While mothers still spent more time with their children, the time spent by fathers increased fourfold between 1961-1995. According to the National Childhood Development Survey, 45 per cent of mothers and 50 per cent of fathers said childcare was shared equally. When both partners worked full time, nearly seven out of 10 mothers and fathers said care was shared equally. Children and fathers watched TV together, talked as well as indulging in play and sports, as well as just "doing nothing".

Despite that, fathers remained the sole or main breadwinner in the vast majority of families, and the 45-hour average full-time week worked by British men is the longest in Eu-

Children and fathers watched TV together

as well as indulging in play and sports

Indeed, fathers of children under 11 spend even longer at work - an average of 48 bours a week, and working unsocial bours - evenings, nights and weekends - has become commonplace for many dads.

In line with changing patterns of fertility amongst women, men are also waiting longer before they become fathers. Nearly six out of 10 men in their late 20s are still childless, and nearly one in three men in their late 30s bave never fathered a child. More than SO per cent of fathers live with their biological children and seven out of 10 are doing so within their first family.

And while it has been feared that family breakdown leads to many children losing contact with the absent parent - usually the father - the report says that while one in six fathers lived apart from some or all of their children, seven in 10 had contact and about balf saw their children every week.

Some fathers said that they spent more time with their children after the break-up, said Ceridwen Roberts, director of the Family Policy Studies Centre: "Fathers put in more time at considerable expense to themselves, both emotional and financial. Sometimes there was more fathering after divorce, because after divorce they spent more time with the child on their own."

The report's author, Louie Burghes, said: "This report starts to fill some glaring gaps in knowledge and understanding - for example, we did not know until now just how many men were fathers and al what ages they had children.

Even so, there is more to be learned to remedy the marginalisation of fatherhood in policy making and bring greater coherence to policies affecting families. Ms Roberts added: "The debate about fatherhood and fathering must not be confined to politicians, journalists and women. It is time for more men to speak up about the sort of fathers they would like to be and what needs to be changed." Fathers and Futherhood in Britain is published by the Family Police Studies Centre, 231 Baker Street, London NW1 6XE. £11.45 (inc P&P).

Man arrested after tip-off on Russell killings

A man was being questioned by police last night in connection with the killing of Lin and Megan Russell, following a tip-off from a member of the public.

Police arrested the man, in his thirties and from the Medway area of Kent, yesterday morning and are questioning him at a secret location. It is understood that the man was oot a previous police suspect and that he was arrested after a tip-off which followed widespread publicity at the anniversary of the double killing. Lin. 45, and her daughter Megan, six, were bludgeoned to death as they walked along a bridleway near their home at Chillenden, near Canterbury, oo 9 July last year. Megan's sister Josie, now 10, was left for dead after the hammer attack but has recovered, recently regaining her powers of speech.

A DNA sample from the new suspect, he is only the second man to be arrested, is almost certain to be compared with a genetic profile obtained from a hair found at the murder scene. More than 700 people contacted the Kent incident room following a reconstruction of the murders and fresh appeals by police.

Jason Bennett

Dates set for devolution polls

The battle for the political futures of Scotland and Wales was joined yesterday with the announcement of the dates for the devolution referendums

The Scottish vote will be held oo 11 September – the 700th anniversary of William Wallace's victory over the English at Stirling Bridge. The Welsh referendum will be a week later on 18 September. Michael Ancram, the Tory Constitutional spokesman, immediately criticised the choice of dates. "What has taken the Labour Party 18 years to work out, they are expecting the Scottish people to work out in under two months," he said. The Government suffered an unexpected defeat in the Lords two weeks ago when peers voted to hold the referendums oo the same day. But that defeat is expected to #### be overturned when the Bill comes back to the Commons Sting hits high note with £20m deal

1

Wat

The

ture:

the 1

 $\mathbf{pam}$

orig ago. line Mai

T Phil

Eun and fort:

into kno old-

peop

Sting, the singer, yesterday signed a £20m publishing deal, thought to be ooe of the biggest contracts involving a British popartist. The former Police vocalist, oow a solo artist, signed up to EMI Music Publishing for his entire back catalogue and all current and future work around the world. It is the first time the star, whose 1983 hit song "Every Breath You Take" forms the hasis of the recent number one single by Puff Daddy, has signed a worldwide deal.

Wreck gives up its secrets

Fourteen historic cannoo have been recovered from a wreck by treasure hunters hoping to raise gold bullion worth up to £50m, it emerged yesterday. Three of the two-ton weapons have so far been raised from the sea on to a diving rig, and the salvors believe there could be up to 50 of the weapons on the wreck of the two-masted, square-rigged Royal Mail packet ship Hanover, which sank in a storm in 1763 near Perranporth, Cornwall, en route from Portugal to Falmouth. The ship was believed to be carrying gold coins then worth £60,000. Colin Martin. 35, who conducted a 10-year hunt for the wreck, is leading the salvage team.

Tragedy of the railway children

The number of children killed trespassing on the railways is set to soar this year, it was disclosed yesterday. In 1996, there were 19 railway deaths involving children under the age of 16. The toll for the first half of this year alone stands at 16. Railtrack, which spend £8m each year on fencing the railway, is warning millions of schoolchildreo not to use the tracks as a playground during the summer holidays. Warning letters have gone out to thousands of schools and leaflets are being distributed. Aidan Nelson, lineside safety director at Railtrack, said the chances of a train stopping in time to avoid hitting a youngster oo the tracks were "virtually nil".

Writer's murderer jailed for life

A robber who targeted and murdered a celebrated travel writer because he was gay was jailed for life at the Old Bailey yesterday.
Robert Tewdwr Moss, 34, was found bound and gagged in his flat, in Paddington, central Loodon, which had been ransacked. Two socks were stuffed in the author's mouth and he was left to die from suffocation. A word processor containing the final revision of his book, Cleopatra's Wedding Present travels in Syria, was stolen, along with eash and other items. Abdul Aziz, 21, a student from Paddington, had denied murder. After the jury's verdict, Judge Michael Coombe told him: "You are guilty of a horrific murder of a defenceless man. He was abused with great brutality."

Passports set to go digital

The latest digital printing techniques are to be employed in an effort to make the British passport forgery-proof, it was announced vesterday. From the end of next year, all new passports will carry a digitalised image of the holder's face and signature.

Announcing the decision, Mike O'Brien, the Home Office minister, said it would improve passport security. "The threat to the security of the passport ... is growing," he said. The work has been contracted out to two private companies. Siemens Business Services will collect and transmit the electronic data for the passports while the privatised Stationery Office will print them. Mr O'Brien said the contracts did not mean the Passport Agency was being privatised.

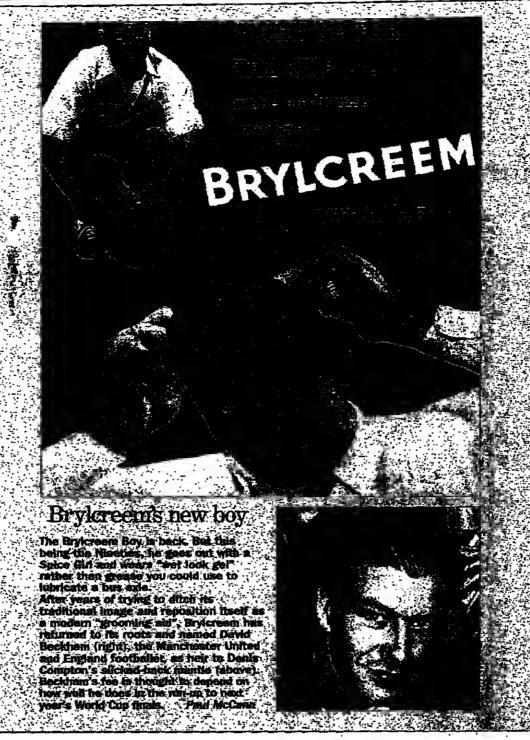

_			_
UF	INDE	END	ENT	ABROAD
ш	HIDEL	CHID	2311	THOME
_		_	_

Austra Schall	N7:000s FI5.00
BalgumBFr80	kah LA.500
CaranesPts300	Maders Esc325
Cyprus C£1.20	Nutta 43 cents
Denmark Dkr13	Markoy Nkr20
Instri Rep 45p	Portugal Esc325
FranceFr14	Spain Pis300
Germany DM4.5	Sweden, Skr21
Greece Dr550	Switzerland . Sh4.00
OBIL Swodnows	USA$3.00

Ar mail, 13 weeks Europe £110,76; Zoon 1 (Mattle East, America, Misca and Indial E184.08: Zone 2 (Far East and Australesia) £206,70. To order, please strict cheque parable to Johnsons Incom to 43 Millionous, London E14 91R or Injeptione 0171 BACK ISSUES

Historic Newscapers, telephone 01982 840370.

BBC art expert cheated out of £200,000 by his best friend

Judge Prosser said Peter Nahum had suffered the "blatant lying and devious actions" of dealer Alan Hobart, during the £6.7m sale of View on the Stour by Royal Holloway and Bedford New College in 1993.

The judge said the reason Mr Nahum was never paid his commission by Royal Holloway, part of the University of London, was because of e "veneer of decelt" by Mr Hobart, who represented the eventual buyer of the painting, Sir Graham Kirkham.

. Mr Nahum had an oral agreement with the college to find buyers for three paintings which were to be sold to raise money for restoration work. The first, a Tumer was sold independently for £11m. Mr Nahum then introduced Sir Graham to the college as a potential buyer of a Gainsborough, Peasants Going to Market, which had told the college this was "a completely separate deal", so there was no need to use Mr Nahum.

When Mr Nahum eventually discovered the buyer's identity, he invoiced the college for £196,812 commission, which it refused to pay, saying he had had nothing to do with the sale.

Mr Hobart had explained Sir Graham's change of mind by saying that he had seen the Constable again at the ate Gallery and because the light was better, had decided to buy it.

But Judge Prosser said he "had no hesitation" in believing Mr Natrum's version of events. "I had e strong feeling throughout that Mr Nahum was an honest man, e straight-dealing and honourable man. I would not rely on Mr Hobart's word for anything in this case." Jojo Moyes

Ulster grieves for teenager shot as she slept

The funeral this morning of Bernadette Martin (right), the 18year-old Catholic woman shot dead in bed, will re-awaken the widespread feeling of revulsion across Northern Ireland that greeted her murder.

Even by the recent grim standards of the Province, the coldblooded shooting of the teenager as she lay steeping at the home of her Protestant boythend has shocked many nationalists and

Although the Loyalist Volunteer Force was quick to deny responsibility for Tuesday's killing, police are almost certain it was e sectarian attack, possibly motivated by sheer hatred of a Catholic young woman with a Protestant boyfriend.

If the LVF'a denial is to be taken at face value, it could mean the shooting was carried out by a "freelance" loyalist or group of loy-

Two men, described as local, arrested in connection with the murder were still being questioned by police yesterday.

Today's service will be held at St Anthony's Catholic church in Bemadette's home town of Craigavon, Co Armagah, where she lived on one of the mixed es-rates in the area. A few miles away is the staunchly loyalist village of Aghalee, where the teenager had been staying with the family of her boyfrlend, Gordon Green.

The young couple had been up late with Gordon's sister, Wendy, and the three had fallen asleep fully clothed in an upstairs bedroom. As Bemadette and her boyfriend slept in each other's arms, a gunman entered the house through an unlocked back door, crept up the stairs and shot her in the head four times. She died in hospital 12 hours later. Bernadette and 19-year-old

Gordon had been together for nearly e year, after meeting at the food processing company where they both worked in nearby Lur-gan. Michael Streeter

Forbes splashes out on Churchill

The US publishing magnate Steve Forbes has splashed out on himself and his staff for his birthday. The multi-millionaire - 50 today has given his 1,000 staff the day off, and $50 each to spend.

And for himself? He paid £134,500 at auction vesterday for four letters written by Sir Winston Churchill to his younger brother

The letters, auctioned by Sothe by's in London, reveal Churchill's tondness for his brother whom he regarded as his dearest relation. They begin three weeks after the start of the First World War in 1914.

They also expose Churchill'a misplaced convictions about the success of the disastrous Dardenelies campaign, which resulted In the death of 28,200 British, Australian and New Zealand soldiers.

An early candidate in last year's US presidential elections, Forbes has a fortune of £500m and is an avid collector of Churchill memora

■ Two working manuscripts for begging letters written by Emma. Lady Hamilton, to the Prince Regent and the Prime Minister, Lord Liverpool, asking for money in return for her services to the nation. sold for £45,500 at Sotheby's yesterday. Alexandra Williams

briefing

Tories dominate quangos by margin of six to one

Six times more Conservatives than Labour supporters were put in charge of quangos last year, a report revealed yesterday.
Sir Leonard Peach, the independent Commissioner for Public Standards, said as he launched his annual report that he expected the balance to swing in Labour's favour now the party was in government. He also said he planned to warn ministers against allowing their political advisers to sit on appointments panels for

This year's report, the second published by Sir Leonard, is the first to analyse the number of political appointments made to

Although only 17 per cent of chairmen and 9 per cent of board members had been political candidates or had made public speeches in support of a particular party, most of those who had done so were Tories.

Of 216 chairmen and women appointed or reappointed last year to one of 8,000 public bodies between July 1996 and March 1997, 37 were politically active. Of those, 30 were Tories, five were Labour, ooe was Liberal Democrat and one Plaid Cymru. Nooe were identified as being ministerial oominations.

Only one in five of the chairmen's posts went to women, and none went to people from ethnic minorities. Fran Abrams

ARCHAEOLOGY

Stone coffin holds Roman remains

A stone coffin thought to contain the remains of a high-ranking Roman official has been unearthed on the site of a housing development in the West Country.

Archaeologists discovered the sarcophagus at Mangotsfield, near Bristol, while examining a former school playing field before the buildozers moved in. The find is regarded as one of the most important Roman discoveries in the region.

Experts from the Avon Archaeological Unit believe the skeleton, which has been nicknamed Titus, belongs to an important Roman official who was able to afford a lavish burial. They hope the find could lead them to the site of a nearby Roman villa.

The skeleton is believed to date to between 200 and 400AD, close to the fall of the Roman Empire.

It has been taken to the Bristol Industrial Museum where bone expert Dr Geraldine Barber will carry out tests, which could include DNA profiling.

TRANSPORT

Technology puts brakes on speeders

Speeding motorists could be slowed down by on-board computers which would automatically override the driver and apply the brakes. Trials could begin next year on the M4 motorway between London and South Wales.

Roadside beacons would send radio signals to the computers of assing cars, telling them the speed limit. If the driver is speeding, the computer would apply the brakes geothy but firmly. The motorist would also find that if he or she tried to exceed the speed limit, the accelerator would refuse to work.

Tests on drivers in simulators suggest that the loss of control does not anger them, according to the Institute for Transport. Studies at the University of Leeds, which carried out the

Another option is for each car to carry a digital map containing information on speed limits. Data on traffic jams, poor weather conditions and even crowding from people leaving a football match could be transmitted to each car and the speed limit reduced to suit the circumstances. Alison Goddard

MONEY

Plastic taking over from paper

Paying with plastic has become so popular that spending on credit and debit cards is likely to exceed £100bn this year. Only 10 years after they were first launched, payment by debit cards accounts for almost a lifth of retail spending can almost a litth of relail spending.

Figures from the Credit Card Research Group showed that card spending amounted to £46bn in the first half of the year and is growing at an annual rate of 19 per cent. These figures show credit and debit cards taking an ever larger slice," said spokesman

The acceptance of debit cards is now spreading particularly fast in repair shops, opticians and amongst tradespeople such as electricians and plumbers. In other areas their acceptance has started to reach a plateau.

EDUCATION

Extent of student debt revealed

A third of undergraduates are living in permanent debt, according to a researched published as it emerged that students are set to face £3.000 bills for tuition fees.

As ministerial sources indicated the Government will accept a recommendation to introduce tuition charges of around £1,000 a year, the new findings suggest that already only around a quarter of students have no experience of debt.

Of those whose bank accounts never shifted out of the red, the majority felt they were oot adequately prepared for the financial demands of university life, the study found.

Another third of undergraduates had at least some experience of debt while at university.

The survey, by the NatWest Bank, found that students in debt often could not identify what had pushed them into the red, and many did not realise the full extent of their debt until after graduation. The tuition fees would edd to average overdrafts of between £3,000 and £5,000 already experienced by students on leaving university. Lucy Ward

SUMMER SALE ENDS THIS SUNDAY

FURNITURE LIGHTING FABRICS CHINA GLASS GIFTS BEDLINEN KITCHENS

TOTTENHAH CRT RD WI . KINGS RD SW3 - TUNSGATE GUILDFORD

Secret strategy for Camilla to go public

Steve Boggan and Michael Streeter

A secret campaign to soften up public opinion over the relationship hetween Princess Charles and his mistress Camilla Parker Bowles is gaining momentum and could lead to a semi-public appearance by the couple in September.

see as their inevitable marriage.

It is thought that the couple may be planning to "go public" at a fund-raising event organised by Mrs Parker Bowles and her sister, Annabel Elliot, for the National Osteoporosis Society, in an antiques warehouse in Dorset

An example of the campaign Inspired by an inner coterie was seen yesterday with a sto-of his close friends, the subtle prupaganda counter-offensive is was seen yesterday with a sto-ry in the Daily Mail – more not-of this, he did nothing to rep-rimand those involved."

the Prime Minister's Private Office is preparing contingency plans on how to deal with a decision by the couple to marry.

"I understand there is a group of well-meaning people close to the Prince ... who may he testing the water," said Harold Brooks-Baker, puhcomparisons between her aplisher of Burke's Peerage.

The enthusiam of the unofficial lobbying group, known in some circles as the Camilla Group, is fuelled by what they see as an unfair and at times vicious campaign aimed at Mrs Parker Bowles's role in the hreak-up of the Prince of pearance and that of Diana. be counselling caution about file too quickly. For both groups the nightmare scenario is for the Prince and Mrs Parker Bowles to appear in public and be

The charity function at Gillingham, Dorset, on 13 Sep-Wales's marriage, and unfair suitable half-way house event. where the guests are coming by However, senior courtiers invitation only into a controlled and civil servants are thought to environment. The Ostconorosis Society said it could make no Prince's life in a ski-ing accident

booed or ridiculed was not attending.

Nicholas Soames, the former Tory minister, is understood to be a member of the Camilia group, and a source said that other leading lights include financier Bill Legge-Bourke, fatember, is thought to offer a ther of Tiggy, the Wales's former nanny, and Charles Palmer-Tomkinson, whose wife, Patti, was seriously injured in the avalanche that nearly took the close friends - some going back three generations - who always felt that Charles's marriage to Diana was a mis-match," said the source. "Several months ago, they decided enough was enough and he deserved some happiness, so they decided to last night that they were confident that the Prince of Wales Secretary, next Monday.

get together to see what they raising the couple's public pro- comment on who was, or who at Klosters in 1988. "These are would seek a marriage with Camilla. "It will have to be aster a decent interval, but it is looking pretty certain," said one former minister.

Prince Charles has held a series of meetings with ministers this week, including Gordon Brown, the Chancellor, to show support through the Prince's trust for the Government's Former Tory ministers said welfare to work plans. He will meet Robin Cook, the Foreign

The future is born from a womb made of plastic

Charles Arthur Science Editor

Japanese researchers have released the born prematurely are too immature to first pictures of an artificial womb which has been used to bring 17-week-old goat technique like this may well save a numfoetuses to "hirth" three weeks later.

The team at Tokyo's Juntendo University reckon that in 10 years' time, the same technology could be used to improve provide an alternative womb in the case of mothers hearing multiple foetuses.

that it could lead to the scenario described by Aldous Huxley in Brave New World, where millions of children are hred and the crucial stage in which the fertilised egg grows through the embryo stage.

Rather, it could eventually help premature babies, who are frequently unable to get enough oxygen into their blood bely. Similarly, in multiple pregnancies - maybe within 10 years we will have made such as that of Mandy Aliwood, who last the move from animal to humans." year lost eight foetuses - il would be possible to make space in the womh by re- British doctors, but the experiment could moving some of the developing embryos. not he carried out here because it would Lord Robert Winston, one of Britain's have breached ethical guidelines.

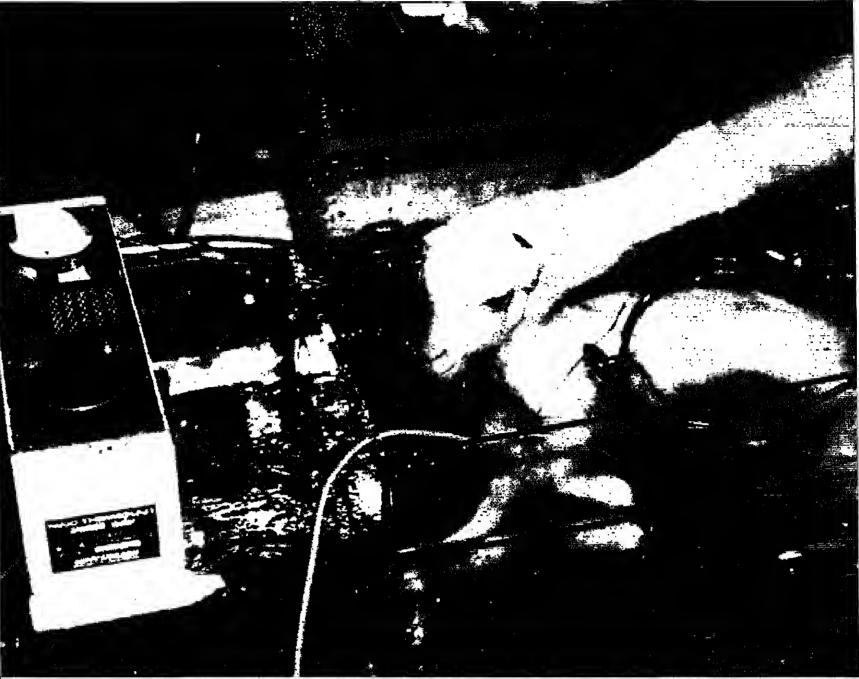

foremost fertility experts, from Hammersmith Hospital, London, said: "The current problem is that babies that are breathe and fend for themselves. A her of bahies that would otherwise die." The team, led by Yoshinori Kuwabara, professor of obstetrics at Juntendo Uniiversity, carried out a number of trials. the survival of premature babies, and to They removed a goat embryo from its mother 17 weeks into pregnancy and then placed it in an open-topped transparent The experiments have been in progress acrylic tank, filled with liquid at blood for six years, but the scientists have only temperature. This simulated the amninow decided to release more information. otic fluid in a real womh. The placenta Although some have expressed fears was replaced by a machine which pumped oxygen and nutrients into the embryo's blood.

A number of kids have been born from grow in sterile incubators, the team em- the tank. The scientists announced their phasised that their system cannot replace achievement today having kept one hand-reared goat, Kanna - meaning Flower - alive for six years.

Professor Kuwabara said: "This system should be used on behalf of the mother who cannot keep the foetus in her uterus. cause their lungs have not developed ful- If I have time and money for experiments,

The Japanese team was advised by Life-giver: A kid born from the artificial womb developed by Japanese scientists. The embryo was removed at 17 weeks and reared in the 'womb' Photograph: UTN

High-dose therapy gives cancer breakthrough

Jeremy Laurance Health Editor

Doctors have made a big advance in understanding cancer that has led to the first improvement in survival from one of the worst types of the disease for 20 years.

Researchers found that lung cancer, the commonest cause of cancer death in the Western world, which kills 40,000 people a year in Britain, grows faster than previously thought. Giving radiotherapy three times a day instead of the conventional regime of once a day. increases survival by 50 per cent.

By giving more frequent doses of radiation, the rapidly proliferating cancer cells are killed and do not have time to regenerate before the next dose.

Even a gap of 24 hours is enough to allow the lung cancer to spread. Researchers are testing the technique in other cancers to see if the same applies. Conventional radiotherapy for lung cancer involves 30 treatments given once a day from Monday to Friday over six weeks, with a total dose of 60

Gray (units of radiation). A trial of the new technique known as Chart (Continuous hyperfractionated accelerated radiotherapy) involved giving 36 treatments three times a day for 12 days, with no breaks at weekends and a total dose of 54 Gray. The two techniques were compared in 560 patients with non-small-cell lung cancer, the commonest kind, accounting for three-quarters of all cases of lung cancer, over five years.

The results, published in The Lancet, show that 29 per cent of those who had the new treatment survived two years, compared with 20 per cent of those who had the conventional treat-

Mahesh Parmar, of the Medical Research Council's Cancer Trials Office in Cambridge, which co-ordinated the study. said the technique could have been used decades ago hut no one had guessed the cancer grew so fast.

"That is what the results appear to be telling us."

A similar trial of the new technique in head and neck cancers had proved disappointing hut it was now being tried in cancer of the oesophagus (guilet), where researchers are more optimistic of securing good results. Studies are also being carried out with chemotherapy to shorten the period over which courses of treatment are given. Of 560 lung-cancer sufferers who started the trial. 444 have died. Ann Barrett, of the oncology centre at the Western Infirmary, Glasgow, and a member of the research team, said: "Survival is still low. It is not good enough, but it is an im-provement. This study has given people hope that it is worth going on trying new techniques even in a disease that is so resistant to treatment." Lesley Walker, of the Cancer Research Campaign, which part-funded the study, said: "This is the first major improvement in lung cancer survival offered by any form of radiotherapy in the

Forget novels, just write the movie

David Lister Arts News Editor

The day of the novel as draft film script has arrived, with publishers reading manuscripts as screenplays rather than as lit-

Travel agent Keri Beevis, 25, who writes horror stories in her bedroom in her spare time, has just received a £750,000 advance from a publisher for Three novels — the highest advance paid in Britain for an unpublished author.

But her agent, Peter Willis, last night gave an insight into the rationale behind a particular trend of 1990s big-money advances. He said: "This is not a big advance, because we are not really talking novels here. We are talking screenplays. And in Hollywood terms this isn't hig money." This was endorsed up by the man who has paid the advance, Emrys Bowen, publishdirector Huntingdon-based publishers Buckley-Bennion. "Keri writes very well for the screen," he said, "Her books are very much written in dialogue form.

Mr Bowen says he is close to scaling a deal with a Hollywood studio for £1.5m per celebrated British case until book. He is also securing a deal to publish Miss Beevis in America, while publishing her here for the first time in September. A screenplay-friendly novel leads to film rights, which in turn spur more sales of the book. The mutual trade-off between book and film has reached its apogee in the nineties with John Grisham. All his books become films. Some 400,000 copies of a special paperback version of The Pelican Brief were published simply to tie in with the film release. The most this week was that of first-time novelist Nicholas Evans, given The mood in the travel agents was remarkable, according to a £375,000 advance for The Horse Whisperer. Before the tale of a man who could talk to horses was even in the shops the film rights were sold to Robert

Keri Beevis: Horror addict

Redford's production company, Hollywood Pictures, for £1.9m Sales certainly profit from the publicity of a large advance Ruth Killick, spokeswoman for Dillons booksellers, said: There's no question that we sit up and take notice when there is a story of a first-time novelist getting a huge advance. It helps sales and we will generally stock the book. Film tic-ins are increasingly vital for hoost-

But the tale of Keri Beevis is still likely to be the exception rather than the rule. Susan Blishen, of the Publishers' Association, said yesterday: "This sort of thing is still uncommon. particularly with an unknown novelist and a small publisher. The sort of book that translates into a film is rare."

Meanwhile, Miss Beevis who was back at work at Grand UK Holidays in Norwich yesterday, was being made into a limited company by her agent.

He said: "It's like walking into One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest. They score Brownie points if they come up with the most macabre way to kill some

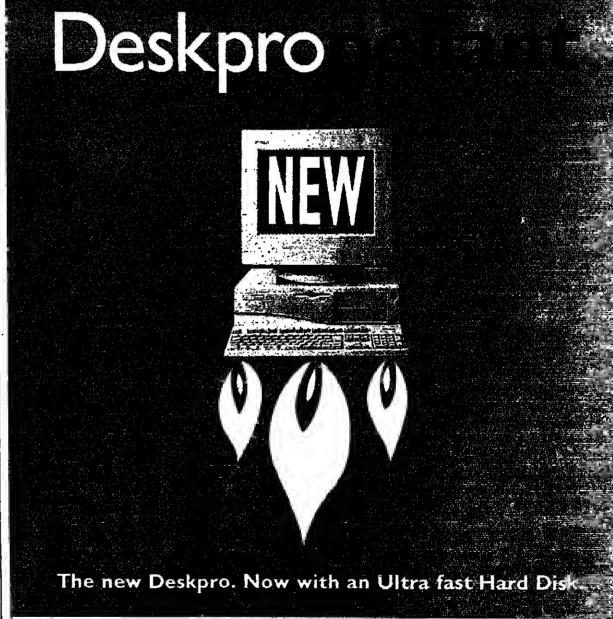

It would appear Miss Beevis, who writes under the pseudonym Keri Leigh, is not in

One of her books has a murder carried out with a drinking straw, though she will not reveal how before publication."

A hurrur-story fanatic who twice failed her English GCSE, and in fact only received one pass — in art, she wrote one of her horror trilogy in six weeks on the computer in the bedrnom of her parents' house where she lives, writing only at evenings and weekends.

A rather bewildered Miss Beevis yesterday claimed to be "an everyday girl who just happens to come up with these really sick and nasty things." "My teachers at school used to despair of me.

"They could not understand why I was not writing nice stories like Jane Austen or Emily

COMPAQ DESKPRO - THE UK'S No.1 OESKTOP PC* - NOW HAS EVEN MORE TO OFFER.

THE DESKPRO 4000, FOR EXAMPLE, COMES WITH A CHOICE OF Pentium* Processors with MMX™ TECHNOLOGY AND AN ULTRA ATA HARD DISK WHICH CAN TRANSFER TWICE AS

COMPAQ COSTS YOU LESS THAN CHEAPER COMPUTERS

MUCH DATA PER SECOND THAN REFORE. SO YOU GET MORE POWER, MORE SPEED, MORE FEATURES. AND MORE FOR YOUR MONEY.

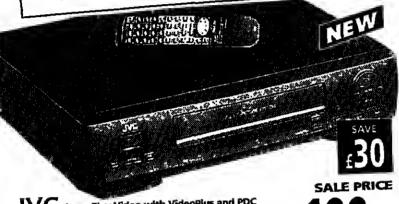

FOR MORE INFORMATION, VISIT US AT www.compaq.co.uk or Call us Today on

ELECTRICAL STORES

ON NEW TELEVISION AND VIDEO RANGES

PLUS

INTEREST FREE OPTION' ON ALL PRODUCTS OVER 400 WHEN PURCHASED WITH MASTERCARE COVERPLAN SERVICE AGREEMENT.

JVC Long Play Video with VideoPlus and PDC Auto set-up for easy Installation.
VideoPlus and PDC for easy, reliable prog
On-screen display.
Model HRI245. Was £229.99.

JVC 14" Fasters TV with Re

34cm visible screen size.

0n-screen display.

Fasterst for easy access to Teletest services.

Steep timer.
Model 14ET1.
Was £189.99.

Wat

Ther

tures

who

the f nam

origi ago. line. Maic and into knov

JVC Long Play Video with Video!

Auto set-up facility.

VideoPlus and POC for easy.

 59cm visible screen size
 Fastest for easy access to Teletest services.
 Digital sound processor. Rodel 2553/2.

JVC 4-Head NICAM Stereo Video with

II Long play increases recording time of tapies.

II CART Socket.

II Instant review feature.

Model HRIG30.

JVC

Sound

25" Dolby Pro-Logic TV with 3D-Phonic

JVC '28' Widescreen TV with 3D Phonic
Dolby Pro-Logic Surround Sound

CURRYS PRICE
66cm visible screen size. SALE PRICE

SAVE

17.1821NAS 3108WA

The ultimate in Cinema at Home

TOSHIBA

33" Dolby Pro-Logic Surround Sound TV with Fastext a 80cm visible screen

state

Cabinet stand with built-in ceritre' front-speaker.

Digital Surround

5 modes.

2 external speakers

to produce soperb Surround Sound.

SALE PRICE

Model 33570B. Was £1499:

SAVE

JVC 21" Dolby Pro-Logic TV with 3D-Phonic Sound S1cm visible screen size. Model 215X1, Was £499.99, Buty NOW PAY 6 HOONTHS LATER HURRY - WHILE STOCKS LAST

JVC

Panorama.

Surround Sound

■ 76cm visible screen size. ■ Multi-Format Home Cinema viewing. ■ Fastext for easy access to Teletext. ■ Cinema sound

■ Twin SCART sockets.

Model 32WX1. Was £1699.

32" Widescreen TV with

3D-Phonic Dolby Pro-Logic

without the need for extra speakers.

CURRYS PRICE

■ Various picture modes including

PHILIPS 29" NICAM Stereo TV with Fastext

■ 68cm visible screen size
■ Supplied with wooden tablinet.
■ Sub-woofer. ■ 2 SCART sockets. Model 29PT6773C. Was £1099. PHILIPS

14" Combined TV and Video ■ 34cm visible screen size ■ VideoPtus for easy no connecting wires. Model 14162.

SALE PRICE

PHILIPS Long Play Video with VideoPlas and PDC

Auto set-up for cavy installation.

VideoPlus and PDC to reasy, reliable recording.

Model VR165

SALE PRICE

£999

PHILIPS 14" Combined TV and Video

374cm visible
Streen size.

10 VideoPhas.
11 Teletaxt.
Model 14163.
Was (399,99, BUY NOW PAY 6 MORTHS LATER

Panasonic

CURRYS PRICE PANASONIC 25" NICAM Stereo TV with Fastext £479.99 ■ 59cm visible screen size.

■ Fastext for easy access to Teletext.

■ Two SCART sockets.

Model 25MD3.

PANASONIC 4-Head NICAM Stereo Video with VideoPlus and PDC VideoPius and PDC for easy, reliable program
 On-screen display.
 Auto set-up facility.
 Model NVHD6208.

PANASONIC 21" R PANASONIC 29" Dollay Pro-Legi.

TOSHIBA

TOSHIBA Long Play Video with Video Play and PDC

Auto set-up for rapy installation.

Gonscreen display.

DISTANT CREDIT

With Currys Premier

you can take advantage of any credit offer in-store. Ask for details.

SALE PRICE

TOSHIBA 28" NICAM Stareo TV with Rastext
#66cm visible
screen stre.
#50 £57999
Was £599.99. BUY NOW PAY 9 MONTHS LATTER

29" Dolby Pro-Logic Surround Sound TV with Fastext ■ 66cm visible screen size ■ Cabinet with built-in ■ Capinet with south in front centre speaker.

■ Digital Surround Sound processor with 5 modes.

Model 2857. Was £89935. Was £84935. Was £84935. Was £799.99. SONY 4-Head Super TriLogic NICAM Stereo Video with VideoPlus and PDC Full auto set-up for easy inst VideoPlus and PDC for easy,

SONY 25" NICAM Stares TV with Festext

39cm visible
screen size.
Fastext for easy

reliable programming. Model SLVE720. Was £399.99. NEW

Sound TV with Fastext

68cm visible screen size. ■ IQ picture facility.

Built-in sub-woofer for 3-D sound.

A Fastext for easy access to Teletext.

Includes detachable Surround Sound speaker.

Model KVZ9F3. Was £899.99.

SONY 25" NICAM Stereo TV with Festext 3. SECTI Visible Scrives size. SALE PRICE Was $649.99. SELY NOW PAY 9 RICHTHIS LATER Was 5699.99. ELASE I UZ Was 5679.99. Was 5649.99. BUY NOW PAY 9 MORTHS CATER

Find a lower price for the same product and offer, within 7 days of purchase and we'll match it. WE'LL NEVER

BE BEATEN

NEXT DAY DELIVERY

& INSTALLATION

7 DAYS A WEEK

PEACE OF MIND P EXCLUSIVE YEARS TO COME Up to 5 years expert service support when you buy a Mastercare Coverplan Service MODELS & Mastercare Coverplan Service Agreement.
FULS INTEREST RESE OFFICE WITH PURCHASED WITH ANY PRODUCT OVER $100.
Ask in-store for details.

FERAM Repairs 7 days a week (same day wherever Calls cost 50p per minute.

7 DAYS A WEEK

For most large items if you phone before 10am Monday to Friday and live within 10 miles of

DETALLATION

CURRY'S DIRECT

For direct, doorstep deliver Freephone 0500 304304 or fax 01442 888145

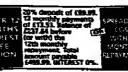

fax 01442 888145 (9am-5.30pm Mon-Sat, 10am-5pm Sun), Delivery charges from £3.25. Part of DSG Retall£td,

COMBINED DELIVERY AND On all free standing gas and electric cookers by CORGI registered engineers (exclude Northern Ireland and selecter BIGGER STORES

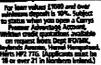

FOSSE PARK SOUTH - LEICESTER TROWBRIDGE . INVERNESS

MEADOWHALL - SHEFFIELD

WALL T

DI-STORE

WATCH OUT FOR OUR VOUCHER SPECIALS

JVC 29" Dolby Pro-Logic 3D-Phonic Surround Sound TV processor. Andel 295X2.

CURRYS PRICE

50 SALE PRICE

SONY 29" Dolby Pro-Logic Surround

NEW

oll

itstn

Insurer pays cost of e-mail rumours

Patricia Wynn Davies Legal Affairs Editor

The dangers of circulating unsubstantiated rumour via email were starkly demonstrated yesterday after the Norwich Union insurance giant was forced to pay out £450,000 in libel damages and costs.

The out-of-court settlement. thought to be unprecedented. in favour of the private medical insurers Western Provident Association could have implications for companies who are careless about the kind of information transmitted on their internal e-mail systems about competitors, clients, advisers or other commercial contacts.

There has already been an out-of-court settlement in an email case involving private individuals which has served to spotlight the risks of dissemisome forms of office gossip, through the electronic medium.

While it is the same law of libel that applies to e-mails as to paper messages - essentially, publication of defamatory material to another person without the plaintiff having to prove he suffered damage - the ease of e-mail communications and their sheer multiplicity can sig-nificantly magnify the libel risk. Once untrue or unprovable rumours on an organisation's internal e-mail spill out to or are accessed by the outside world. the potential damages will be that much greater.

Western Provident had hrought proceedings against Norwich Union Healthcare, part of the Norwich Union Life Insurance Company, after rumours began circulating in insurance circles in 1995.

David Engel, solicitor for Western Provideot, told Mr Jus- son-pen letter.

ť

 $\langle \cdot \rangle$

tice Popplewell at the High Court that the claims - that the company was insolvent, being investigated by the Department of Trade and Industry and unable to write new business - were disseminated by some Norwich Union staff via its internal e-mail system. Norwich Union now accepted there was no truth in any of the allegations.

David Sherborne, counsel for Norwich Union, said it regretted and apologised for the dissemination of the rumours. The company had made every effort to ensure that such "unacceptable practices" did not occur again and had undertaken not to repeat the allegations.

Julian Stainton, WPA's chief executive, said: "People regard electronic mail as a transient medium in that the message disappears into the ether. The re-ality is that everything you type and send is recorded almost for nating defamatory personal in-formation, which would include all time and is available to be reassembled at a later date by the written or spoken word." This novel libel risk is likely to give much food for thought in the husiness community. In an increasingly global economy, libel payouts through careless electronic communication could be payable in a number of different jurisdictions, de-pending on a country's laws.

Organisations might have sound reasons, for example, for issuing warnings or instructions to staff about undertaking certain types of transaction or doing business with certain organisations. But if these can be construed as libellous, the cash register will start ringing.

The moral of the tale appears to be that in the electronic age much more care will have to be taken - in businesses and homes than in the days of the oldfashiooed office memo or poi-

Fever Pitch stand saved for posterity

Louise Jury

An art deco football stand at the north London home of Arsenal was saved for posterity yesterday after Tony Banks, the soccer-mad sports and heritage minister, granted it listed status. The East Stand at Highbury stadium - a ground immor-talised in Arsenal supporter Nick Hornby's book Fever Pitch - follows Wembley and Fulham's Craven Cottage on to the protected list of football

But many fans breathed a sigh of relief when Mr Banks. a supporter of London rivals Chelsea, decided against English Heritage's recommendation to list the West Stand too.

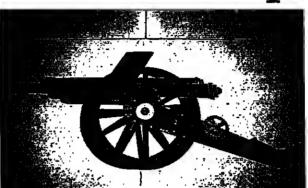

Dotog so would would have complicated Arseoal's planned expansioo and, it was feared, precipitated a move from the much-loved site. Any changes to a listed building have to he agreed with the local authority to ensure that the features are

The compromise was welcomed by Simon Inglis, author of The Football Grounds of Britain. He said both stands would have been listed in an ideal world, but saving the East Stand was logical and sensible.

"The West Stand is the older of the two and set the tone, but the stand itself is fairly rudimen-tary. If its demolition is the price that Arsenal pay for remaining at Highbury then I think, reluctantly, it's a price worth paying," be said.
"Highbury is one of the finest traditional football stadiums in the world and Arsenal have done a great deal to preserve that spirit. It really is the Lords of the football world. It is an institution."

A spokeswoman for Islington Council, to whose borough the stadium lies, said the club had

Badge of distinction: The Gunners' logo adorns the stand about possible expansioo. Listing the East Stand did not seriously affect the guidance it was drawing up on the feasibility of a planning application as the approached it earlier this year crux of any expansioo. If Mr Banks - whose duties ioclude making the final decision oo English Heritage's listing recommendations - had granted this listed status, it might have West Stand is regarded as the proved an insuperable problem for the club. But any development will still face opposition from residents whose homes might he affected. Councillors met last night to discuss a draft

Highbury is regularly packed to its 38,200 capacity. It is un-derstood that it would like to be able to take another 10,000. An Arsenal spokeswoman said the club had no formal plans. But she added: "You only have to look at the stand we put up at the north end to see we took great pains to fit it io with the art deco. We're proud of the way the stadium looks and are looking to enhance it."

An English Heritage spokeswoman said the two stands should be considered for listing together. But she said: "We recognise that the East Stand is the more orchitecturally distinguished of the two and we're re-ally glad it has been listed ..."

Court quashes teenage murder verdict

Patricia Wynn Davies

A teenager jailed for murdering a policeman when he was 100 yards away walked free yesterday after a "joint enterprise" murder conviction was overturned by the House of Lords. Philip English, now 19, had been convicted of stabbing Sergeant Bill Forth to death in Gateshead even though be had been chased away by police, was under arrest and in handcuffs. While the five law lords will give the reasons for the land-mark ruling at a later date, it is believed the case will set new parameters for the law of "joint enterprise", which saw Derck Bentley executed in 1953 for the murder of a policeman carried out by someone else. But while Bentley - whose family's posthu-mous bid to clear his name is with the Criminal Cases Review Commission - cried out "let him have it" to his accomplice. Philip English was not even in sight of

The fatal stabbing was carried out by Paul Weddle, then aged 25, after Sgt Forth was called to an incident an incident at the home of Weddle's former girlfriend. The court heard Weddle and Mr English, then a 15-year-old schoolboy, set about the sergeant with pieces of fencing. After Mr English ran off and was caught around the corner, Weddle produced a small knife and stabbed Sgt Forth to death. Mr English said at his trial in 1994 that he did not know Weddle had a knife and had never intended that Sgt Forth should suffer serious harm. He was convicted of murder on a 10-2 majority. The prosecution argued that even if he did run off, English remained a party to the agreement to the attack and was liable for what Weddle did.

The teenager's relieved stepmother, Mandy English, said: Thank God common sense has applied today."

But Sgt Forth's widow, Gill Merrin, said: "I feel that Bill has been let down by the British justice system. Adrian Clarke, Mr English's solicitor, called for a clarifica-it's where there's an extra 10% off

all sale prices

from thursday 17th july.

it's the habitat sale.

and it ends on sunday 20th july.

Now you can get your foreign currency and American Express Travellers Cheques at your local Lunn Poly Holiday Shop as well as all American Express locations throughout the UK. So now it's easier to buy the Travellers Cheques that are welcomed all over the world and currency for everywhere from Austria to Zimbabwe.

It couldn't be easier!

Exchange

Lunn Po The UK's No.1 Holiday Shop

Brown

picks at old Tory

Anthony Bevins Political Editor

Gordon Brown yesterday threw open the debate about the singie European currency with a strong attack on Conservative policies of dogma and prejudice, which he ridiculed as "the Tory ideas of a greater Guernsey

By picking at the Tory wounds over Europe, the Chancellor of the Exchequer was able to portray its leadership as anti-business - while embarrassing

moderate members of the party, who would endorse much of Mr Brown's argument for an open approach to the euro. Mr Brown said that the new line taken by William Hague, rejecting a single currency under his leadership, while calling for a referendum oo the Treaty of Amsterdam, represented a oew pend on the single market ...

Having rejected the negative faced was that of the single curthere are formidable obstacles

rency in the first wave."

rejected."

Kim Sengupta

The affairs of the Conservative Party may lately have come to resemble the Palace of Varieties, but few acts could ever top Kelvin at the Carltoo Club.

Kelvin Mackenzie, the legendary former editor of the Sun, who delivered the blue-collar vote to the Tories at successive elections, was appearing last night at the wateriog hole of high Toryism to tell the party "how they mismanaged media relations of the last election".

The Cariton was the venue of a Bow Group seminar oo how William Hague can win back the right-wing press. Sharing the platform with Mr

MacKenzie, managing direc-tor of Live TV, were John Sopel from the BBC, and communicatioos chiefs from Smith Square. The right-wing ideo-logue Michael Gove, the hiographer of Michael Portillo, was

Times have changed. Mr Mackenzie's former orgao loudly supported Blairism at the last election after Rupert Murdoch's seeming cooversion to New Labour, and officials at Conservative Central Office

Wat

Ther tures

origi

ago. lioe, Maic Tl

and forta

into

knov

Gutter pride: Kelvin MacKenzie arriving at the Carlton Club in London yesterday

now privately acknowledge that they had been out-manoeuvred and outgunned by Labour.

Mr Mackenzie set the theme for his analysis of the problem in an article appearing in the Spectator today. He recounts being present at the salieot moment when John Major "went completely off his trolley".

He recalls "It was an autumn morning and I had been summooed to Number 10. In a hizarre ritual, tabloid editors are ofteo invited to Downing Street to enjoy briefings by the Prime Minister. It normally boils down to him (or her) explaining in some detail why he is a genius and why his critics are dimwits."

Mr MacKenzie' soon realised that "this day was different". He said: "Suddenly, he began to rant against the press. The standards of journalism, he opined, were in the gutter. This rather pleased me, as I had always takeo some pride in being in the gutter. "Stories were untrue or unpleasant, or both, our esteemed leader maintained. Then he produced a page three of the Sun - which he had hidden under the table."

It was not that the Prime Minister found page-three topless girls offensive. Mr MacKenzie realised, but a story by the paper's political editor saying that the pressure of office was turning Mr Major's grey hair white.

Photograph: Peter Macdiarmid

"Mr Major said to me 'it's this kind of rubbish that gives the press a bad name. I'm sick of it, bloody sick of it. He then bowed his head, pointed his fin-ger at his hair and said: For God's sake, Kelvin, look at my hair: is there any white there?

"To my eternal shame, and despite looking at Mr Major's snowy thatch, I lied and indicated that the strain of being the Sun's political guru was clearly getting to our Trevor [Kavanagh, political editor]. It is easy to criticise my lack of resolve, but he was the Prime Minister and I was a tabloid tosspot. If it had been a scene from Yes, Prime Minister, it would have been hilarious. But it wasn't, and it was quite clear he had gone off his chump."

Mr MacKenzie decided that "It was also the moment. I believe, that he began losing the support of the press."
The Prime Minister was suffering from paranoia because be failed to realise that journalists were not extensions of the Number 10 press office, and also because he revealed that stories, and criticism, were getting to him.

Mr MacKenzie said: "So how can the Conservative Party reis slowly - very slowly."

wounds dustry would be affected whether or oot Britain joined the euro, and he pointed to the significant advantages of a single currency in a fully-developed single market - the elimination of exchange rate risk, more transparent pricing, a reduction of transaction costs, and lower long-term interest rates, which, in turn, would promote investment, growth and jobs. However, Mr Brown said a hard-headed assessment would be required of Britain's national economic interest.

That meant a judgement would have to be taken on the basis of certain tests: would membership improve long-term investment; what would be the impact oo financial services; would economic structures be compatible with the constraints of permanent membership; and would there be sufficient, inbuilt flexibility to take any strains?

"Today," he said, "The Con-servative Party are repeating the Labour mistakes of 1983. Then, Mr Brown said his "bottom line" was whether membership it was suggested by the CBI that would promote higher growth. Labour's policy of disengage-ment put 2.5 million jobs at risk. stability and a lasting increase in jobs. But he added: "Our con-That was when 44 per cent cern about the single currency of our exports went to EU has always been that Britain members. Now it is 58 per cent should only join if the economic of our trade, and, by the same conditions are right, oot on the logic, nearer 3.5 million jobs debasis of a timetable that has been set politically." "The idea that we could be-He said that "when" the time come a Hong Kong of Europe came to make a decision - the as a trading post or as a tax haven servicing major trading blocs - the Tory idea of a word "if" was not used - it would be reached in the British way, greater Guernsey - only needs a minute's consideration to be coolly, and the people would be consulted by referendum.

"To make the right decisioo for Britain," Mr Brown said, Tory stance, Mr Brown said that "we need an open and intelligeot debate. Uotil now, the the country required constructive engagement with Europe. debate oo our economic role in and the biggest challenge to be Europe, and especially Economic and Monetary Union, has beeo dominated by extreme views oo either side. Dogma The Chancellor recited the Treasury mantra, "that while competing to be heard above prejudice. This is not the way to nothing has been ruled out, protect and forward British

Donald Macintyre, page 21

INVESTOR ACCOUNT

BASE KATE HAS INCREASED

As GUARANTEED, WE'RE MATCHING IT

NEW RATES UP TO 7.05% GROSS P.A.

EFFECTIVE FROM 23,7.97

Call into your local branch or phone 0800 100 801 (QUOTING REFERENCE A5561/13)

Lines are open Monday to Friday 9am to 5pm and Saturday 9am to 1pm. To assert us in improving our service no may record at monitor telephone calls, 6,80% gross p.a. is psyable on balances of £200,000 m over mild 22 7 97 7 05 gross p. a. is parable on balances of £200,000 or over from $1.7.97. The minimum investment is £2,000, Rates may vary. Until 31, 12,97 if the average Base Rate of all tilk Clearing Bank to increased, the annual gross interest rate payable will be increased be no loss than that increase. See leaflet for full conditions. You may be able to register with us to reverse interest grows, otherwise it will be paid not of income tax at the prescribed rate. The Share Dealing Service has been arranged by Abber National pic with ShareLink, a member of the Lendon Stock Exchange and regulated to the Securities and Futures Authority. ABBEY NATIONAL PLC IS REGULATED BY THE PERSONAL INVESTMENT AUTHORITY FOR ITS SHARE DEALING SERVICE. Albert National and the Umbrella Couple sembol are trademarks of Abbert National ple, Abbert House, Baker Street, London, NW1 6XL, United Kingdom.

> For further information on investor 40, please complete and return this coupon to. Abbey National Direct, Investor 90, PO Box 422, Fourth Floor, 40 Linnenhall Street, Bellast BTZ 7AB.

Fury over new plans to restrict firearms

Crime Correspondent

The firearms lobby reacted with fury yesterday at the disclosure that the Government was preparing to consider new restrictions on the use of rifles, shot-gins and air weapons.

Shooting cothusiasts announced that they planned to hold a protest rally in London

as the end of September.

As The Independent reported yesterday, a fresh review of the firearms laws will be launched next year. The Home Office is likely to back a minimum 18 year age-limit for shotguns and tighter licensing the banning of most powerful rifles, and a li-censing or age restriction for ownership of air guns.

The issue is expected to be reopened after the legislation on handguns has been completed in Parliament and an estimated 200,000 revolvers have been handed in and destroyed.

The British Association for Shooting and Conservation, which has more than 114,000 members, said it would "fight proposals including tighter age restrictions for young people us-ing firearms and a licensing for air weapons".

Bill Harriman, head of fire-arms for the BASC, said: "These proposed restrictions are being justified by using alarmist tactics. The public should be reassured that there are already stringeof

"The Government should look at the real, but much more difficult, problem of the criminal use of firearms."

He argued that it was unnecessary to set an age limit on shotgun use - at present there is no age restriction and children as young as 12 use guns - because strict safety checks are already in place. An estimated 1,760 shotgun certificates have been issued to people aged under 17, he added.

"It is in the interest of safe ty that a young person should be properly taught at a relatively early age," he said. On the question of restricting rifle use, he argued that it the countryside. Mike Yardley, spokesman for the Sportsman's Association, which has 40,000 members, said yesterday that his organisation will be organising a protest meeting in Loodon. He said: We have decided this in the past few days - it appears there's political capital to be made out of further attacks against shooting sports. We want to show our opposition to this."

Since the Dunhlane massacre, there has been raised con-would harm the management of cern about the availability of all firearms and their control. There are 1,4 million licensed shotguns held in England and Wales, 200,000 licensed rifles and an estimated three million air weapous. In 1995, there were a record 7,549 offences caused with air guns, in which about a fifth resulted in injury. Most of the other cases involved vandalism. There were 943 crimes involving shotguns in 1995; in which 12 per ceot caused injury, and 50 offeoces involving rifles.

Pensions review raises spectre of cuts

Anthony Bevins Political Editor

An official review of pensions provision was set up yesterday by Harriet Harman, Secretary of State for Social Security, to explore the problems that persist despite annual public-private contributions worth £60bn. The review would cover "all aspects of the basic pension and its value and second pensions. including the State Earnings Re- den to be carried by individuals.

lated Pension [SERPS]; to build a sustainable consensus for the long-term future of pensions; and to publish the Government's proposals for further consultation in the first part of

Wth the State pensions bill now at £33.5hn, excluding benefits like income support, there is a natural suspicion that the un-spoken agenda is a search for savings - with more of the bur-

One of the challenges set by Ms Harman included the need for agreement on "where the responsibility for funding pensions should lie, and to establish the right balance between the public and private sectors."

in parallel work, the Goverament is developing propos-als on its manifesto plans for the retention of SERPS, and for the establishment of "a new framework of good-value second pensions schemes - 'stakeholder pensions' - to meet the needs of those on low or modest incomes or with changing patterns of em-ployment, and how new partnerships between the pensions industry, employers and employees might be developed".

Excessive charges and the poor value of existing personal pensions provision for the low-paid - especially women - has been a long-standing crusade, in opposition, of John Denham. the new pensions minister.

But if a successful "stakeholder pension" can be established it could provide a competitive incentive for existing pension providers to improve their service.

Ms Harman said yesterday: "The failure over the last two decades to develop an adequaic pensions strategy has re-sulted in widening inequalities among pensioners. Too many of our older citizens do not enjoy security in retirement."

Peter Lilley, the shadow Chancellor, dismissed the exercise, saving: "It's really an attempt to obscure the fact that they've just imposed a f5bn tax on pension funds, and a government which does that is clearly not serious about encouraging people to save and invest for the future." Stephen Webb, the Liberal Democrats' welfare spokesman in the Commons, said the yardstick had to be pensioner poverty. "Around one million pension-ers are currently missing out on the Income Support to which they are entitled." Professor Webb said. "Over half a billion pounds goes unclaimed every year. If this review is to achieve anything, Labour must find a way to get more money now to Britain's poorest pensioners."

Ms Harman said she wanted the review to address a series of "fundamental challenges". tt would be required to a response to demographic change; and a reflection of social and labour market change. with the chance for part-time workers, contract workers, wemen and the self-employed in build up better pensions. Ms Harman also wanted people to have a better financial education, so they could make more informed choices, and to narrow the gap between provi-

Secret talks plot changes for Commons

Anthony Bevins and Colin Brown

A protest about the secrecy surrounding a Government project to "modernise" the workings of the House of Commons was made yesterday, raising fears that ministers are seeking to take over more control. Richard Sbepherd, the Conservative MP for Aldridge-Brownhills, complained to the Leader of the House, Ann Taylor, about secret meetings of the cross-party modernisation committee over recent weeks.

Mrs Taylor said the committee, which she chairs, was meeting in secret "because that is Labour MEPs. what the House decided". She said it was still deliberating, but it is understood its draft report is being finalised and expected to be published before the recess of Parliament in a formight.

The report will be ald a wide range of far-reaching changes to the way the Commons operates, which could be approved for the next session of Parliament.

The main change is likely to be the timetabling of all Gov-ernment bills, ending the use of filibustering as a tactic to try to delay Government legislation. Supporters argue it will mean MPs will have more orderly de-ж.

bates, with an end to all-night sessions. Tory MPs are ready to agree to timetabling, but were said to be digging in their heels over a demand that the committee stage of all constitutional Bills will be taken on the floor of the Commons.

One senior Tory source said: "It's non-negotiable." But MPs privately said they expected the report to go ahead next week, for a debate and vote in the autumn.

There were also claims that the Labour leadership could use a change of voting system for European elections to weed out troublesome left wing

Jack Straw, the Home Secretary, announced proportion-al representation would be introduced for the European elections in 1999 by the regional list system, allowing the party more control over which candidates go forward to the European Parliament, A Bill will be introduced later this session.

The introduction of PR would mean minor parties could expect to win seats if they get more than about 10 per cent of the votes. Ministers said the Green Party would have secured a seat, if PR had been in place

River runs through it: Tom Hackett's Vertical River - created from 288 test tubes filled with Severn water - on show at Worcester City Museum as part of Gallery Week 1997, launched today by Chris Smith, Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport.

Tories back London mayor

Colin Brown Chief Political Correspondent

The Conservatives made a U-turn last night to support the idea of a Mayor for London, but they rejected the Government's proposal for an elected assembly for the capital with strategic powers.

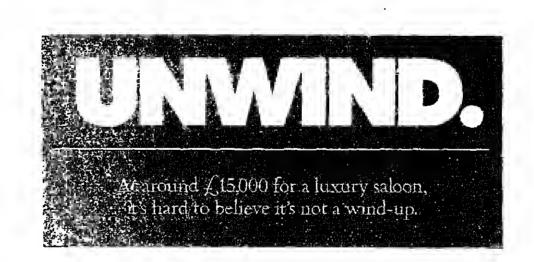

Sir Norman Fowler, the Opposition spokesman on the environment including London, said an elected mayor - u Labour manifesto commitment - would give the capital a voice and spearhead efforts to secure inward investment and counomic regeneration.

Nick Raynsford, the minister for London, said: 'It is ironic that the party which abolished the GLC [Greater London Council] 11 years ago should now belatedly recognise that they made a mistake."

Defending the U-turn Sir
Norman said: "We have listened to what the public are saving. The case for a voice for London is a case which in my view has been proved. Policies evolve."

The Tories will support an elected Mayor for London in the referendum to take place next year but they would urge a vote against the assembly.

The Government's Green Paper on the mayor and elected assembly will be published within the next fortnight.

US-style public defenders set for Britain

Patricia Wynn Davies Legal Affairs Editor

A controversial American-style "public defender" system is to be tried out in the United Kingdom for the first time as part of a shake-up of the legal aid scheme

Henry McLeish, the Scottish home affairs minister, said the system, under which an accused is advised and repre-ployed by the public sector, would be piloted next year. In a further attempt to cut Scotland's £133.6m legal aid bill, all solicitors providing criminal legal aid will have to register with the Scottish Legal Aid Board and abide by its code of practice. The number of solicitors' firms in the public defender years, after which the powers would lapse without fresh legislation. But the development is Middleton, the former Treasury Prosecutioo Service. There are also fears about under-funding and the risk that lawyers would being widely seen as a precursor to the introduction of the system nationwide.

For the past 12 months, the Lord Chancellor's Department has been considering whether to import the idea to England and Wales, and its potential advantages and savings are cur-rently being studied by Sir Peter pilot will be restricted to six and

At present, accused people on legal aid choose, their own pleas to save trial costs. lawyers from firms in private practice. Lawyers both sides of the border have largely opposed any change, saying a public defender system would usher in a costs and that in turn would bring the bill down." But the Law Society of Scotland appeared to concede debe pressurised to extract guilty feat yesterday. "We have made plain our concerns," John Elliot, the president, said. "However, Cameron Pyle, of Ross Harper & Murphy, a leading Glas-gow firm, said: "We are going we are committed to making sure that the public defender to have a two-tier system, with the rich choosing their lawyer. experiment is a fair one and to second-rate service staffed by and the poor being dumped monitoring the results. The lawyers who could not get jobs with a public defender. We Law Society believes that a in private practice or the Crown should look at administration solicitor chosen by an accused monitoring the results. The Law Society believes that a person provides the best means of representation."

One of the most bizarre examples of the pressures facing US public defenders came in the case of Richard Teisser, a public de fender who successfully sued himself, demanding that a judge declare his work inadequate and order the state of Louisiana to provide more resources. But schemes in other jurisdictions appear to have fared better.

Science sheds light on watery Sun

Science Editor

There is no water on the Moon. scientists have decided - but there is on the Sun. New studics by a team of researchers in Britain, Canada and the US have found that sunspots, patches on the solar surface which are darker than the rest. actually contain water - albeit at the extremely high temperature of 3000C.

Sunspots are often described as "storms" on the Sun, though astronomers are puzzled as to their exact nature. They have been observed since medieval times, and some people have suggested that their appear-ance can affect the Earth's weather. Water could only be identified on the Sun after supercomputers were used to model the behaviour of the substance at very high temperatures.

Spectrometers pointed at the Sun – which monitor the electromagnetic radiation given off by atomic bonds as they vibrate give results identical to those predicted by the computer models, showing that water molecules are present in sunspot areas.

Though the stellar surface is normally far too hot for any molecules to be created, the team realised that it would be possible for hydrogeo and oxygeo to come together io sunspots, which are thousands of degrees cooler than the rest of the surface, to form molecules of water.

The latest finding could actually be useful for more earthbound pursuits. The researchers who made the discovery think that the same technique that they developed could be used to detect forest fires - because the water boiling off from the burning leaves would have a similar radio signature to that found emitted from the sunspots.

the study may only last for five Extremists use Internet to spread anti-Semitism

Extremist groups are turning to new methods of spreading anti-Semitic propaganda, such as the Internet, in order to sanitise it and avoid legal obstacles, according to a survey published today.

The report on global anti-Semitism, by the London-based Institute for Jewish Policy Research, also voices concern about the electoral success of far-right political parties such as the National Front in France and Austria's Freedom Party.

However, it says that overall, incidents of hostility and violence towards Jews continued to decline worldwide in 1996, reversing an upsurge in the late 1980s.

Antony Lerman, director of the institute, said yesterday: "Contemporary anti-Semitism, despite its occasionally violent form and its deeply unpleasant nature, poses little threat to Jewish existence. It is clear that anti-Semitism does not resonate with significant sections of the public in the way that it once did, and that it cannot be used to mobilise anything other than small,

Ther who the fi

origi ago. line, Maic Ti Phill Euro

Militant action against Jews by Islamic communities in a oumber of countries, including Britain, is an area highlighted by the report. In Britain, decisive action by police has led to a fall in the number of the anti-Semitic incidents for the third consecutive year, it says.

Mr Lerman said new ways were being found of "packaging" and disseminating antiJewish sentimeot, dressing it up as opposition to Zionism, for instance, or disguising it as pseu-do-academic debate in the form of Holocaust denial. This is because extremists are finding that they cannot get their message across in the traditional forms," he said.

The report, produced jointly with the American Jewish Committee, says the Internet is a growth area for the publication of neo-Nazi material. But this is counterbalanced by the large number of anti-racist Web sites.

The zeal with which racists have embraced the Internet has also facilitated the task of monitoring them, according to the survey. Outlining other developments in 1996, it says banks. However, the level of there was less violence in the

Timely reminder: Herbert Levy with items from the Anne Frank exhibition which runs at Stables Market, Camden Lock, London, until 28 August Photograph: Nicola Kurtz

there was an anti-Iewish back-lash in response to allegations great as had been feared. bostility provoked was not as form of attacks on people and policing. Among politicians such property, and a greater inci- as Jean Marie Le-Pen, it says about the conduct of Swiss authorities in relation to gold ex-

In the 60 countries where anti-Semitism is monitored, the property, and a greater inci-dence of verbal threats and anti-Jewish graffiti. This, says the report, was a reversal of the situation a few years ago, and part-anti-Semitism has beco displaced by other forms of racism with more populist appeal. "Jews clearly occupy a low place ly the result of improved on the list of propaganda targets, and are simply one element of a zenophobic world view." The report says the trends identified in 1996 tend to be "specific problems occurring in a climate in which anti-Semitism remains socially unacceptable".

Call 0345 186 186 for details, or visit your local Rover dealer. Price, correct at time of going to press, includes 12 months road tax, delivery to dealer premises and number plates. Subject to vehicle availability.

Science sheds light on watery

Sun offer super

Violutes.

is an are pointed in the a to the mean the cha-

- pare to the charge

· denikal in they

the computer

1. 14. 14. Pa fie 38

T. Protein &

acaled &

... that grantle

் பிறாவிக

2's laggiter s

n all in the contracts

A PARTIE

and the language of

The same

" . um The f

······· 可让条件

The second section with

1.166

100

(1) (1) (1) (4)

TOTALS

1

Cabaling grenof

the life apparate

shops

Jason Bennetto Crime Correspondent

Teenage "alcocops" are to be deployed as undercover detectives to help catch shopkeepers selling alcohol to under-age

The initiative is part of a package of measures aimed at curbing the sale of alcopops to youngsters and includes new powers for the police to confiscate alcohol from under-18s drinking in public.

It will also become an offence for adults to buy alcohol from a shop or off-licence for an unsupervised youngster.

But the Government has drawn back from banning alcoholic lemonades such as Hooch and Two Dogs, prefer-ring instead to give the brewers and shopkeepers a final chance to curb under-age drinking. A ministerial team yesterday backed a revised code of conduct for retailers and drinks makers drawn up by the Port-man Group, the drinks industry's self-regulating watchdog. Uoder the terms of the new code retailers will be urged not to stock alcopops or any other alcoholic drinks deemed to be targeted at under-18s. The group has also pledged to expand its ID cards and encourage retailers to insist they be shown at shop tills, although there are doubts that such a voluntary system will work. The code will also require manufacturers to have their products verted by its complaints panel before they are George Howarth, Home Office minister, criticised alcopop makers yesterday, saying: "It's a cynical attempt to snare peo-ple are a very early age" which could lead to a life of crime. The joint initiative follows a chorus of complaints about the packaging and advertising of the fruit-flavoured alcoholic drinks which have become popular with under-age drinkers.

The main measures announced by the Government are an expansion of the use of icenage "spies", often children of police and trading standards officers. who are used to test whether shopkeepers are breaking the law. At present, the police and trading standards have been reluctaot to use this technique very often because of uncertainty about whether it could be challenged in the courts. The Government plans to introduce legislation to clarify the position.

The second initiative is the implementation of police powers to confiscate alcohol from under-18s caught drinking in public. The measure, already on the statute book from the last government, should be in use by early next month.

Io a third change, it will be-come illegal for adults to buy alcohol for youngsters - already an offence in Scotland, However, Mr Howarth added: "We are oot trying to stop pareots who want to give their children a glass of beer or wine with a

The Magistrates' Association is backing the initiative and urging licensing authorities to take into account whether a retailer has followed the code of conduct when deciding whether to renew his licence.

But Alcohol Concern carnpaigners said they are worried the measures do oot go far enough. Its director, Eric Appleby, said: "They will do little to discourage rogue manufacturers from launching products in which they have in millions of pounds.

Teenage Spot the difference: Hollywood director gets a slap in the face for plagiarising a top British photographer **Paul McCann Aledia Correspondent** The director of swing group En Vogue's latest video has had to

The original: Sean Ellis' fashion shoot, Clinic, published in The Face

The director of swing group En Vogue's latest video has had to apologise and offer compensation to one of British fashion's hottest photographers for stealing the idea for the video from a shoot in The Face magazine.

Matthew Rolston, one of Hollywood's most established celebrity photographers, has admitted "borrowing too heavily" from a series of gothic fashion photographs by Seao Ellis.

The plagiarised images were from a shoot entitled "Clinic" appeared in style hible The Face earlier this year and were theo used in En Vogue's video for its single "Whatever". There is a difference between reference and rip-off," said Mr Ellis, 26, yesterday. "And this is a clear case of a rip off."

After being threateoed with court action for breach of copyright, Mr Rolston has agreed to settle out of court and pay Mr Ellis the equivalent of a day's shooting fee in exchange for using the images. Photographers at Mr Ellis' level can earn £20,000 a day.

En Vogue's record company. Elektra, told The Face it was unhappy about the dispute and advised Mr Rolston to talk to Mr Ellis' lawyers. Elektra has now been advised not to talk about the case. And Mr Rolston's lawyers are trying to make the payment to Mr Ellis dependent on him keeping quiet about the plagiarism.

But the photographer was forthright in defending his copyright "A lot of people get ripped off," he said, "Young talent get their ideas stoleo by established talent who are too busy to come up with their own ideas. I thought I was in a position now to do something about it. I doo't think Matthew Rolstoo realised how established I was,"

Sean Ellis has been credited with creating a "gothic" style of photography that has moved the fashion world on from its obsessioo with the so-called "heroin chic" of pale emaciated models. Instead, Mr Ellis uses rich textures with dark images to create a "filmic" style.

"Many directors are influenced by fashioo photographers," he ndded. You sometimes see a clever reference to your work that takes the idea and pushes it on further and improves it. It is quite different to ust copy directly.

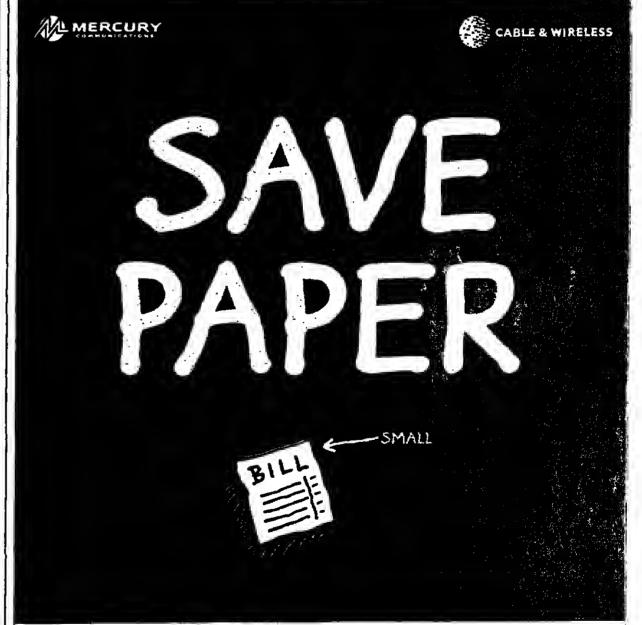

Matthew Rolston made his name as a photographer in Hollywood and became known as one of an élite of "superphotographers" who can command high fees and who are in demand by the stars.

The copy: Stills from En Vogue's video, directed by Matthew Rolston

The symbols above represent the solected facilities available at Branada Motorway Syrvices.

GUARANTEED CHEAPER CALL BILLS OR DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK.

With Mercury you can enjoy great savings on the type of calls you make most. Whether your calls are mostly national or international. you'll make savings against BT. In fact, we're so confident that you'll save money on your call bill (even against PremierLine and Friends and Family), that if you don't, we'll refund double the difference. So if you'd like tiny, little bills - call the number below. Double quick.

Mercury FreeCall 0500 500 366

Price Pledge terms apply on Memotry SmartCall and UK-Call tall bills only, compared symmet BT's basic rates and discount schemes, excluding and temporary promotional offers. Not available on Calling Card or business purkages.

The women behind bars who could go free

Jason Bennetto Crime Correspondent

Seven out of 10 women inmates do not need to be kept behind bars as they pose no security risk, the Chief Inspector of Prisons suggested vesterday in a critical report oo cooditions for women in jail. Sir David Ramsbotham made 160 recommendations in Prisons to oversee fundamental changes to treatment of fe-

The Inspectorate's report, Women In Prison, said the current system fails to recognise that female offenders have differeot needs to males.

Among the findings was that only about 30 per cent of the his review and repeated his current 2,700 womeo inmates in call for a Director of Women's England and Wales needed to be in closed prisons because they posed a security risk.

Of the remaining 70 per cent Sir David said: "They doo't pose a security risk which says they must be in prison. There may well be some for whom another form of seoteocing may well be more appropriate." Sir David suggested the Prison Service consider building low-security tower block jails to house women in urbao areas - an idea rejected by prison officials yesterday.

The need for secure surroundings for some women was illustrated by the news yester-day that a 20-year-old woman inmate who was nice mooths pregnant had escaped from a particular coocern over the maternity hospital and gone on the run. Rosemary Doherty, had been on remand at Brockhill prison in Worcestershire on a charge of robbery since May but had been trans ferred to a oearby hospital when she was due to give birth. She had not been under prison

Sir David's report expressed

PRICE —

WE CAN'T

guard or police supervision.

oumber of women prisoners on for womeo prisoners with chilremand awaiting trial, when for womeo prisoners with chil-only 34 per cent went oo to re-dren was also an area of concern. The review found that oearly two-thirds of womeo pared with 47 per cent of men. Joyce Quin, the Prisons mininterviewed were mothers with oo average three children each. although one had 14 children.

ister, accepted that there was need to reduce the number of Nearly half the womeo said women on remand and to speed they bad been physically or sexually abused previously and up the process. The decision to review of two-thirds reported having used provisioo for womeo prisocers had been prompted by coodi-tions at Holloway jail in London which triggered a walk-out by in-spectors in 1995. The female illegal drugs.
Among the recommendations was a call for improved techniques for strip-searching inwison population has risen by mates for drugs, a process which 6 percent in the last four years some may associate with previtwice the rate of men.

vice director general, welcomed the report and said that steps were already under way to implement some of the report's recommendations.

Paul Cavadino, the principal officer of the National Association for the Care and Reset-tlement of Offenders, said: "For decades women's prisons have been treated as an afterthought tacked on to the needs of men. ■ More than half the inmates in some male open young offender institutes are being tested positively for drug-taking, a Home Office study showed yesterday. The average for all jails was 38 per cent.

Richard Tilt, the Prisoo Ser-The condition and facilities 'Grandma says only bad people go to prison' takes it very hard, and she suf- normal life wheo she gets out.

Debbie Watson, 23, pushes away her plate of chips and beans and stares through the grilled window.

"I called my kids the other day and my son said: 'Mummy. who have you killed?' I said. who have you mean? He said, well, Grandma says you gone to prison and only bad people to prison." She pauses, and blinks hard. "I had to tell him to ask Grandma because I-didn't have time to explain." It is hard to tell a six-year-old why you can't come home when you only have one phonecard a your mother in Jamaica, writes Jojo Moyes. "I write to them a lot," she ternational phone call once a month. But my mother, she ing in order to re-establish a fers from high blood pressure. When I called and told her what had happened she was admitted to hospital." Debbie is serving 21 mooths at Winchester Prisoo for attempting to smuggle drugs. She helps make up the two thirds of womeo prisoners who, says the Ramsbotham report, are moth-ers. Her children, like 75 per and will be deported. In ooe recent of inmates' offspring; do not live with their father.

According to Debbie, the worst thing about prison is the you only have one phonecard a separation from her family. Like a growing number of oth-bie, your children are living with crimmates, who are also convicted drug smugglers, she can expect no visits. Her whole life is based around the two letters says. "I can also make an in- a week she receives from Jamaica and the classes she is tak-ness studies course," she says. "The teachers are great, so even if someone wiods me up I can go up there. When I get out I'm definitely going to use it. My sister runs a busioess but she's useless at the books so I'm

"I'm doing education in busi-

MIL

spect, this makes her lucky: she can just tell friends and colleagues that she has been in England, thus escaping the stigma that the womeo say attaches itself disproportioo-ately to the female convict. "I'm oot going to tell any-one," says Debbie. "A man comes out of prison and suddenly he's a don. A woman comes out and no ooe wants to know her."

"PLUS £35 CONNECTION when you connect to Celinet Digital Subject to status. Ask in-etore for our range of tariffs, prices and terms." Connection is to Celinet Occasional Caller Plus Tariff.

Registrations scheme means that, whatever you choose, it is sure to produce a memorable effect. With 'R' prefix registrations starting from only £399 inclusive of VAT and £80 assignment fee, the price won't make a lasting impression on your finances. Some popular numbers will be individually priced. B and P prefixes are U.J

M, N and some A and H prefixes starting at £250. Numbers 1 to 20 are available with prefixes A, B and H, while all other prefixes are available with certain 53 special. numbers. Choose a prefix letter and one of our special numbers, then add any 3 letters, except L Q and Z to form your own unique registration. It couldn't be more straightforward. Callthe new DVLA Registration Hotline, quoting Ref. [1807, with your cheque book. Visa or MasterCard handy. Lines are open 9.00mm to 5.00pm. Monday to Friday.

THE NEXT DVLA CLASSIC COLLECTION AUCTION WILL BE HELD AT THE CIVIC CENTRE, NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE, ON THE 1/2 SEPTEMBER. FOR FURTHER DETAILS ON THIS AUCTION WRITE TO: CMA, DVLA CLASSIC COLLECTION.

CMA GROUP, CENTRAL HOUSE, PONTEFRACT ROAD, ROTHWELL, LEEDS 1536 UP.

Driver and Vehicle

IF IT IS YOUR INTENTION TO MIS-SPACE OR MISREPRESENT YOUR REGISTRATION IN ANY WAY, DO NOT BUT DVLA reserves the right to withhold ceream registrations, some of which nairy be oftened for sale at auction bumbers and DVLA reserves are right to manufacture and are subject to availability I'rices are subject to change without price. subject to the Sate or registration manuscreams are not as subject to the subject to thanke symptom agents of the profile of the subject to thanke symptom agents are not at adults. Registrations cannot be upto in make a vehicle took younger than it is. The vehicle registration number assistent in under review. The range of changes being considered, includes some which would mean that the 'R' prefix may not be the current identifier for the full year.

We are proud to announce the arrival of our new R prefix personalised registrations, an unmissable opportunity to give your new vehicle a unique and distinctive appearance. The choice from the DVLA's Select

When compared to Celinet Occasional Caller Plus subscription for 12 months = £210. Connection £35, Accessories £29,98. ORDER DIRECT ON

Delivery charges from £3.25 PART OF DSG RETAIL LIMITED

There's a Great Deal going on

Doctors suggest prayers for NHS

Jeremy Laurance Health Editor

Prayers and good weather are all that can prevent a crisis in Britain's bospitals this winter unless the Government provides an immediate injection of cash, doctors' leaders warned yes-

Dr Sandy Macara, chairman of the British Medical Association, urged patients to pray for fine weather as the National Audit Office released figures showing more than one in three NHS trusts was in financial difficulty last December, and one in ten faced serious problems.

Yesterday the Government named the affected trusts and said the number facing problems had risen since December. NHS trusts in serious difficulty, defined as those failing to meet financial targets and with no recovery programme in 26 in 1995-96 to 47 in 1996-97. In total 168 out of 433 trusts were in some difficulty, the audit office said.

The NHS faces a huge additional burden from the cost of meeting clinical negligence claims, estimated at £2bn to £3bn, that is not recorded in the accounts, the audit office said. Only £80m is provided in the accounts for 1996-97 to meet successful claims, although £1.6hn are identified, "Those are huge sums and a very real liability,"

By Elizabeth Jennings

£1~£4,999

£5,090 -£7,999

£10,000 - £24,777

(25,000 - £47,777

£50,000 - £97,999 +000,000+

0181 667 1121

A Royal Bank of Scotland company.

£1.2bn allocated to the NHS in the budget from next April would not bridge this year's funding gap and called for an-other £500m to keep hospitals open this winter. Dr Mac Armstrong, secretary of the associ-ation, said hospitals had started the current financial year carrying deficits of at least £200m. A severe winter or a flu epidemic, both of which the country escaped last year, could precipitate a crisis.

We would bave people waiting for trolleys, let alone beds, and people being shuttled round hospitals looking for beds," he said.

nual meeting earlier this month said: "Compared with public expenditure generally, the NHS was generously treated this

It said NHS spending had been increased by 4 per cent in cash terms, 2 per cent after allowing for inflation, and current spending on the hospital service was up 5.1 per cent, 3 per cent in real terms.

But Dr Macara said that assessment bad not taken account of higher inflation rates or existing financial deficits.

"In real terms, despite the appearance of generosity, the NHS got less this year than last. The situation that is now potentially serious will become critical and perhaps very grave.

DAILY POEM

© Elizabeth Jennings. "The Earthworm's Monologue" appear in Elizabeth Jennings's selected poems for children, A Spell

DIRECT LINE INSTANT ACCESS ACCOUNT

Small space. Big savings rate.

0161 833 1121

LONDON MANCHESTER GLASGOW CALL ANYTIME Sam to Spm Monday to Friday and Sam to Spm Sec

5.15%

5.50%

6.15%

6.25%

The Earthworm's Monologue

Birds prey on me, fish are fond of my flesh. My body is like a sausage, it lacks the snake's Sinuous splendour and colour. Yes, I'm absurd.

Yet I also till and soften the soil, I prepare The way for flowers. Spring depends upon me At least a little. Mock me if you will, Cut me in half, I'll come together again.

But haven't you felt a fool, hated your shape, Wanted to hide? If so I am your friend: I would sympathise with you were I not so busy But bend down over me, you who are not yet tall And be proud of all you contain in a body so small.

of Words (Macmillan Children's Books, £9.99).

However, a briefing paper New England: Samphire Hoe, built of rock carved from the Channel Tunnel, at the base of Shakespeare Cliff, Dover prepared by the BMA for its an-

Eurotunnel rock offers platform for recreation

Nicholas Schoon Environment Correspondent

A brand new piece of England, set aside for nature and recreation, was formally opened yesterday. Samphire Hoe, at the base of one of the White Cliffs of Dover, has been created from 5 million cubic metres of chalk and other rock dug out of the Channel Tunnel, The tunnel spoil was dumped on the beach over six years while the Tunnel was under construction in the late Eighties and early Nineties. It forms a platform nearly a mile long, pushing 300 metres out to sea. Since then Eurotunnel has done some landscaping, and has installed footpaths, parking, toilets and an office for a warden. Grass and wildflower seed has been sown, and the land is growing green. A variety of hirds, butterflies and plants have begun to colonise the site. The only thing left to do was to find a name for this flattened spoil-heap at the hase of Shakespeare Cliff, and Jill Janaway, 63, a former teacher from Dover, won a naming competition with "Samphire" – a herb found locally, and mentioned in King Lyar, David Johnson of Eurotunnel said: "It is really the public's dividend from the creation of the # all Mondeos available The Mondeo Verona with air conditioning. Mondeo

A breeze at only £229 per month on Decome. : (Plus deposit and optional final payment.)

CAR INSURANCE Looking for the premium? COLLINS

600 TO CLAIM YOUR FREE ROAD ATLAS REF 2760

Please quote ref. IND90

PHONE

FREE

0500

333

Exclusive Road Atlas with every quote

PLEASE QUOTE LINES ARE OPEN Baza-Spra WEEKDAYS. 9am-5pm SATURDAYS.

DIAL DIRECT

There's never been a cooler way to purchase a Mondeo Verona.

. With 24 monthly payments of £229 (plus deposit and optional final payment), even the finance is frozen. • 15" alloy wheels

Quickclear windscreen

Driver's side airbag

Metallic paint

 Safeguard engine immobiliser

• 1.8 litre 16v engine

Officer	Typical example Mondeo Verona 1.8 5dr <sup>1</sup>
Mileage (per annum)	12,000
Estimated on the road price	£13,995
Deposit (30%)	£4,198.50
Balance	£9,796.50
Total charge for credit*	21,504.86
Total amount payable	£15,499.86
Term (months)	25
Number of monthly payments	24
Monthly payment	£229.14
Optional final payment to purcha (Minimum Guaranteed Future Va	ise lue") £5,732.00
APR	9.7%

The new Mondeo manner It brings you to your senses.

21 years as the nation's favourite Then is 1

0345 111 777 www.ford.co.uk *Minimum deposit 50%. *Subject to aveilability, Vehicles must be registered by Sept. 30 1997. **Estimeted on the road price is based on Manufacturer's Recommended: Reteit Price at the time of going to prese plus VAT at 17.5% and £686 covering delivery to like dealer, 12 months' road fund licence and number plates. Written quotalions are eveilable on request from Ford Credit Europe pic, PO Box 46, Brentwood, Essex CM12 3AR. Guerantees and Indemnitiee may be required. Finance is provided subject to stotus to over 16s only. Certain categories of business users may be ineligible. 0% Finance excludes Ford Privilege. **Total charge for credit includes a finance facility fee of $70 payable with the first monthly payment. **Purther charges may be made subject to mileage and condition if the vehicle is returned at the end of the agreement.

Lucy Ward Education Correspondent

English nine-year-olds use calculators more and are taught less often as a whole class in maths lessons than children in countries which far outperform England in the subject, according to international research.

At secondary level, where England also lags well behind other nations in maths, 13year-olds spend less time than their counterparts abroad on the subject overall and are set less namework.

A study published yesterday examines the influences which could explain the results of a major survey revealing that English children in both age groups struggle in maths compared with their contemporaries in Pacific Rim and other countries but outstrip them in science.

Its findings have already been seized on by David Blunkett, the Secretary of State for Education and Employment, as evidence to support the Government's drive for a minimum homework requirement.

In primary schools, children taught maths using traditional whole-class methods - the technique being advocated by the Government for literacy and oumeracy teaching - were more likely to gain higher scores in tests set by researchers.

Meanwhile, countries --including England -- where pupils routinely used calculators, generally did worse in the maths league tables. England's relatively low ranking - tenth out of 17 nations - came despite the fact that primary schools spent more time oo maths than virtually every other country in the survey.

However, the study found a very different picture in secondary schools. It revealed English schools were roughly in line with other nations on levels of whole-class teaching in maths time than schools in other countries and set homework less

Thirteen-year-old pupils tended to do best in both maths and science io those countries where they had more lesson time and more homework, the research sbowed. The findings are the second part of an international maths and science study, carried out in England by the National Foundation for Educational Research (NFER).

The first part looked at comparative performances of nine- and 13-year-olds in maths and science tests, while the latest sectioo compares underlying factors such as time spent in lessons, class size, styles of teaching, levels of homework and teachers' and students' attitudes.

Researchers in England are particularly interested in the findings for the younger age group, hecause in primary schools children are taught both maths and science by the same teacher, yet achieve very different results relative to other couotries.

Advocates of traditional teaching, including chief schools inspector Chris Woodhead, are likely to point to the study as ev-Ideoce that whole-class teaching, mental arithmetic and plenty of homework are the crucial factors io achieving good maths results.

The same factors do oot appear to have the same influence oo science results.

However, Wendy Keys, one of three authors of the NFER report, stressed there might be no causal relationship between teaching styles and results. "I doo't want to say that you only have to use whole class teaching and stop using calculators and you have solved it.

"Time spent and homework are the things to be looked at first hefore we start castigating teachers for oot teaching the

Neil Hamilton delivering his rebuttal yesterday

Fair hearing is a big issue for Hamiltons

Kim Sengupta

They feel they are a Mr and Mrs Dreyfus, victims of a terrible injustice.

Former friends and colleagues from the Conservative Party have turned their backs on them, the media have been thirsting for their blood. But Neil and Christine Hamilton say they did receive a fair bearing - from Living Marxism and the Big Issue.

The two organs, one of the hard left, and the other representing homeless people, bave been the only ones which have given "an objective and balanced account" of their prohlems, said the couple.

Mr Hamilton, whose name has become synonymous with Tory sleaze, yesterday delivered a 30-page rehuttal of the Downey Report which had scathingly condemned his rela-tion with the Harrods owner, Mohamed Al Fayed, and his conduct as an MP.

In the critique, which Mr Hamiltoo hopes will be read by the Commons Standards and Privileges Committee on Tuesday, the former MP points out what he claims are major flaws in Sir Gordon's findings.

Mr Hamiltoo's letter states: The reality is that Sir Gordon has tried and convicted me on a charge of corruption. Bribery of an MP is against the law of Parliament and, but for the Bill Of Rights, would be a criminal offence triable in a court of law. "... He relies heavily on evidence which would not be admissible in a court of law and gives no reasons for judge-ments upon which he basis his conclusions."

Mr Hamilton states in the letter that he cootinues to "vigor-ously deny Mohamed Fayed's allegations of corruption". Mr and Mrs Hamilton told

The Independent that they had beeo coodemoed to a "life sentence" of public humiliation which they are determined to overtura.

Mr Hamilton said: "I have been pilloried by the media. Surprisingly two very fair treatments have come from Living Marxism and the Big Issue.

"I gather that Living Marxism are at oxids with Martin Bell because of certain coverage the magazine had done in the former Yugoslavia. And although they are poles apart from me politically, at least they know that I firmly believe in what I stand for."

हे अन् व्यक्तकात्

The Residence

LEICE

Mrs Hamilton said: "Gordoo Downey crucified Neil and dissected him on a silver platter because that was what was wanted of him. But we are not going to give up,"

Photograph: Nicola Kurtz

B2(0) Vinyl Matt or Silk Emulsion Pure Brilliant McCulloch Virginia Petrol Hedgecutter MH555 21cc engine, 56cm cutting length, twin sided single action blades and 4.8kg. WAS £129.99 Flymo Turbe Compact 300 Electric Hover Mower Cuprinol Garden TimberCare Rustic Brown, 12ins cutting width, 1250 walts, 4 cutting heights and 15m coble. Autumn Gold or "This big 10 litre tub is only £10.49" WAS €124.49 MICHELLE CURRAN Semi gloss finish. Available in Department Manager B&Q ALTRINCHAM various colours. Cart Super Set Complete watering system with 25m hose B&Q Value Matt or Silk Emulsion Pure Brilliant White. 10 litres. Sandtex Sandlex Textured or Smooth Coloured PURE BRILLIANT WAS £11.49 Masonry Paint Available in Complete with 12 lights, 15m of cable, 12 bulbs and 12 volt plug various colours. Guaronteed for 15 years. 5 litres. in transformer. Self assembly. SPECIAL PURCHASE 9ins Oscillating Desk Fan D9F

by Crown Available in various designs and colourways, 10m.

42ins Ceiting Fan

Wood grain

Picardie Walicoverings

EARN TESCO CLUBCARD POINTS

£12.79

Hawaii Portable Fan Variable speed control. Requires 4 size D batterles.

WAS €8.99

WAS OPENING HOURS ost stores Barn-Born, Sustday: Most st se parmitted). Scotland & Northern & RITARY'S BIGGEST DLY CHAIN - FOR YOUR NEAREST STORE PHONE 0800 400 900 internet - http://www.div.co.uk

Style 400X Electric Shows 8.5kW.

Also ovolkable Gainsborough Energy 2000X Electric Shower 10.8kW. (Not shown.)

WAS £179

YOU CAN DO IT WHEN YOU B&Q IT!

WAS €12.65

£69.99

High pressure hose with mager gu 2kW input motor. Hat (up to 40°C) or cold water feed.

£149.99

£2.99

The Cook retort: 'No question of us picking on the little guys and letting the big ones go'

After announcing his new ethical foreign policy yesterday, Robin Cook spoke exclusively to

Rupert Cornwell and Steve Crawshaw

Robing Cook was bullish yesterday after presenting his new policy on hu-man rights. He insisted that upholding "universal principles" - for that read morality - did not conflict with economic prosperity and keeping people in jobs.

You could refuse to sell arms to nasty regimes abroad, then, and still avoid throwing people out of work at home. But he also knew that the dilemma at the heart of an eth-ical foreign policy is not so easily swept aside. "It's a matter of political life that you're not loved by all the people all the time." But Britain is ready to take the flak, even if husiness leaders complain about potential loss of contracts.

In an interview with the Independent Mr Cook acknowledged difficulties ahead. "Any government that pretends it is able to manage a consistent policy to 190 countries simultaneously is living in the mindset of a computer rather than the real world." But there would be no double standards: "There is no question of shrinking from difficult questions raised by large countries ... no question of us picking on the little guys and letting the hig guys go." Earlier he presented what was officially described as "his vision for putting human rights at the centre of British foreign policy". The setting was the Foreign Office's Locarno Room, the immediate backdrop a dais in a New Labour designer shade of grey, hizarrely enlivened by the jarring yellow and orange of Edvard Munch's Scream. In a signal of the Foreign Office's declared openness to different viewpoints, his invited audience included representatives of Amnesty and 100 other non-governmental organ-isations. No less symbolic was the presence on the rostrum of the independent Tatton MP and former war correspondent Martin Bell, who championed the need for a morally based response to the war in Bosnia. Viet totalitarianism, and the New the US the Republican right feels as some who feel they we seen the whole world go by. That seems to me based response to the war in Bosnia.

Until now, Mr Cook's policy has been largely confined to verbal gestures. None the less, if his words are only half matched by deeds, it will represent a radical departure. Not since Jimmy Carter occupied the White House has any Western government so publicly nailed its foreign policy to the mast of morality - and certainly not the government of a country so traditionally identified with hard-nosed realpolitik as Britain. But Mr Carter's pursuit of human rights helped undermine So-world, the formula should not yield

Mr Cook is unwilling to be drawn on how great a shift this represents from the last government's pragmatic priorities. "I don't want to get into the husiness of playing the superior political party on this issue. I would like to create a national consensus."

In one respect at least, Mr Cook is prepared to break new ground. He seems ready to extend an olive hranch to those with politics diametrically opposed to his own. "In tion. You can detect that in the tion ... Robust confidence in our valyounger generation of new right-wing writers in Britain; some of that influence is coming through. If the right in Britain was to adopt some of the attitude of the right in America, I would welcome that." He made it clear that the days when it could be said that "We have no friends and enemies, only interests," are over. "The commitments I made today are pragmatic, down to earth and serious. I get a hit fed up with the world-weary cynicism of Britain's head over its diplomatic and ues is part of our national interest." trade relations with Peking. Mr Cook insisted there could be no question of Hong Kong's inter-

Mr Cook has been criticised for the apparent contradiction in policy of selling military equipment to Indonesia when Jakarta is under fire for its human-rights breaches. Yesterday he said the results of a review on the criteria for licensing weapons for export would be published "shortly". The review would result in "changes to the present policy" of sale of small-arms and other military eminment for sale to the security forces of "certain regimes."

On China, he told critics of its rights record not to hold a gun to #### plan will work Fran Abrams Political Correspondent

How the great

Britain's new ethical foreign policy will be backed by an annual report on the Government's human rights record, Robin Cook, the Foreign Secretary, said yesterday. Britain had already pledged £330m towards the construction of a criminal tribunal on the former Yugoslavia, he said, and was do-nating £600,000 to help tackle the

Mr Cook also promised that an ongoing review of arms exports would lead to a change of policy on the sale of riot-control equipment and small arms to repressive regimes. He would not say whether this would be likely to include Indonesia, where British armoured cars have been used to put down pro-democracy demonstrations.
In a speech setting out 12 main trafficking of children for prostitution and other abuse in Asia.

strands of the new policy, Mr Cook said human rights would in future be at the centre of Britain's approach to foreign affairs. However, cutting off links with affending nations would not be constructive. "This may provide us with clean hands, but it s unlikely to provide their people with better rights," he said. Mr Cook also said he would raise the cases of prisoners of conscience with ministers from other countries, and would support a proposal for a permanent international Criminal Court, He would look again at the UK Military Training Assistance Scheme, under which support was given to Indonesian security forces, and might divert the money to training journalists instead.

receive him, which may be perceived as a backhanded compliment to the Foreign Secretary's tough stance on rights.

It is unclear how productive the "Cook doctrine" will be. As he acof good commercial relations with knowledges, in any rights case bi-lateral pressure can achieve only so China. But he warned the democrats much and multilateral pressure will he far more effective. But here too Last week's swoop by British forces against two alleged war crim-mals in Bosnia "represented a new resolve" by the world community to take tougher action there. Britain has cards to play — the permanent UN Security Council seat, its Commonwealth role, and coming presidency of the EU. "We won't al-Next week Mr Cook goes to forways succeed ... But we can use our influence to shift that common pomer Yugoslavia. A trip to Belgrade has been cancelled because President Slobodan Milosevic is "too busy" to sition a little further forward."

Collect pounds, not points, with Britain's leading money back credit card

The new Alliance & Leicester Credit Card gives you money back on every purchase, every year! There's no other card quite like it in the U.K. today!

Just look at all the advantages you enjoy:

- money back on every purchase, every year double money back of up to 2% in 1997
- I low interest rate of 17.9% APR 12.9% APR on transferred balances*
- until they are repaid no annual fee - unlike many other
- credit cards up to 46 days interest-free credit free Purchase Protection

_ ALLIANCE LEICESTER

Alliano	send my FREE e & Leicester	money .ooc	a creat co	uq.
Mr/Mrs/Mss/Ms	Foresame		Śorname	·
Address
.	 				The money bo
Postcode	Da	te of Righ			Cont cord
Tel. No	٠.		xo	sı. /.	our questions answered

AT&T ONE RATE TO IRELAND.

ests being sacrificed at the expense against too much doomsaying.

Because it's good to talk. All the time.

Call family or friends in Ireland for just 13p a minute. Any time of the day. Any day of the week. That's AT&T One Rate." And that's as complicated as it gets. Call us. Any time.

AT&T ONE RATE" TO IRELAND COMPARED TO BT.

ALL CALLERY TO ELECTRICAL PROPERTY OF THE PROP
·	AT&T ONE RATE"	BT BASIC RATE	BT PREMIER LINE
DAYTIME		23p	19 <sub>P</sub>
EVENING	14 <sub>p</sub>	20p	17p
WEEKEND	- • P	18 <sub>P</sub>	15p

PENCE PER MINUTE

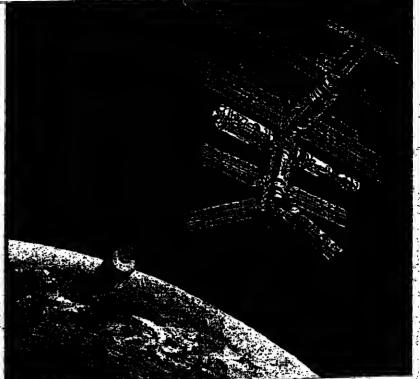

Call 0800 143 143 any time.

LIFE JUST GOT SIMPLER.

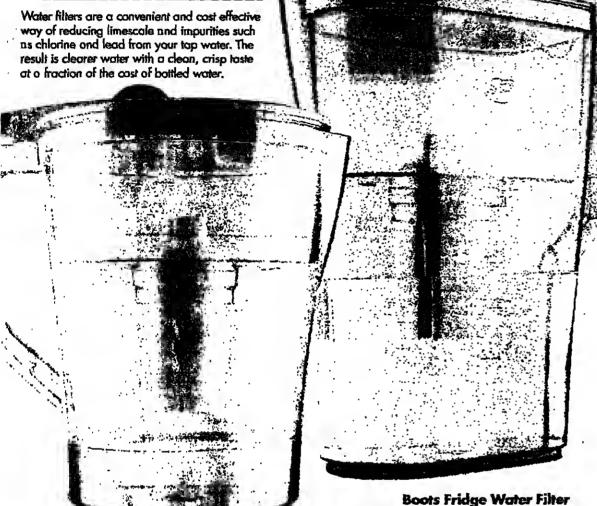

ster: From left, cosmonaut removes wrong data plug, causing power loss. Using fleshlights, crew

New from Boots

Now £10 each

Introductory Offer: Save £3.

Boots Family Water Filter Large capacity, ideal for families

Boots Fridge Water Filter Slimline, designed to fit inside the fridge door.

> New Boots water filters have a unique, easy-to-use life indicator, letting you know exactly when to change your cartridge to mointain the quality of your water. Both new models are dishwasher safe.

The Right Chemistry

from 9th July until 2nd Septe

Mir must wait to take place in history

Charles Arthur Science Editor

If the astronauts on board the Mir space station have had any time to reflect in the past three weeks, they might reassure themselves that this is not, yet, the worst disaster in space.

That unfortunate title beones to the Challenger Space Shuttle, which blew up 73 seconds after its launch on 28 January 1986, killing the seven astronants aboard. (Three US astronauts also died before leaving the ground, when the Apollo 1 module caught fire 10 ninutes before it was due to take off on 27 January 1967.)

Nor, despite the darkness the most remote location for a disaster, that dubious title goes to the occupants of Apollo 13, who were 200,000 miles from Earth on 13 April, 1970 when

"We've got a problem." By con-trast, Mir is about 250 miles

And it has to be said that this is not the first time that things have looked desperate to oc-cupants of Mir. In May 1990, two cosmonauts were reported. "stranded" there by damage to their descent module; at least today's occupants have the: Soyuz module as a lifeboat back to Earth. The 1990 problem was solved when an unmanned craft was sent out with a ladder to enable the men to carry out external repairs.

However, this is the longestrunning crisis in space, and the exhaustion created amone the crew means that the slightest erand cold, are the three men in ror could be fatal. Although the name of the space station means "peace" in Russian, there has been very little of it for the three-man crew in the three weeks since a practice they radioed Houston to tell docking manoeuvre went wrong mission control, famously, on June 25, causing the first spacecraft. The first 20 minutes after the accident were a terrifying scramble, as British-born Michael Foale, aged 40, heard the hiss of escaping air in the Spektr module where he lived and worked, and had to abandon it at top speed, helped by the captain, Vasili Tsibliyev, 43, and the flight engineer, Alexan-der Lazntkin, 39.

The biame for the original accident has not yet been placed. but Russian mission control is understood to feel that Commander Tsibliyev was at fault for having used an overloaded cargo module to practice the

Since then, Commander Tsiblivey has developed a heart problem that ground-based doctors suggest is almost certainly stress-related. If the repair mission goes ahead, it bas been decided that he will wait in the Soyuz escape craft, while Mr Foale undertakes the dan-darkened Spektr module, where he will have to reconnect the cables that were unhitched. However, that spacewalk is now planned to occur on the night of July 24-25, and is still being rehearsed in swimming tanks (in reproduce weightlessness) on the ground by Russian technicians at Star City. The latest problems - which occurred when one of the crew accidentally pulled out a cable connecting to the main computer, paygen generators and power systems - plunged the sta-tion to the bare minimum of power needed to keep running. Mir was first launched on February 20 1986, intended to be a staging post for crewed flights to Mars "by the late 1990s". Instead, it suffered its first setback in April, 1987, when the Kvant astronomy module failed to dock as

Politicians struggle to keep mission afloat as risks grow

John Cartin Washington

The latest calamity to befall Mir has focused attention on the dirty little secret the White House has chosen to ignore: the expense and risk of the enterprise has become utterly disproportionate to its scientific value.

Whatever scientists were go-ing to learn from the limping Russian hulk they have already learnt, and if the US is to continue its commitment to the project it should do so on the understanding that the returns are purely political.

"It's got nothing to do with science," said John Pike, the director of the space policy pro-ject at the Federation of American Scientists. "It's a powerfully visible assertion that Russia and America are partners, not adversaries. One palpable scientific gain

Nasa has obtained from the Mir project is the knowledge that the Space Shuttle can dock successfully with a space station. But James Lovell, the astronaut who survived the ill-fated Apollo 13 mission, has noted that af-ter five such missions the US has all the information it could possibly require on docking.

Another objective was to learn about the human body's capacity to withstand long pe-riods of weightlessness. But the consensus among scientists is that the US now knows all it needs to know about that too.

"Mir has done an exceptionally fine job," Mr Lovell said last week. "Now it's time to give it a very respectful retirement." That is not the view of the White House which, eager to soothe Russian brows after the tensions generated by recent developments in Nato, remains publicly committed to the project. Though it remains in be seen how keen President Bill Clinton will be to give his blessing to plans under way to send two more American astronauts to Mir after the scheduled return of the current batch in

After yesterday's near disaster, he will most certainly come under pressure from Congress to call the whole deal off. "I, for one, can no longer sit idly by as mishap after mishap occurs while we continue to plan the next shuttle mission to Mir, hoping for, but not really expecting, the mission will succeed without a potentially life-threat-ening situation," said James Sensenbrenner, the Republi-

September.

House of Representatives' Science Committee.

According to a paper written by the Clear Lake Group, a space policy research organisation in Houston, the ailing space station presents too much nf a risk for astronauts. "The signs are obvious that sending American astronauts to Mir is sending them needlessly in harm's way," the paper said. "Space travel, like all forms of movement, is inherently dangerous. Keeping an astronaut on Mir is making it reckless."

The question Congress and Mr Clinton will soon have to confront is whether the diplo-matic goodwill reaped by working with the Russians in space is worth the price of America suffering its first fatality in to trac

Announcing the Home Office that works harder. From Sharps.

OFFICE FURNITURE THAT FITS YOUR NEEDS

The New Sharps Home Office is properly fitted, affordable quality office furniture. Sharps know how to make the best use of limited space, so no matter how small or unusually shaped your office area, Sharps can convert this into a functioning home office that makes the best use of every inch of space. Sharps will fully install everything in your office, quickly and efficiently using their own expert team of fitters. There's comprehensive range of styles and finishes to choose from, so you

For a home office that is both practical and stylish, talk to Sharps soon.

> For your free colour brochure call 0800 32 32 32

international

French worker loses his head at the Tower

For those of you who can spot

an excellent rate

If you are 24 or over, earn £10,000 p.a. or more and have a current

14.90% APR LUNN 10.14.999 16.9% APR 5500 to 12.999

12,9% APR 15,000 to 19,999

account, call us now to benefit from these impressive rates:

*12.5% APR (10,000

0800 30 3000

France's most famous tourist attraction reopened last night after workers were persuaded to call off their strike and go back to work.

The Eiffel Tower has been shut while directors and staff tried to solve a somewhat strange situation. This strike was not about pay, working hours, retirement age or cuts in social security, as has been the case with most strikes of recent years in France. It was about the firing of one employee, auraging 50 of 220 employees and provoking a strike at one of the busiest times of the year.

The employee was sacked on Tuesday after attacking an English tourist who had wanted to change her ticket. According to sources at the Eiffel Tower, the employee lost his temper, grabbed her by the shoulders and threw her to the ground.

night after two days of intensive talks. The employee will be sacked, but the directors have promised to help him find another job in another company

Hugues De Baillien Court, the general secretary at the Tower, said that "the employee's conduct was inadmissible" and that he must be sacked. "We are not in the least bit proud of it." The 50 or so strikers, most of

Generals stand guard as Turkey returns to the secular path

Blink, and Turkey almost seems back on track. After 11 months of Islamist-led government, Turkey is now being run by politicians whose understanding of secularism appears in line with that prevalent in Western

Mesut Yilmaz, whose broadbased coalitioo government won a vote of confidence on 12 July, has promised to reduce the influence of the Islamists. But sceptics argue that he has neither the means our the will

Mr Yilmaz's purring proclamation of a government of oa-tional unity has made secularists feel good, but a yawning gap be-weeo European-minded Turks and their eastern-oriented com-patriots will prove hard to narrow. As he gets to work, Mr watched by Turkey's generals. They tripped up Necmettin Er-bakan, his predecessor, whom they considered too Islamist. Now they have made it clear that they expect Mr Yilmaz and Bulent Ecevit, his new deputy prime minister, to take Turkey in the other direction.

The trouble is, the development of Islamism in Turkey cannot be pinned on Mr Erbakan and his Welfare Party; it predates by two decades Welfare's formation, and was cocouraged by many pro-Western sec-ularists, who saw in it a convenient diversion for Turkish youths who might otherwise be attracted to Communism. Take, for instance, the rise of the Imam Hatips, religious state schools whose influence the generals want curbed. Most of these schools were opened in the 1970s and the 1980s, a period when supposedly secular

Mesut Yilmaz (left) replaces Necmettin Erbakan (right), but sceptics say he will not reduce the Islamists' influence themselves in government. The influence of religious schools, argue educationalists, will only wanc if Mr Yilmaz Turks under the age of 14 from sacks Islamic-minded teachers attending Imam Hatips. But it and Ecevit included - were cation system. But the new prime minister will avoid such drastic solutions. His govern-allow Arabic and religious education in main-stream secondary schools.

Just as important is what Mr Yilmaz proposes to do about Turkey's big alternative economy. This is secretive, the number of Arabic words he uses when speaking Tables. pions, and substantially sup-ported by Turkish Islamists in Germany. An estimated $12bn (£7bn) has been collected by socalled "Islamist companies", in the form of unofficial share issues. Much of this money gets building and Koran courses. Clearly, pecalising pious businessmen and pupils in around 500 Imam Hatips is best avoided if you are a politician from one of Turkey's beleaguered-looking mainstream parties. Mr Yilmaz's Motherland Party has, since its inception, combined religious cooservatism with liberal ecoism is said to have undergone changes since he was prime minister three times in the 1970s. This change, say mischievous

Mr Yilmaz has presented an impressive list of ministers, whose urbanity and Western orientation contribute to the impression that the Turkey which the West likes - the dependable Nato member and European Union applicant – is back to normal. This impression is premature. But some cultural gestures and the removal of a few, too pious civil servants - the sum, to date, of the government's anti-Islamist proposals - looks like mere linkering. The durability of the government is already in doubt. The extent to which it can - or wants 10 - halt decades of Islamism is

A five minute local weekend call with BT costs just 5p and you could save 25% with BT's PremierLine and Friends & Family discounts.

For more information on BT's discounts call 24 hour Freefone 0800 003 800.

The cost of calling keeps on falling BT

Direct dialied calls only. Excludes BT public payphone and BT Chargecard calls. Friends & Family is not available with the Light Usar scheme. PremterLine subscription is £6 per quarter. There is a 5p minimum chargs; discounts apply.

international SA crime blamed on old regime's agents

Mary Braid Johannesburg

With South Africa leading the world in violent crime, Deputy Presideot Thabo Mbeki has finally admitted that lawlessness threatens the country's fledgling democracy and economy.

But his analysis of the cause of the crime explosion and the failure of the justice system to combat it has caused controversy. He says sabotage by former and current security-force members, still loyal to the old apartheid government, is a key factor in the crisis. It is claimed ternational crime syndicates tional crime syndicates. Mr have infiltrated all government the old departments and that they are works set up under the old that former security police who joined private security firms are reviving the "Third Force" activities they had used against the ANC to destabilise the new democratic South Africa. In addition, officials hostile to the new government, but trapped in its service, are accepting bribes to pervert justice.

Sidney Mufumadi, safety and security minister, also said in-aided by disloyal officials. He compares South Africa's crime crisis to that of Russia after the collapse of the Soviet Union.

South Africa is being target-ed by crime rings from Nigeria, Yugoslavia, Russia and China. The government is considering mtroducing laws to stop former intelligence agents selling in-formation to international intelligence agencies or transpaly to back up its claims. The Pan-Africanist Congress said it had suspected former security forces were involved in car hijacking government might be operating as crime organisations and apand drug syndicates.

But a National Party MP, Andre Fourie, dismissed it as a despealed to former operatives to perate move calculated to val the ANC's failure to defeat crime. He accused Mr Mbeki of expose their old networks. There is no way that syndicates can move to foreign tertitory and set themselves up and denigrating South Africa's se-curity forces. "The ANC conoperate without the collusion of local elements," Mr Mufuma-di said. Politicians of all parties veniently forgets that organised bank robberies formed part of the fund-raising efforts by the yesterday demanded that the ANC make arrests immediate-about Mr Mbeki's theory extend beyond the political parties. Business Day newspaper has warned the ANC to resist retreating into conspiracy theories. It said evidence of an orchestrated plot was "at best circumstantial". The paper put widespread police corruption down to a general decline in the morai standards.

The ANC is under enormous pressure to combat crime. Johannesburg has the highest week tens of thousands of postcards were delivered to President Nelson Mandela's home in Pretoria demanding action. The ANC comments come as a group of British police advis-ers said South Africa's crime problem may not be as bad as the public perceived. David Thursfield, depury Chief Constable of West Mercia, said the South African Police Service (SAPS) was making good progress considering the trans-formation it was undergoing. It appeared the value of life was lower in South Africa than in Britain but that that was a social, not a policing issue.

Mr Mufumadi's statements about the enemy within will do nothing to warm relations with George Fivaz, the SAPS national commissioner. The minister and the police chief, both of whom are under enormous strain, have engaged in several unseemly rows recently.

Blasts at ' Army base in Bosnia

Christopher Bellamy Defence Correspondent

Four explosive devices, believed to be hand grenades, hit the main British base in Bosnia oo Wednesday night, in what appears to be a low-level campaign to harass peace-keeping troops and international monitors after British peace-keeping troops killed one Bosnian Serb war crimes suspect and arrested another a week ago. No une was hurt and there was no serious damage.

British Army sources said the incideots continue to appear isolated and not part of a co-ordinated camand not part of a co-ordinated cam-paign, and Serb leaders, who have ap-pealed for calm, agreed. Monicilo Krajisnik, the Serb member of the three-man Bosnian presidency, said: "I want to believe these were indi-vidual incideots, It would not be good if they were some kind of revenue. if they were some kind of revenge. They are more an expression of fear and uncertainty because uf the ex-istence of secret lists [uf indicted war crimes suspects], which raise tensions and cause alarm among the people.

The first three blasts were at 10.45, local time, in the car park of the British hase in Banja Luka, the higgest town in the the Serb-con-trolled part of Bosnia and the headquarters of the British sector, which covers western Bosnia.

Despite a famine which is said by aid workers to have caused malnutrition in a third of its children, North Korea exported 1,000 tonnes of maize to a Japanese chickeo farmer this week. The Mangvongbong, a North Korean ship, was last night unloading the last of 1,030 tonnes of maize. according to customs officials at Aomori, northern Japan. They refused to name the customer, but the Sankei Shimbun said he is a poultry farmer from Yokohama

Kaoru Yosano, actiog chief spokesman for the Japanese government, said they were investigating the incident, which comes weeks after a recewed appeal by international agencies to make up the 800,000 tonnes of grain they estimate Pyoogyang needs to feed its people until the eod of this year's harvest.

Japaoese intelligence sources speculated that the shipment may have originated in China and been transhipped through the North Korean port of Chongjin by a middleman. Even so, the disclosure that the supposedly starving country has rea's secretive government. Since it was hit by floods in 1995 there have beeo suspicions, especially in South Korea, that the food shortage was being exaggerated, and that aid inteoded for civilians was being diverted for sale or to the country's 1 million troops.

Charity workers, UN officials, and US politicians returning from the North have said many children and old people are close to starvation. "Some of the kids we saw were in a state that I felt if aid doesn't go in, they will not survive," Kathy Zell-weger, of the chariry Caritas, said oo her return to Peking this week. "We her return to Peking this week. "We are moving to a very, very serious situation if we don't help them now." She said 800.000 children are malnourished, 10 per ceot of them seriously, and showed recent photographs of victims with distanced storages and stick-like limbs. tended stomachs and stick-like limbs.

But accounts suggest it is a selec-tive famine, with parts of the coun-try, including those by the coast, the Chinese border and the the gleaming model capital, Pyoogyang, relatively unscathed. On Tuesday the US promised $27m (£16.8m) of food aid in addition to $25m contributed earlier in the year. But on Wednesday the Senate voted to bar more economic aid if the North continued to violate the armistice which ended the Korean War in 1953.

A few hours earlier, North and South Korean troops exchanged fire across the demilitarised zone separating the two countries, an incident which was under investigation yesterday by a UN military team. Each side blamed the other for starting the 23-minute gun fight. The North has agreed to meet for peace talks with China, South Korea and the US next month and intelligence sources believe the incident may have been calculated to give Pyongyang additional leverage by demonstrating its military potential before the meeting.

linton na 剛itary of

. . . .

14 15 to 12 To ا مثنه د المهامة والمسترادة المسترادة

Sen se

agent Wicked sister chopped up good sister and put her in the freezer

Tim Cornwell Los Angeles

A middle-aged Californian woman was to appear in court yesterday charged with killing her sister, stor-ing the dismemhered body in a freezer and impersonating the older woman for at least two weeks.

Sarah Mitchell, 47, did not simply pose as Stevie Allman, 52, in order to claim her pension and the title to the family home. She enlisted the entire Oakland city police department, along with Cali-fornia Governor Pete Wilson, as allies in what is now alleged to be a murderous hoax. "I don't know if bizarre quite describes it," said Captain Peter Dun-bar, of Oakland police, about a case that has dominated the headlines in the newspapers of northern California. "This is the stuff of a Hollywood movie." The San Francisco Chronicle, on its World Wide Web site, dubbed it "a really weird crime".

The story began nn I July when Ms Allman, a reclusive spinster, was seen running from her blazing home, the bottom of her dress on fire. A wnman neighbour wondered why she was clutching her purse, but kept her suspicions to herself. From her hospital bed "Stevie" hlamed drug-dealers for firebombing her home. "I have no doubt they intended to murder me," said a defiant public statement from a woman formerly known as a shy loner. "Their warped minds thought the act would clear the way to do their dirty dealing."

The Oakland police department confirmed that Allman had been secretly videoing drug dealers for a year and sending them the tapes. She instantly became a local hero. Donations poured into a fund to pay for her treatment and replace Stevie's two dogs, a Chihuahua and pit bull named

Oakland police move the freezer containing the decomposed body of Stevie Allman from her home Photograph: AP/San Francisco Herald

Oda and Caesar, who had reported-ly died in the fire. Residents de-scended on the street and vowed to clean it up. Crime-fighting Republican governor Wilson promised a $50,000 (£85,000) reward.

It was one of Ms Allman's seven siblings, however, who alerted police

SAVE # £110 ON CLEANERS
UP TO 55 TO CHOOSE FROM IN STORE

that two sisters had been living at the house. Two weeks after the fire a fin-gerprint check confirmed that "Stewas Sarah. She was arrested cashing a check from her hospital When police searched the house, they found the pieces of a decomposing corpse in the freezer.

DIGITAL STEREO SOUND

This TV features Nicam Stereo – the digital format used by broadcasters to deliver high quality stereo sound

Goodmans

Sleep timer Model 285NS

SALEA

STED

CAPACITY

In-store 2499.99

28" NICAM STEREO TV

Teletext pages

Auto set-up for hassle

Fastext enables quick access

n-soreen display SCART sockets for improved

Video and satellite connection

66cm visibie screen

Stevie was a compulsively quiet ecretary. Her sister, by contrast, had ar-rests for prostitution and fraud. Sarah had posed as Stevie before, cashing an inheritance check from their mother, and was a drug user. But to the surprise of her relatives, the two cononued to live together. Police are you never figure your own family."

TRA CHOICE • TRA VALUE • TRA SAVINGS

now trying to establish whether their drug informant was actually Stevie. or Sarah. But the last word may go to Sarah Mitchell's own son, Leland. "If it was a money scam, I wouldn't put it past her," he told the Oakland Tribune, "People do crazy stuff, but

Spain unites to ban Eta rally

Elizabeth Nash Madrid

The Spanish authorities, tightening the screw on the pro-Eta party Herri Batasuna (HB), have resolved to inject new force into existing legislation rather than impose Draconian new measures, tollowing the torrent of popular revulsion against Basque Jerrorism.

The most important thing... is to strengthen our commitment to existing laws," the Interior Minister, Jaime Mayor Oreja, said on Wednesday.

A spirit of inter-party solidanty has arisen in the wake of demonstrations that brought millions of Spaniards on to the streets this week, following the murder on Saturday of the young Basque councillor, Miguel Angel Blanco.

Mr Mayor Oreja has suggested a number of measures to corner HB, including using video cameras to record demonstrations; more aggressive investi-gating of links between HB and Eta and speeding up court actions against Eta suspects.

The Basque government has hanned an HB demonstration called in San Schastian tomorrow. HB has appealed against the decision but says it will re-

Israel warned over deaths in Lebanon

Robert Fisk Beirut

American, Lebanese, Israeli, Syrian and French delegates warned vesterday that further killings of civilians in southern Lebanon could "erode" the ceasefire agreed after last year's Israeli bombardment of southern Lebanon which left almost 200 Lebanese civilians dead.

Their alarm' followed the killing of three civilians by Israeli artillery fire over the previous four days and the wounding of a Lebanese civilian by a ha rocket fired by Hizbollah guerrillas - both the Israelis and the Hizbollah received the ceasefire committee's report with ill grace and warned of the consequences of further violations.

In the bours before the fivepower monitoring group met on Wednesday, the Hizbollah fired 37 mnrc Katyushas at Israeli positions, in retaliation for the killing of a Palestinian woman and her son by Israeli shells east nf Sidon. At least seven of the projectiles fell inside Israel but. - in a clear attempt to deflate the crisis - the Hizbollah made no claim to the rocket attacks and the Israelis said they could not find the point of impact of the Katyushas which had landed inside Israeli territory. The two Palestinians, it transpires, were inside their house oo a poultry farm oear the village of Barty when they were killed. The woman's husband, who worked for the UN's Palestinian relief agency, survived, along with the couple's daughter.

The ceasefire committee condemned as a clear truce violatioo the Israeli killing - by "fleshette" shells - of an elderly farmer at Aadchit al-Osair on Saturday, for which the Israeb delegate expressed "deep sorrow". The killing of the two Palestinians was a "possibly unintentional violation" because the Israelis said that their fire was in self-defence after an attack on their militia allies. The wounding of a Lebanese man in Marjayoun by a Katyusha was termed an "unintentional violation" and the landing of one Katyusha inside Israel also breached the April 1996 understanding.

With schoolmasterly impatience, the ceasefire committee urged restraint on both sides, adding that "combatants are responsible for the manner in which they conduct their firing missions", an odd reference to the fact that the ceasefire allows Israeli occupation troops and Hizbollah guerrillas to kill each other providing they do not fire from or towards civilians. Few in Lebanoo expect the truce to survive much longer. significant shorts

Reuters - Washington

AP - Phnom Penh

Model ZVC45, wms 5219.99 previously 5289.99, 5229.99

SAVE # £230 ON COOKERS UP TO 120 TO CHOOSE FROM IN STORE

SAVE 🕏 £160 ON LAUNDRY UP TO 80 TO CHOOSE FROM IN STORE

ADVICE

nd the best buys

SAVE £130 ON THIS DISHWASHER UP TO 20 TO CHOOSE FROM IN STORE

If you buy any product irom us, then within 14 days find the same offer on sale magazines such as the Got Housekeeping Institute to Independently test our pro ecopendently test our productions of the comment of we'll willingly refund the difference, PLUS 10% OF

CALL FREE ON 0500 425 425 FOR LOCAL STORE DETAILS

INTEREST FREE OPTION

AT YOUR LOCAL STORE THIS WEEKEND

Model 51AT15 was £299.99, lin-slore £279 99

SAVE 🖁 £50 ON HI-FI SYSTEMS UP TO 90 TO CHOOSE FROM IN STORE

VENTURER 3 DISC MUNTIPLAY CO MINI HE-FI

SAVE £90 ON THIS 4 GAME PACK UP TO 25 PLAYSTATION GAMES IN STORE SONY PlayStation PLUS 4 TOP TITLE GAMES 3" b4 CD-based games

SAVE £50 ON THIS MULTIMEDIA PC

A WIDE RANGE TO CHOOSE FROM IN STORE

CE Communidate Mile TimeDIA PC

I mai 166MHz Ponieum processor with MMS ** hethnology

164Mb EDD RAM © 256Mb cache memory © 25b hand 075 dhin

16 speed CD ROM dhie

16 be soundblesser compatible card © 30 graphics accolumnor with 2Mb EDD RAM

Connects directly to tolevision whethato, 10 collisions bittles worth card RAM

Car

Model P166 EVOLUTION

For added convenience of special Besides giving you was of mind it ofter 5 years vou don't make a dokn vou pervice is also available on book in tall. Ask in store for full details

Untouchable president India is to get its first "untouchable" president. KR Narayanan. 76, won 4,231 votes from state and federal politicians, while his nearest rival, former election commissioner TN Seshan, got just 240 votes, Mr Narayanan will be sworn-in on 25 July AP – New Delhi

Clinton names new top

Ending a search made more difficult by the turmoil over selected Army General Henry Shelton to be chairman of the military Joint Chiefs of Staff. Geoeral Shelton, a sex in the military. President Bill Clinton yesterday tough Green Beret paratrooper who led US forces in Hain, would be the third army man in a row to fill a job that usually rotates among the army, navy and air force. In announcing that he had decided to name the 55-year-old special forces commander to be the top US military officer. Mr Clinton said General Shelton brought "unique unconventional warfare. General Shelton's selection to succeed Army General John Shalikashvili at the end of September came five weeks after Air Force General withdrew from the running after a former adulterous

Joseph Ralston, vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs,

Hun Sen secures ceasefire Resistance to coup leader Hun Sen appeared to crumble vesterday as key countries prepared to accept his new met a delegation of regional foreign ministers and endorsed their efforts to mediate a settlemeot.

regime. After three days of negotiations, commanders loyal to Hun Sen and Prince Norodom Ranariddh agreed to a regional ceasefire in Poipet, near the Thai border.

Hun Sen urged King Norodom Sibanouk to return from Peking, where he is undergoing medical treatment, to preside over the elections. King Sihanouk, 74, yesterday perspective" to the job because of his expertise in military officer affair came to light.

BUY NOW PRY 6 MONTHS LATERY

DESIGNED FOR FAMILY LIFE

The unique design of the Mistral gives you an extra cubic foot of storage space, making it

TIOIPOINT 12.0 GROSS CU.FT

oulft gross fridge capacity 4.8 culft gross freezer capacit;

temperature • Fast freeze facility

SACHITE PRESCRIPTION

Flexible interior and deep door storage imodel 8595 POLAR "MISTRAL" was $729.99

4 freezer compartments

SALE XTRA

Unique design means large storage space
Set and forget temperature controls
Zoned cooling so food is at correct

FROST FREE FRIDGE FREEZER

£339.99

ideal for families

Professor George Dick

George Dick was a giant in the fields of virology, public health and medical education. However, there are many who feel that he was never fully recognised by the medical establishment.

He was born in Glasgow where his father the Rev David Dick's ministry included the infamous Gorbals slum. At 17 George was admitted to Edin-hurgh University School of Medicine, graduating in 1938 and joining the RAMC at the outbreak of the Second World War. In 1941 he met and married Brenda Cnok, and in 1942 was posted to Somalia, where he was in charge of pathologi-cal services, driving hundreds of miles through the desert in field lahnratory with his faithful dog Tabu. After the war Dick continued viral research in Uganda, the United States and England before accepting the Chair of Bacterinlogy at Queen's University, Belfast, in 1953. The work in Belfast was prodigious, including research into poliomyelitis, whooping cough, measles and smallpox.

In 1957 he probably saved the entire Irish population of budgerigars from extermination during a public health scare by proving that they could not be carriers of poliovirus. This apparent triviality endeared him to the Irish general public and helped enormously in generating goodwill far subsequent vaccine trials.

Amongst these was one tri-al which showed that a new oral polio vaccine was unsafe. By vigorously lobbying to prevent the large-scale use of this vaccine in the United Kingdom Dick undoubtedly prevented a huge disaster. This theme of the pursuit of truth and protection of the people runs right through

Dick's work. After witnessing the death of a child following smallpox vaccination, Dick (forearmed of course with the necessary data) began a campaign to stop the use of the vaccine in the United Kingdom, where the disease was only sporadic. It took years nf effort before his opinion was accepted, but in the late Sixties routine vaccination was stopped, first in the United States and then in Britain. Many children were thereby protected from death or disfigurement.

Multiple scierosis sufferers in the late Fifties also have much cause to thank George Dick. He was able in prevent the import of a "vaccine" against the disease, developed in the Soviet Union. li turned out to have been made from the rabies virus.

In 1966 this nomadic academic was appointed Bland-Sution Professor of Pathology at the Middlesex Hospital Medical School in London and Director of the Bland-Sutton Institute. Running the institute was a huge administrative challenge which Dick met with his usual energy. When at last be returned to research, it was Creutzfeld-Jacob Disease, a degenerative condition of the nervous system, and the rare Marburg virus which mainly occupied him.

Once again he found himself up against the Establishment, defending the claims of CID victims who had been given growth hormone treatment as an expert witness in legal cases in Britain and Australia. However, Dick never felt entirely comfortable with the London scene, especially with the proximity of Harley Street -The Strada" as he called it and in 1973 he left to become Postgraduate Dean for the South West Thames Regional Health Authority. This new departure was like a breath of fresh air for him. During this time he published Immunisation (1978; later reissued as Practical immunisation, 1986), immunology of Infectious Diseases (1979), and Health on Holiday and Other Travels (1982), all used by doctors and travellers worldwide. He always nurtured talent in the postgraduate students with encouragement and came down hard on sloppy thinking; nobody was in any doubt of where they stood with him.

As a lifelong champion of better library facilities, Dick was delighted to be hunoured with a Fellowship of the Library Association in 1990, and in 1992 he was made Hero of Public Health by Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. But he never received the honours he deserved in his own country.

In retirement Dick continued fund-raising, especially for research and medical education. He is co-author of a paper on the cause of multiple sclerosis to be published in the journal Brain next month.

He was a trenchant campaigner on many issues of public concern from nuclear weapons to light pollurion, from hospital closures to land mines. As a base for the criticism of establishment views Dick founded the Rowhook Medical Society, which meets at the family home in Sussex. Amongst the wide range of issues taken up by the RMS are refugee health, ter-minal care, NHS reforms and racial discrimination.

Latterly, as an amateur horticulturist, George Dick looked after the plants in his garden with the same dedication he gave to his humanitarian and George Williamson Auchinvole Dick, pathologist and virologist born Glasgow 14 August 1914; As-sistant Pathologist, Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh 1939-40; pathologist, RAMC 1940-46; pathologist, Colonial Medical Research Service 1946-51: Rockefeller Foundation Fellow, Rockefeller Institute, New York, and Johns Hopkins University 1947-48; Research Fellow School of Hygiene and Public Health, Johns Hopkins Universi-ty 1949-50; staff, Medical Re-search Council 1951-54; Professor of Microbiology, Queen's Univer-sity Belfast 1955-65; Director, Bland-Sutton Institute and School of Pathology: Middlesex Hospital Medical School, London University 1966-73. Bland-Sutton Professor of Pathology 1966-73, Professor of Pathology, Honorary Lecturer and Honorary Consultant Institute of Child Health 1973-81 (Emeritus); Assistant Director, British Postgraduate Medical Federation, and Postgraduate Dean. South West Thames Regional Health Authority 1973-81; married 1941 Brenda Cook (two sons, two daughters); died Midhurst, West Sussex 3 July 1997.

Len Pountney

Len Pountney was to men's hairdressing what Teasy Weasy Raymond was to ladies' and claimed to have invented the DA (duck's arse) hairstyle common to the Teddy Boys of the 1950s. One of his customers, Patrick Sheehan, recalls: "They were amazing times. Everyone in Middlesex wanted to go to Pountney's and It was always packed ont with guys from the West End. Men had never had to book before for haircuts and we would go in groups and then on to parties."

Pountney was an ebullient showman who took men's barbering into the world of quali-ty conffure, but his husiness acumen and ability to predictnew trends and develop them enabled him to mov into other areas. Beginning Michael Redfern with a barber shop in Hounslow, west London, that he purchased for £300 in 1947 (although he always hated the word "barber"), he created Britain's leading gentlemen's hair stylists, who later introduced hair transplanting and, some 25 years later, evolved into a cosmetic surgery hospital, the Pountney Clinic. He was born in Islington, north London, in 1913. He became an Amateur Boxing Association semi-finalist and Lundon diving champion and an example of his early energy can be seen in his boxing both as an amateur and, under an assumed name, simultaneously

as a professional in order to provide extras for his family. He served as an army physical training instructor during the Second World War and, inspired by an article about 18th-century wigmakers, purchased his first barber's shop in Hounslow on demohilisation.

He painted the shop red, black and gold and introduced jazz bands and rock-and-roll artistes to bemused but suppy customers. Free cocktails desire served on Caribbean evenings. The local army barracks and handsmen from Kneller Hall (the Royal School of Military Music at Twickenham) were induced to supply squaddies so that he could show the Army how short haircuts need not be demnralising for recruits. With a Belgian, Paul Rans, he founded the Interna Union of Masculine Coiffeurs in 1957 and produced shows and judged hairdressing competitions world-wide. Among his early clients were the boxer and actor Freddie Milks and the Great Train Rohbers.

Pountney had a great personal interest in disguise. Gerald Nabarro, Cilla Black, the Shah of Iran - even Howard Hughes - are said to have visited him for advice. Russell Harty was disguised for television and the journalist Denis Hart succumbed to his skills for the Daily Telegraph magazine, being turned into a mysterinus South American. Hart's own children did not recognise him.

Pountney became a close friend of the television compere Hughie Green and liked to move in show-husiness circles and keep his own customers entertained with stories of his exploits.

In 1958, following a visit to the United States, he started the Harley Street Halr Clinic, where he specialised in providing hair transplants for men, a technique to reduce the effects of haldness by taking healthy plugs of hair from the back and sides of the head and planting them into the bald areas. Inspired by the financial success of the clinic he enlarged his salon in Hounslow and recruited leading surgeons to provide the essential skills. During the 1960s his face could be seen smiling at passengers from the walls of almost every London Underground station. A keen royalist, Pountney offered his services to the Royal Family in 1975. He felt that the Duke of Edinburgh could improve his image and regain youthfulness with hair transplants. He received a reply from Buckingham Palace: "The Duke of Edinburgh has asked me to thank you far your letter, the contents of which have been noted." In 1978 he published a book, Your Hair: the startling facts, in which he introduced readers to his theory that a diet of fruit and fish combined with exercise could encourage hair growth. He visited Georgia, a country noted for the longevity and ex treme hairiness of its peasants, where he found proof of his theories. He and his son Roy adopted the diets he hrought back and both their heads. carried luxuriant growth.

Observing the success of cosmetic surgery in the US, Pountney brought commercially advertised surgery to England for the first time. The backbone of his business had always been hairdressing, but he converted his salon into a specialist clinic for this venture. He again offered his services to the Palace: I was concerned about .Charles's ears and thought he could he improved greatly danies never to generapid After all he was always our provide despite higher inflation. After all he was always and I think the improvement would have given him greater fidence with girls."

Following Pountney's retirement in 1975 he still visited his clinic weekly to ensure that standards had not slipped. He took an active role in the design and construction of his new cosmetic surgery biospital in 1986 and was continually finding new ways to promote the husiness.

Both his sons. Alec and Roy, were champion hairdressers. and trichologists.

David Butler

Leonard Pourumey, hairdresser. born London 6 February 1913; married 1933 Frances Hoyles (one son, and one son deceased); died Bournemouth, Dorset I July 1997. Wiles: maverick fiberal

Professor Peter Wiles

Peter Wiles was best known for his work on Soviet economics, a branch which once flourished, but is now quite dead. His The Political Economy of Communism, published in 1962, was an early treatment of this complex subject and a standard reference for many years.

But Wiles was more than a Sovietological economist, despire the title he assumed on his retirement from his Chair at the London School of Economics and the School of Slavonic and Eastern European Studies which he held for 20 years, from 1965 to 1985. He was a trenchant applied economist in the anti-neoclassical mould, a liberal who warned of the success of the command economy but was wary of laissez-faire. In his long career as an economist at Oxford and in London, he fought against the formalisation of economics, putting his faith in facts rather than algebra or even geometry.

After Winchester and Oxford, he spent the Second World War in the intelligence side of the Royal Artillery Corps and was mentioned twice in dispatches. He was elected a Fellow of All Souls and then spent 12 years as a Fellow of New College, Oxford, which he left in 1960 to take up a Professorship in Brandeis Univer-sity in Massachusetts. But he came back to the UK upon taking up his chair in Russian Economics and Social Studies at London University. His main teaching was at the LSE but he always insisted that be was not just an LSE Professor, having his post in the School of Slavonic and Eastern European Studies as well.

At Oxford, he was a member of the Oxford Liberal Group and contributed in 1962 to Radical Alternatives along with Mark Bonham Carter (later Lord Bonham-Carter) and Walter Eltis. In his contribution to this volume, "The Economy and the Cold War", as in his later work, he warned that despite inefficiencies in allocation of resources the command system was capable of achieving rapid and sustained growth and that capitalist economics had to match this if a liberal society was to survive. He was, however, no friend of the free market order. He trusted neither the economic theory of resource allocation the necessity of the necessity of the many economics of the left he preferred

The area of Soviet economics was growing in the 1960s and Peter Wiles was undoubtedly ng British figure in this field. But, unlike many practitioners who got lost in the minutiae uf Soviet economic administration, he sought to build up a more general ap-proach which would help to compare the economic performance of different systems. This was the new discipline of Comparative Economic Systems in which his Economic Institutions Compared, published in 1977, stands as a significant landmark.

Control of the Land

· : 15 6 1

Tope must

1 3-1 - 1 - 1 - 1 - 1

Carlo Carlo Carlo

1 1 mm & 1000

The first of the state of the said

The second of the Strage

Bras Basilia (1988)

Committee of the season

A STATE OF THE STATE OF

Commence of the

The second section

From many

Francisco Street

· 在下, 公司的 、 643000

A S. T. W. S. Sample Conf.

Thirty or was also fictional continue

Property of the party

german and the street of 計 化磁压电流电

Promise of Charge

Part of the part o

0.00

 $S(g) = \{\{g\} = \{g_{1}, g_{2}^{\bullet}\}\}$

10 to 10 to

- 1 · ·

W-10 - 10 - 10 4

:- .

The state of

 $(\gamma + (1), \gamma + (1))$

The Water of

A STATE OF THE STA

The last section with Manage .

 $\ldots N^{K^{K+M}}$

1831

The second second

 $e^{2\pi i x} \in I_{k_0} = 0$

***

Till and the state of the

Maria Salaharan

A San San San San

. . . .

James Carlotter

If you reject static allocation theory of neoclassical economics as Wiles did and do not a priori judge the free market system to be best, how do you estimate the performance of economic systems? How do you weigh and combine growth, full employment, equity, price stability, alienann. compatibility with anenanna, companiously with freedom along with microcconomic optimality? This is the question he took up in Economic Institutions Compared. The question is not easy to answer and despite the recent swing in favour of the static market criteria has not been satisfactorily answered yet.

wiles also took a strong view (indeed, any view he took was held strongly, if at all) that the inflation of the 1970s was the result of institutions' wage bargaining. In this he was criticised the Monetarists as well as the Marxists, hut he was a daughty controversialist. He carried on his methodological hattles with neoclassical economics in a collection he edited (with Guy Routh) provocatively titled Economics in Disarray (1985).

As in his early hut sadly neglected economics text Price, Cost and Output (1962), he waged his hattle at the microeconnmic level as well as at nther levels. He, like nthers of his contemporaries, Henry Phelps Brown and the Nobel Laureate Wassily Lenntief, wanted his economics to be firmly grounded in fact, not pure theories.

Peter Wiles will be remembered for his style, which was provocative but full of fun. He was helpful to his students while being a stern taskmaster. The demise of Sovietnlogy would not have worried him in the slightest, but the triumph of the free market would. In this, as in many other things, he was a maverick liberal who cared as much about equality as he did about freedom.

Meghnad Desai

Peter John de la Fosse Wiles, economist: born 25 November 1919; Fellow, All Souls College, Oxford 1947-48; Fellow, New College, Oxford 1948-60; Professor, Brandeis University 1960-63; Research Associate, Institutet för Internationell Ekonomi, Stockholm 1963-64: Professor of Russian Social and Economic Studies, London University 1965-85 (Emeritus Professor of Sovietological Economics); FBA 1990; books include The Political Economy of Communism 1962, Communist International Economics 1968. Economic fastitutions Compared 1977, Die Parallelwirtschaft 1981; married 1945 Elizabeth Coppin (one son, two daughters; marriage dissolved 1960), 1960 Carolyn Stedman; died London 14 July 1997.

The Rev Dr Norman Pittenger

Those 90 books . . . Every time l heard Norman Pittenger de-scribe himself as "the Barbara Cartland of theology" the phrase grated on my ears, writes Michael Halls [further to the ohituary by Andrew Brown, 28 June]. Not only because it was so misleading, but because the self-mockery was painfully, transparently thin. The phrase was a defence mechanism, and it saddened his friends that he should feel the need of it. Norman was in fact a pastoral moralist of extraordinary ef-evaluated himself not against the good that he did, nor against other workers in his own field, but, tragically, against a quite moral thenlogians. He never he cared about, rather than different species, academic took the measure of all the good fectiveness and insight, but he that he had done. I was never sure that he truly believed that he had done arty.

His real quality was evident to anyone who took the trouble to make him talk about things

tion; and those 90 books were bought and read as tracts for the times. Tens of thousands of people who grew up under the cold shadow of modern Christianity will hope that for Norman Pittenger, at least, there is an afterlife: one where he found waiting for him a comfortable Chair in Moral and Pastnral Theology, academic bonours, genuine and disinterested love (of course), and an audience in whose respect, gratitude and af-fection be could - at last - find it possible to have faith. ...

Births. Marriages & Deaths

MARRIAGES

CURTIS/GOLLAWITZER: In Regens-burg, Germany, on 10 July 1997, Susanna, younger daughter of Ann and Adam Curtis, Glasgow, to Horst, elder som of Gerda and Ernst Gollwitzer, Amberg.

DEATHS

DEATHS

BALLARD: On 16 July 1947, Chifford Frederick, Emeritus Professor in Orthodoutics. University of London, pasted seasy after a short illness, aged 87. Dearly lowed hurband of Muriel and father of Roger and fill. Funeral service at Salisbury Crematorium on Friday 25 July 1997 at 2,20pm. Family flowers only but donations if desired for Alzheimer's Disease Society, coo LN. Newman Ltd. Griffin House. 55 Winchester Street, Salisbury, Wilts.

bury. Wilts. outy, whis.

PALFFA: Liz, belowed and loving mother of Ali and Georgie, utile of Pista, sister of Caroline, Kate and Rose, god-mother of Kristina, Nell and Nen, and mother of Kristina, Nell and Nen, and a wonderful friend to so many whom she loved. Surrounded by love she died in peace, freed from pain, early on 14 July, May she be forever in joy. Funeral at Greatham, 12 noon on 24 July. Picuic after. Donations to Professor Raw Powles' Mycloma Fund at the Royal Marsden or in multiple scienosis research. Flowers to Greatham Manor, near Pulborough. West Susser.

For Gazette BIKTHS, MARRIAGES & DEATHS, telephone 0171-293 201 L

Birthdays

Mr Kenneth Armitage, sculptor, 81: Lady Bingley. Research Social Work-er, City Corporation, 72; Mr Edward Bond, playwright, 63; Mr Richard Branson, founder and chairman, Virgin Group, 47; Mr Dave Cash, disc jockey, 55; Mr Christopher Daykin, Government Actuary, 49; Mr Hubert Doggart, cricket historian, 72; Sir William Doughty, domain, 72; William Doughty, deputy chairman, Britannia Refined Metals, 72; Viscount Esher, former Rector, Royal College of Art, 84; Mr Nick Faldo, golfer, 40; Mr John Fraser, former chairman and chief executive, Ciba-Geigy, 66; Senator John Glenn, for-mer astronaut. 76; Mr David Hemery, athlete, 53; Miss Elizabeth Jennings, poet, 71; Mr Dennis Lillee, cricketer, 48; Mr Nelson Mandela, President of South Africa, 79; Mr Anthony Miles, publisher, 67; Mr Richard Pasco, actor, 7t; Sir Brooks Richards, former diplomat, 79; Sir Robert Speed QC, former Counsel to the Speaker, 92; Dr Martin

> ROYAL ENGAGEMENTS ROYAL ENGAGENENTS
> The Queen and The Duhe of Editaburgh Patron, visits the rowhite. The Duhe of Editaburgh, Patron, visits the Reval Yorkshare Tucht Cleib, Bridington, Estr Yorkshare. The Queen Musther visits Reyal Air Force Manuston, Kent, and unwells the Thurset Airmond Memorial Statue. The Duhe of Versient Airmond of Manusch Statue. The Duhe of Control of the Control of Control of Control of the Control of

Stephen, High Master, Manchester Grammar School, 48; Professor Hugh

Stephenson, journalist, 59; Sir Jamie Stormonth Darling, former Director, National Trust for Scotland, 79; Mrs

Mary Stott, journalist, 90; Professor Steven Webb MP, 32; Dr Basil Wee-don, former Vice-Chancellor, Not-tingham University, 74; Mr Yevgeny tushenko, poet, 64.

Anniversaries

Births: Dr William Gilbert Grace, cricketer, 1848. Deaths: Francesco Petrarca (Petrarch), poet and scholar, 1374. On this day: at Chapquiddick, Massachusetts, a car driven by Senator Edward Kennedy plunged off a narrow bridge, and a passenger, Mary Jo Kopechne, was drowned, 1969. Today is the Feas Day of St Arnoul or Arnulf of Metz. St Bruno of Segni, St Frederick of Utrecht and St Pambo.

Synagogue services

Details of synagogue services to be held tomorrow may be obtained by telephoning the following. Sabbath begins in London at 20.54pm. Degins in Louisin at 2012-1911.
United Synapoguer, 0181-343-3939, Federation of Synapoguer, 0181-302-2263, Union of Liberal and Progressive Synapoguer, 0171-530-1663, Reform Synapoguer of Great Britain 0181-349-4731, Sanakah and Pertuguere Jews Congregation: 0171-229-2573, New London Synapoguer (Masarth; 0171-328 1026.

Bircham Newton, King's Lynn, Norfolk. The Duckess of Kent tokes the Sainte at the afternoon performance of the Royal Tournments, Earth Court, London SWS, Princers Alexandre, Predictar, attends the celebration of the teath assistancy of St Matthew's Challen's Fend for Ebbaphs at St Albus the Marry, London ECI, and ticks the Salate at the evening performance of the Royal Tournancement. of the Royal Tournament.

Changing of the Guard
The Household Cavalry Mounted Region mounts the Outer's Life Guard at Horse GuaHam, Ist Battalion Irish Central mounts in Outer's Sound, at Backingham Paince, H.30t twend provided by the Coldstream Guards.

Jurisdiction on appeal against refusal to grant asylum Regina v Secretary of State for the Home Department and anor, ex parte Robinson; Court of Appeal (Lord Woolf, Master of the Rolls, Lord Justice Potter and Lord Justice Brooke) 11 July 1997

The Immigration Appeal Trihunal had jurisdiction to consider a question arising under the "internal flight alternative" on an appeal under section 8 of the Asylum and Immigration Appeals Act 1993 against the refusal of leave to enter the United Kingdom.

The Court of Appeal dismissed the applicant's application for judicial review of the decision of the Immigration Appeal Tribunal to refuse leave to appeal against the refusal nf his asylum application.

The applicant was a Sri Lankan Tamil. The Special Adjudicator had held that the mere fact of his past connection with the Tamil Tigers would not, ipso facto, lead to a risk or persecution, and that although he could not reasonably be expected to return to an area of Sri Lanka controlled by the Tamil Tigers he would not be at particular or unusual risk if returned to Columbo.

Nicholas Blake QC and Raza Husain (Nathan & Co) for the applicant; David Pannick QC and Alison Fos-ter (Treasury Solicitor) for the Home Secretary: Mark Shaw (Treasury Solicitor) for the Immigration Appeal

Lord Woolf MR handed down

the judgment of the court, which had been primarily prepared by Brooke LJ. The appeal raised three points of general importance: the scope of what was often called "the internal flight alternative", which was linked with the definitinn of "refugee" in the 1951 Geneva Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, as amended by the 1967 Protocol; whether the appellate authanties bandling appeals under the Asylum and Immigration Appeals Act 1993 had jurisdiction to consider issues relating to the internal flight alternative; and the scope of the duty, if any, on the Immigration Appeal Tribunal to consider issues which were not apparent on the face of a Natice of Appeal when it decided whether to grant leave to appeal from a Special Adjudicator.

LAW REPORT 18 July 1997

Asylum and Immigration Appeals Act 1993. The Immigration Appeal Tribunal had a Special Adjudicator.

It had been accepted by counsel for the Home Secretary that it was appropriate to in-terpret the country's obligations under the Convention by reference to paragraph 91 of the Handbook on Procedures and Criteria for Determining Refugee Status, published in 1979 by the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.

In those circumstances, if a question arose whether an applicant for asylum might reasonably live in another part of his home country, where he had no fear of persecution, the answer to that question went directly to the issue whether he should be properly treated as a "refugee" within the meaning of the Convention.

The reason why that was important in the present context was that the jurisdiction of the appellate authorities in asylum cases was derived exclusively from section S(1) of the concluded in three cases decided between February 1995 and December 1996 that they had no jurisdiction to consider a question arising under the internal flight alternative because they did not believe that it impinged on this country's nhligations under the Convention.

ft had been assumed in two recent cases in the Court of Appeal, without hearing argument, that those issues could be considered nn a section 8 appeal: see Secretary of State for the Home Department v Ikhlaq (unreported, 16 April 1997) and R v Immigration Appeal Tribunal, ex p Sivanentheran (unreported, 21 May 1997). The assumption on which those two cases acted was correct in

The Home Secretary and the appellate authorities would do well in future to adopt the approach that where it appeared that persecution was confined to a specific part of a country's territory the deci-sion maker should ask whether the claimant could find effective protection in another part of his own territory to which he or she might reasonably be expected to move. The appoilate anthorities were not limited in their consideration of the facts by the arguments actually advanced by the asylum seeker or his representative. They were not required, however, to engage in a search for new points, and only should only take account of a point which had a strong prospect of success if argued.

Applying those principles tu the present case, although it was clear that living in Colombo still created problems for Tamils from the north, it was far from being an obvious case of Columba not being a safe haven or internal flight alternative, and the Tribunai had not erred in law in failing to recognise that the special adjudicator had not expressly dealt with it as such. The application was therefore

Kate O'Hanlon, Barrister

A favourable answer to the Camilla Question

hould we care about Camilla? It is now plain as day that she and the Prince of Wales want to get married and are running a massive public relations operation to try to influence opinion in her favour. This is not, perhaps, as important for the future of the British Constitution as yesterday's decision by the Cabinet to hold the 1999 European elections on a proportional system. If two divorcees want to marry, it is difficult to follow the train of connections which make any difference to the lives of the rest of us, whereas the lapping of the tide of fair voting around the Gothic pillars of the Palace of Westminster could presage a democratic revolution. But the two issues are connected. This is not to argue, as some Conservatives do, that the Constitution is a finely balanced and complex structure that will collapse if any part of it is tampered with. Nor is it right to argue, as republicans do, that our archaic status as "subjects" rather than "citizens" inhibits democracy, and that electing a head of state would automatically free the people from the yoke of ancient superstition.

Part of the significance of the Camilla Campaign is that it reveals the extent to which we now have a democratic monarchy. Prince Charles realises that he can only get what he wants if the British poblic allow him to. This is an imperfect democratisation, to be sure, with the main tests of public opinion being newspaper polls, but it is no bad thing that he is forced to take his case to the people. If Charles is to win sympathy and support, however, he will have to go further and, to borrow from the language of the new government, offer us a "people's mooarchy". He has already convened a modern-day witan to advise him on the options. The manifesto it came up with included a cut in the list of official royals, allowing daughters to succeed to the throne on the same terms as sons, and cutting the link with the Church of England. These three proposals are welcome, although only the first can be acted on while the present Queen is alive.

The issue the witan dodged was money - taxpayers' money, to he more precise. A scheme was floated by the Prince's spin doctors for him to be given a chunk of land and property from the Crown Estate. The scaleddown Royal Family could then be supported on the income it generated, rather than having to go cap-in-hand to an increasingly resentful House of Commons every 10 years. This would he unsatisfactory, simply reversing the original transfer of the Crown Estate in return for the Civil List. And it would be a step in the wrong direction, because a people's monarchy should be more, not less, accountable to the people through their elected representatives. If the monarch needs a public subsidy, the case for it should be made, regularly, in the House of Commons (and the Crown Estate belongs to the nation, not to the Royal Family as individuals).

ONE CANADA SQUARE CANARY WHARF LONDON EM 6DL TELEPHONE 0171-293 2000 / 0171-345 2000 FAX 0171-293 3405 / 0171-345 2435

The hattle for public approval brings Prince Charles squarely into the political bear-pit. It is another measure of the Royal Family's deference to democracy that the Prince of Wales has been doing the rounds of the new government in the hope that some of the New Labour magic will rub off on him. All that old hocus-pocus about the monarch's role being to advise and warn was never very true - Stanley Baldwin had to novise Edward VIII about the state of public opinion in 1936 - hut now it has been fully reversed. Because Tony Blair is regarded not only as the king of public opinion, but also as having a constitutional obligation to advise Charles what to do, the Camilla Question presents the Prime Minister with a tricky problem. Perhaps this will be one of the first issues to be put to the 5,000-strong People's Panel, when the Government sets it up.

Tricky, yes - hut the outline of the advice which should be given to Charles and Camilla is simpler than it might seem at first glance. Of course they can marry, in which case she would have to be called Queen. But they would have to do so on the same basis as everyone else. It is neither possible nor desirable that the Royal Family should somehow exemplify a "better" morality than most of the rest of us can aspire to. If we accept that Tom, Dick and Harriet can split up and start new families, then we can accept it for Charles, Diana and Camilla. But their part of the deal is that they scale down their pretensions. We need a more modest monarchy, more visibly in touch with popular values, making fewer and better-justified demands on the public purse.

What sends some clerics and traditionalists running around in everdecreasing circles is the prospect of hreaking the link between church and state. Apart from noting a quaint symmetry between the birth of the Church of England in one royal divorce-and-remarriage, and its death in another four centuries later, this is not worth dwelling on. Anyone who has failed to notice that Anglicanism is in no meaningful sense the state religion is supremely unqualified to advise Charles on anything. Disestablishment will solve most of the problems surrounding the remarriage

So the question of what to do with Camilla (many happy returns for vesterday, by the way) does not have much to do with the price of milk, or with jobs, education and health. But if the price of her rehabilitation is bringing the monarchy closer to the people, then it is a price worth paying. And if it is part of a thoroughgoing modernisation of our democracy, in which power indeed lies in accountable hands, then so much the

'Literature', at a cinema near you

The mystery of the record £750,000 advance for three novels from an unpublished author has been solved. we report today. It turns out that Keri Beevis's manuscripts have been beevis's manuscripts have been bought up as screenplays, with the Hollywood end of the deal close to being signed. Publishing is coming closer to being simply an arm of the film industry. Parents will already know; Rudyard Kipling's original hundred by the company of the comp gle Book is a museum piece and most homes are more likely to have the Disney cartoon book uf the film than a copy of the original. Instead of "now a major film" on books, films will soon carry the legend: "Now a minor book."

- LETTERS TO THE EDITOR -

OH! HOW PRESPONSIBLE .... SOMEONE'S BEEN SHAKING THE THING UP /

Europe must fight US air threat

(MDC) represents a huge concentration of market power and technical expertise. Turnover for the new Boeing Corporation is estimated at £48bn. Europe has been right to resist this merger because of the threat to the European aerospace industry. US justifications for the merger argue that it is a question of national security. MDC is presented as a vital defence asset which has been in financial difficulty and is secured by the takeover, But Boeing/MDC together will have nearly 90 per cent of sircraft in service on the world's airlines. This has enormous effects regarding maintenance, servicing and regulation. MDC also has niche markets where Boeing is absent and a presence in regions where Boeing diplomacy has not borne fruit. Clearly the merger has serious consequences

The Pentagon has long provided vast resources for research and development which benefit commercial manufacturers. The US is a monopoly provider of security to countries it defines as friendly. High technology defence assets are a diplomatic tool and can be used to smooth or even guarantee commercial orders. Here Europe's weakness as a provider of security is a key factor and leaders should take note.

will be awesome. Boeing will have leading products in civil aeronautics, to offer the Pentagon unrivalled systems integration capabilities. The merger will create a Leviathan not subject to market constraints.

The merger increases pressure on Airbus and makes greater support imperative. The 1992 Bilateral Agreement is iniquitous and should be scrapped. Restrictions on indirect support in the US cannot be policed. Everyone knows the US industry receives massive support from Nasa, and the Department of Defense, but it is difficult to quantify.

to be threatened then who has the most to lose? Europe must beware of decisions. Europe must substantially increase the budget for aeronautics R&D. A blueprint should be drawn up for rationalisation of the European aerospace industry. If Brussels cannot do this it should be done intergovernmentally by the key aerospace countries. Europe needs to realise the scale of the US threat and to decide on the actions necessary to secure its own acrospace future. By the end of the century it will be too late. Professor PHILIP LAWRENCE Director, Aerospace Research Group

Bristol DT DEREK BRADDON Associate Director. Centre for Social and Economic Research, UNVE, Bristol DT ANDERS HANSSON Senior Science Consultant, Reaction Engines Ltd, UK Dr VITTORIO FIORINI Director, Registro Acronautico Italiano Professor DIETER SCHMITT Department of Aeronautical

Engineering, Technical University of HORSTPREM Technology Consultant, Ludwig Bölkow Foundation, Munich Senior Fellow, Research Univin Defence Economics, UNE, Bristol PAUL DOWDALL

Sir: The proposed merger between Boeing and McDonnell Douglas

on the commercial side.

The market power of Boeing/MDC defence and space. Boeing will be able

We should bear in mind that Europe is in substantial deficit with the US in aerospace trade. If a trade war is overestimating US power.

If the merger goes ahead the EU should not be afraid to take tough

Two major pieces of legislation restricting handguns in less than a year can perhaps be excused by a change of government. Three separate shots at it in a year is simply bad government.
MATTHEW TAYLOR MP (Truro and St Austell, Lib Dem) University of the West of England House of Commons London SW1

Sir: I wonder why the Home Office wants to "look at what other firearms controls are needed to safeguard the public". The Home Office minister Alun Michael gives no indication that the current legislation and administrative practice is in any way deficient. In the absence of any evidence to indicate there is a problem, the setting up of a review will look less like a concern for public safety and more like an attack on legal gun ownership fur ideological reasons. The great raft of firearms law that is already on the statute books

Yet another curb

Sir: Alun Michael, Minister of State at the Home Office, says the Government is going to look again at all gun controls once the ban on handguns is completed ("Purge on rifles and shotguns", 17 July).

If the Government is about to announce a new round of firearms restrictions, this time on rifles, shotguns and airguns, it should say so now. Many former legitimate handgun owners are now replacing these with legitimate alternatives, either for sport or for pest control

Joexpected further restrictions will be unfair on those involved - and place an even larger compensation burden on the on firearms

provides effective remedies against those who misuse any firearms, including air weapons. Rather than imposing further restrictions, the police and the courts must operate the criminal justice system in an efficient manner. Young people are already heavily controlled when it comes to the possession of firearms. No evidence has been advanced to suggest that these restrictions are in any way nadecuate.

Whilst the number of shotgun certificates has fallen by over 25 per cent since 1989, armed crime has risen dramatically during the same period. This is the real problem that the police and Home Office ought to be addressing.
WILLIAM HARRIMAN Marford, Clwyd

'Red plot' just a signals mix-up

Sir. In citing "mid-1943" as the time when British liaisoo officers with Mihailovic's Chetniks in Scrbia began to think that Specia Operations Executive (SOE) Cairo moles must be sabotaging their telegrams, Aleksa Gavrilovic (Letters, 11 July) evidently did not know about the cipher crisis which hit SOE just at that time. It affected all of us in the Balkans, as the number of missions expanded more quickly than anyone had foreseen.

Staff shortages mainly affected the cipher office, which was fast approaching gridlock, pending the arrival of additional trained staff heing rushed from Britain. Many of our more senior liaisoo officers in the field, familiar with convectional army procedures and radio octworks, could not understand that clandestine communications from enemy territory had to be organised along completely different lines. Unfamiliar with all the rechnical problems involved, some officers, perhaps not surprisingly, were inclined to attribute the delays to sabotage.

We in Signals iovestigated some of the worst cases at great length. Of course some mistakes were made. But I oever came across any examples of culpable oegligence, let alone deliberate HWKING

Law fails the servants of God

Argyll

Sir: Apart from Fr Nicolson (letter, 15 July), I'm sure I'm not the only Anglican priest who feels very concerned at the Court of Appeal's refusal to allow Fr Alex Coker to pursue his case for unfair dismissal (report, 12 July). Lord Justice Staughton's remark on the impossibility of serving documents on God is silly as well as insensitive. I am not in a position to argue the rights and wrongs of Fr Coker's case. Maybe justice was done by the bishop, but it has not been seen | Transport's latest review of the

to be done; maybe injustice has been done, but we shall never know. I certainly think the employment protection law should be changed to include all licensed Anglican clergy, because as things stand hishops wield unaccountable power over them, sometimes resulting in sackings, sometimes being moved elsewhere for reasons which will not stand up to close scrutiny. Can the Church be content with a lower standard of personnel management than that enacted in the law of the land? If a hishop claims the right to fire a priest on the grounds that God is his employer, theo what right has the bishop to hire a priest? Fr JOHN YOUNG

Policy on the road to collapse

Sir: It is impossible to square a government policy of traffic restraint with plans to continue large-scale road-building. In opposition, the Labour Party were adamantly against "predict and provide", recognising that traffic congestion could be solved only through a modal shift away from the car. Now it seems that all that has changed.

If your article "Green hlow as road schemes get go-ahead" (16 July) is correct, we have a collapse of government transport policy on our hands. The Department of country's remaining road schemes was expected to confirm that latent demand for road space would overwhelm any attempt to provide more of it. The Midlands and the South-east are the most congested parts of the country. But it is precisely in these areas that latent demand is at its highest, which is why funding for local road-huilding has now switched to public transport improvements, Those of us working and living in highly congested areas were well aware of the oeed to ration car use. A national travel awareness campaign, Travelwise, is now flourishing in 50 local authorities around the country, and local Agenda 21 groups are taking on the important issue of traffic reduction as part of the UK's Rio commitment.

I sincerely hope that next week's announcement will contain no surprise and that we can alt continue to support a government which will not make the mistakes of the previous administration. MATT BEALE-COLLINS London SE24

Cash in

Sir: Further to your recent correspondence on delays in clearing cheques, the simplest method to stup the bank from messing around with one's account would be actually to visit your bank. withdraw cash from your account and then hand in cash to the required account to be credited. Not only would your withdrawal be noted at once but the second account would also be credited at once, not with five days' delay. H W BAKER Tunbridge Wells, Kent

Unjust bar on older workers

Sir: There are thousands of older unemployed people in Britain who are desperate to work at almost any job and almost any wage but who are turned down for employment time after time because they are considered too old ("Across the Atlantic: grey power is the US secret weapon", 9 July).

In a recent survey, about 13 per cent of older people had been openly turned down for jobs because they were "too old". A further 8 per cent were turned down because they were "overqualified". But many other employers, questioned by would-be workers about the reasons for their rejection, admitted that applicants were automatically disqualified by being in their forties or fifties.

Various ways of helping mature people back to work have been propounded. Most never get off the ground, and those that do totter along shakily from year to year because they need money for essentials, such as a roof over their heads, electricity, telephones and stationery. Not vast sums. Not the £6.000m it is costing the country to keep over-45-year-olds on benefits every year. Not the £3hn the Government proposes tu put into welfare-to-work for a relatively few under-25-year-olds. Unfortunately the two ubvious sources for such funding, the Employment Service and the Training and Enterprise Councils, are for the most part unwilling to find even these modest

Should "delayered" accountants and engineers, "downsized" marketing meo and secretaries. "redundant" salesmen, "failed" entrepreneurs and "early retired" leachers and hank managers hang around on street corners, drinking from cans and frightening old ladies? Should they put bricks through shop windows in moments of frustration? Should they shout and swear and threaten? Should even mure of them commit suicide than already do? Is this an essential step to work?

No one expects the Government o solve the problem of mature memployment overnight, but hope could be restored if, unlike its predecessor, it could persuade the Employment Service and the TECs to support organisations working for this cause.
JULIA C EVANS Brecon, Powys

Backing Blair

Sir: You are in error in reporting t30 June, 12 July) that National Labour Students have called for a postponement of the "Party into Power" process, Labour Students are wholehearted supporters of the new Labour Party having the structures to meet the challenges and opportunities of government. Labour must continue to modernise and modernise without

MICHAEL DUGHER National Chair Labour Students London SE17

Ducks' day out

Sir: Any self-respecting duck knows that families of 17 ducklings don't exist - especially not one-parent families (photugraph, 16 July). Clearly your clever photographer snapped a school outing, teacher in front, on a Downing Street study group excursion. Quack! KARLE RUGE

Post letters to Letters to the Editor, and include a daytime telephone number. Fax: 0171-293 2056; e-mail: letters@independent.co.uk. E-mail correspondents are asked to give a postal address. Letters may be edited for length and clarity. We regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters.

In his new report, Sir David Ramsbotham, the Chief Inspector of Prisons, condemns the treatment of female prisoners. Jojo Moves talks to inmates about the price they pay for their crimes and wonders whether their imprisonment does not often impose higher costs than benefits

Double stigma for women in jail door. On a visit to Winchester, I had been sitting on a prison bed, making the most of an opportunity to talk to inmates, when a woman appeared at the door. "You do realise you're locked io, don't you?" she said. "I don't think they know you're still here."

I left the room, and walked to the locked grille, trying to look less unsettled than I felt. Through the hars was a shiny, empty corridor. Behind me was the cacophony of noise that comes when 11 incarcerated women make the most of "free association".

"It's all right," said the woman. "Look, you can huzz them. They'll come and get Aliya was not so lucky. She sat on her bed by the window, under the posters of George Clooney and photographs of her 16-year-old son. "I lost my house to the second week on remand. In fact, I've lost everything, I didn't think I was going down, so I badn't even takeo aoything round my mum's.

It is a simple truth, oft repeated by authorities and prisocers alike, that womeo in prison have a lot more to lose than men. Since changes in housing henefit rules in 1995, most of them lose their homes, being unable to pay the rent. They lose their children: only 32 per cent are looked after by fathers or grandmothers. The one prisoner remarks wryly); female offender.

Yet, in the past four years, there has been a 76 per cent increase in the number of women imprisoned. These are far cry from some of the oot always the violent women of popular myth (in fact, violent crimes by women dropped by 16 per cent in the same period). Asked by the Ramsbotham report what bad led to their imprisonment, out of 24 possible categories nearly a third of to recommend that there inmates surveyed ticked

"t is an unnerving feeling Then the Social called me and to find yourself on the wrong side of the prison my furniture."

"Alcohol/drugs", while 18 per prison". Winchester's "hest cent named "Need for mooey, practice" is far from the or debt". To hear their stories "serious inadequacies in the is to wonder how the monetary cost - and the social cost - of putting these women in jail balances any benefit. Aliya's oew home is the women's annexe at Winchester Prison. She shares it with 84 other women, many of whom have been there since it was opened in 1995 as part of the prison service's attempts to vast majority of women are accommodate the increase. It is not bad, she says. The women have painted it pink, and the carefully tended prison garden and when they come out they have to contend with the "double stigma" of being a next door. The signs requesting women "not to use the floor as an ashtray - it kills the cockroaches" are apparently a joke. Winchester is, however, a women's units identified in the Ramsbotham report, such as Low Newton, whose facilities "are not sufficient to meet the oeeds of unsentenced women prisoners"; or Risley, whose "oogoing problems ... lead us should be an alternative local overall organisation and management of prisons for womeo this country".

It's like a week in a shopping centre, here. It's better than Holloway, anyway. That's a hell-hole. When I first went in I was in such a state they gave me valium, kept me valiumed np," says Aliya, adding: "It might have been a good thing."
The Independent was told that there would be no press access to Holloway.

At Winchester, the inmates have an unusual degree of freedom. They are allowed access to each other's rooms even when their landing is locked. and most of them take education or gym classes on a daily hasis. They write endless letters to cope with confinement. Some, such as Aliya, correspond daily with male prisoners, as "they understand how important letters are". The staff, they say, "are all right. They come in every morning; bang on the windows to make sure we baveo't looscoed the panes. It's quite funny," says Aliya. Her mommate, Wendy, says that they are not allowed to put posters on the outside wall, since the film The Showshank Redemption showed an inmate digging an escape hole behind his poster.

Like Aliya, Wendy, 39, is a first-time offender, serving four years related to drugs import-ing. According to the Rams-botham report, 45 per cent of female prisoners have no previous convictions, and 70 per cent have not been in prisoo

"I was stupid, because I had a good job," says Weody. "I just waoted to provide for my famlems, and I was providing here there and everywhere. They offered me more mooey than I could earn in a year ... " She tails off, embarrassed. She asks me not to use her full name; some of her family still believe she is working abroad.

Ask any of the women what are the hardest things about prison, and they say the same: being separated from their fam-ilies; their guilt at having left their children; and having dis-

6 According to prison staff. foster parents are often judgemental about the women's crimes, and won't bring children to visit 🤊 appointed their parents. Wendy has two girls, aged 24 and 11, and a six-year-old grandson. "My mum's taking care of them. That makes a lot of difference; my eldest girl could have gone the other way at one point. My partner? He isn't around any more." How loog did he wait for her, I ask. "Oh, be stuck around about two months." She laughs bitterly. Everyone bere pretty well has the same story."

Weody is knitting booties. A couple of pairs will pay for a packet of cigarettes. "I doo't earn much - the top wage is around £7,50 a week, and you pay £3 for fags," she says. "It's difficult for our families to belp us. The other week my mum ily. My mum had gone bank-rupt, there were family prob-By the time they'd got here and her £75."

But she is not complaining. In a previous prison she did not-see her children at all. This is not uncommon. According to: prisoo staff and campaigners, foster parents are often judgemental about the womeo's crimes, and won't bring child-

"Even when the women ring up, the kids are always just having their dinner, says Petronella Davis, who is welfare advice officer for the Creative and Support Trust (Cast), based in north London. "I've known couples where both parents are asked women prisoners what in prison; the man got to see his would help them not to rekids, but the foster mother thought that if the woman was in prison, she must be a very, very bad person."

Children, she says, take the separation hard. They wet the bed, have nightmares, play up at home and school. Aliya's son lives with his grandmother. "He doesn't show much emotion, because of his age. But he's not doing too well," Aliya says quietly. "Not really."

The worst time in the prison. say the staff, is 3.45pm on vis-iting day, shortly before children have to leave. "It is hearthreaking," says one. "But the women go back to their landing and take care of each other."

Winchester'a unusually relaxed atmosphere is partly due, staff say, to the high proportion of drugs couriers in the prison ("I'd rather have them than someone in for GBH, ABH or arson," says one officer). But the governor, Richard Cavanagh, who has worked in the prison service for 26 years, says that most women's prisons have huge problems with bullying and self-harm. Bullying at Winchester is "not un-known", but is firmly dealt freedom to move around and keep occupied, and to the

"These women do lose everything," he says. The majority of prisoners who harm themselves have done it out of sheer frustration, because no one will listen. Once they feel safe, and beard, you can work with them."

Wendy and Aliya look after each other. Both are now counting the days until their release dates. But their problems are unlikely to end there. When the Ramsbotham report offend, the top three answers were: a bome; a job; support. According to welfare workers, however, these are precisely the things that may elude them when they finish their sentence. Petronella Davis says that many women's first day out of prison is spent at a homeless persons' unit, to get them and their children some form of temporary accommodation. Getting a job can be even more problematic. The women know this, and say that just as they feel more shame than men, they are judged more harshly. Groups such as Women In Prisoo say this is partly due to the demonisation of women criminals, and the media say, are translated into the practice of the courts. "I think we have to get these figures into proportion. There's been all this stuff about Tank Girl, girl gangs, books with titles like Deadlier Than The Male," says Women in Prisoo's director, Chris Tcbaikovsky. "Yet there are curreotly 2,500 meo serving time for murder. and 99 women. You have a 27 times greater chance of being

"myth" of the increasingly violent woman. These views, they she'd left me £10, it had cost of self-barm to the womeo's murdered by a man." Last month the National Association of Probation Officers concluded that there "did appear to be evidence that a harsher sentencing climate had evolved" for women.

It is not just the women themselves who bear the cost To the taxpayer's burden of keeping a woman in prison must often be added the cost of placing her children in care, the cost of rehousing them when they leave, the cost of keeping a family on benefits when the woman finds It difficult to get a job. And that is before you consider the cost to society of fractured families and dam-

Meanwhile, Winchester's female prison population has increased by 25 per cent in two years. At present, its recidivism rate, like its social problems, is unusually low, but David Cavanagh says the prison's careful balancing act will not be accommodate any more

As the grille closes on Wendy and Aliya's landing, I ask bim whether he is coocerned about the huge rise in the number of womeo prisoners. Mindful of his position. I say that he can speak off the record, but he declines. "I think the prison service is wise to separate itself from sentencing policy," he says carefully.

OK. I say; bearing in mind the women you see, do you think that a similar decrease in the women's prison population would create a significant risk to the public?

"I think courts would need to revisit reasons why they seed people to prison." he says, smiling.

And I am let out - through the metal grilles, and into the bright sunshine.

INTEREST RATES

ABBEY NATIONAL

Notice of change of Abbey National plc's Mortgage Interest Rate.

The Standard Variable Rate of interest charged to existing Abbey National borrowers with variable interest rate mortgages will increase by 0.25% per

If you have the benefit of a discount for a higher value mortgage then your new rate may be lower than this.

This chaoge will take effect on 1st August 1997.

Please note that this date does not apply:

- 1. If your mortgage is administered by Abbey National Mortgage Finance ple or your mortgage lender is Abbey National Mortgages plc. In this case the change will take effect oo the 3rd August 1997.
- 2. If your mortgage specifies a period of notice which is greater than 7 days before an alteration to the interest rate takes effect. lo this case we will write to you iodividually and tell you wheo the change will take effect except in respect of loans oo the annual review scheme.
- 3. If your loan is on the annual review scheme and your mortgage specifies a period of ootice before an alteration to the interest rate is effective, that period of notice will apply to the loan and will commence on 1st August 1997. The change will come ioto effect on the expiration of the ootice.

This notice does not apply to these former National & Provincial Home Owner Loans or Home Improvement Loans where individual notification of the change is giveo.

To assist us in improving our service we may record or monitor telephone calls. Abbey National and the Umbrella Couple symbol are trademarks of Abbey National plc, Abbey House, Baker Street, London NW1 6XL, 0171 612 4000.

Pox-hunting and other country tales

with. He ascribes the low level

Tell, it's midsummer again, and time for v country walks, and rambles in the fields, and being shouted at by angry farmers, and finding footpaths blocked by barbed wire, and all that sort of thing that the British do so

Not unnaturally I am being inundated with queries about life in the countryside. And that means it is time again to bring on expert. Herb Robert, to answer all your questions on wildlife - all yours. Herbiel Why do dead fish float on the surface of rivers and Herb Robert writes: So that seagulls cao eat them.

Why are wagtails called Herb Robert writes: Because they wag their tails.

No, no, hold on a minute, that's not strictly true, is it? I mean, dogs wag their tails from side to side, which is what we call wagging. But wagtails oscillate their tails up and down, which is more like nodding. They should be called nodtails, if anything. Herb Robert writes: All right, wise guy. Let's take this one slowly. What do humans do when they are in

They say, "I disagree" Herb Robert writes: Yes. yes, but if they don't say anythiog? If they just use body language? They shake their heads.

lisagreemeot?

Herb Robert writes: Ah ha! So when humans do it to their heads, it's called shaking, hut when dogs do it to their tails it's called agging, is that right?

Yes, I suppose so. Herb Robert writes: You're just a troublemaker.

I have often heard it said that animals who are in danger like to be downwind of their attackers. That is, a rabbit can smell a fox upwind, and a fox can smell hounds upwind and so on. Herb Robert writes: Ye-

So it makes sense for animals to get to windward of their attackers, or potential

Miles Kington

Herb Robert writes: Ye-

Well, as the prevailing wind in Britain is a west wind, which blows most of the time, an animal to the east of its hunter can always smell it, so you would expect animals in Britain to move to the east - on the whole - 10 be in a safer position. Herh Robert writes: Ye-

Therefore, over a long period of time, you would expect a general drift to the cast of the island among course by their humers. So it would only be natural if you found that the eastern side of Britain was much more heavily populated by animals who were moving to the east to avoid being smelt, and that the west was almost completely denuded of animals. Is this in fact so?

Herb Robert writes: No. You are talking ruhbish. Attractive rubbish, but still

Do you approve of poxhunting?

Herb Robert writes: I most certainly do. The quest to eradicate smallpox was ooe of the most exciting missions of modern man. Ah, yes, many's the time I've been out in the early dawn with a hunch of pink-coated scientists, chasing the pox over dale and hill!

And now I'm glad to say the little bugger has been eradicated. No more smalipoxl Geese and chickens can now sleep safe at night, knowing they will never have dreadfully scarred faces. Of course, that means oo more poxhunting, and sometimes I miss the old days, but I think this is a small price to Sorry - did I say "pox-hunting"" Of course I mean "fox-hunting"!.

Herb Robert writes: Now, there are some people who were vehemently against pox-hunting, and said that a virus was just as much God's creation as a humao being, and of course we had lots of trouble with saboteurs in the laboratory -

I'm sorry? Did you say something? Yes. The other day, at the for edge of o field, I noticed three birds hovering absolutely motionless side by side. They were so still you couldn't even see the wings moring. Then a fourth bird joined them in this strange hovering performance but directly overbead the other three. What on earth was going on? Herb Robert writes: They were sitting on relephone wires, you idiot. Thanks again, Herbie." Keep those nature inquiries rolling in!

Euro elections could break the Tories' patched-up party esterday's Cabinet deci-sion to hold the 1999 European elections

under proportional representation may appear at first glance of interest only to constitutional reform anoraks. It is anything but. For the hugely relieved Liberal Democrats, it oot only yields up more elec-toral territory to win, it also exorcises a demon: the memory of David Steel's failure to extract that very reform in return for propping up Jim Callaghan's minority govern-meot 20 years ago. But it is schism in the Tory party that remains by far the most seismic of its potential consequences.

That there was not more evideoce of a Tory split after William Hague's election as leader was due more to the vanquished than to the victor. Kenneth Clarke paid a mag-nanimous visit to Mr Hague's victory party. He then went on to persuade deeply hesitant figures on the pro-European left of the party - such as Stephen Dorrell, David Curry and Ian Taylor - to accept posts in the sbadow team, despite Mr Hague's Euroscepticism. They did so under a covel formula which relieved them of the ohligation to defend Mr Hague's promise to oppose for at least 10 years British entry into a single currency, but required them not to attack it, either, Does this not look, on the face of it, a party desperate to reunite at almost any price? Why on earth, therefore, should it break apart over something as trivial and hitherto mind-numbingly un-interesting to the public as elections to the European Parliament? The reasons have to do in about equal measure with the principles and personal ambitions of some not very well-known Tory politicians, those who either hold, or aspire to hold, seats as members of the EU parliament.

It is theoretically possible that Mr Hague will draw up for the European elections a manifesto so bland that even the most ardent pro-European could comfortably live with it. It is doubtful, however, whether dominant figures of the Shadow Cahinet, the Howards, Lilleys and Redwoods, would allow him to do that even if be wanted to. The notion that a referendum on the Amsterdam treaty, given the new administration's current popularity and the modesty of the changes agreed at the sum-mit, would result in anything but a buge vicory for the Government, is absurd: but that did not stop Mr Hague calling for one. Mr Howard, in particular, has not let up in trying to commit the party to renegonating, under threat of withdrawal, the terms of British membership of the EU, something he fondly imagines may prove an election winner in 2001 or 2002. All the omens are that Mr Hague will insist on a manifesto that at the very least reiterates outright opposition to British EMU membership on any foreseeable timetable, and which would therefore be hard to stomach for it least 15 of the 18 sitting Conservative MEPs, not to mention those of the ex-MEPs who aspire to return to Strasbourg.

That might not be enough on its own to provoke a hreakaway; but it may well be compounded by the party's choice of candidates. First, most of the party's incumbent MEPs come from the South-east, so there will be fierce compention among them for limited places on the same regional list. Secood, the leader will be under intense pressure to purge some of those notoriously pro-European per-

Donald Macintyre

All the omens are that Mr Hague will insist on a manifesto which will be hard to stomach for at least 15 of the 18 sitting Tory MPs or at least to put them sufficiently low down the lists to give them little chance of victory. So there may be a practical, as well as a principled, reason for these Strasbourg aspirants to form their own pro-European centre-right grouping, with their own can-didates' list, manifesto and business backing: namely, that h would, thanks to a PR system, provide easily their best (per-haps their only) chance of being

nlike Suzy Menkes

I can't claim that I have had the honour of heing banned from a

Versace fashion show. All 1 can say is that I once had a ticket to one in Milan and couldn't be bothered. This was not because I didn't try, simply that I wasn't made of strong enough stuff to face the scrum of shrieking fashion editors who were shoving their way in.

I merely observed grown women sobbing because their jobs depended on seeing this collection of sound-bite, rock o' rull, "do me" dresses. Now that the great man is dead these same fashion editors, whose expertise depends on knowing 24 words for taupe, are having to stretch their vocabularies to find words to describe murder and blood and rent-boys. Real life has momentarily interrupted their fantasy world in the form of real death.

Or am I being unfair? Hasn't fashioo always dealt with 'issues" other than whether white was the new black, whether bags were in or out, whether women over size 8 should be allowed out in public never mind the catwalk, whether junkies wearing mantillas beld up by what look like buman whether anything ever really matters if you have the perfect beige cashmere sweater? Fashion, after all, is a serious business and we should take it seriously.

The fashion world has been devastated by Aids, they care enormously about the environment and breast cancer and racism and they have benefits and make clothes that encour-

OK, so it's easy enough to sneer at this trivial, insular and self-indulgent little planet. As

Boris Johnson said of Versace's death, "Contemplating the headlines, many of us feel we are rubbing our noses up against the windowpane of a secret world that speaks a pri-vate language." What will they say when someone really great dies, he wailed. Of course the world of high fashion may appear like this, but is it any more insular and secret than the worlds of politics, of art, of tum? Lach of these worlds has its insiders, its stars, its cheerleaders and its dissidents. Each of these worlds has a language and a structure that the average punter does not fully understand. If anything fashion by its very nature is the most democratic of art forms. We all get dressed in the morning, we all make fashion decisions whether consciously or not. Even the person who says "I never think about what I look like" has already thought about it.

relationship of fashion to the rest of the world has been highlighted by this shocking eveot.

Versace has been painted a lone genius rather than bead of a large creative team who actually produced his vision. For designers like Versace there is Yet our confusion about the age world peace.

ins are really cutting edge.

What, supposing these beady events so unfolded, would be the role of the party's still biggest active politician, Mr Clarke? It is still doubtful that he, and therefore his supporters on the front bench, would overtly support a 1999 break-away of that sort. But a respectable showing by such a grouping would carry its own nomentum: for one thing, it would create a new con-stituency within Conservatism whose interests lay in securing PR for Westminster, thus mak-rkfor westminster, thus making a "yes" vote in a referen-tion on Commons electoral reform all the more likely. There is an irony bere; throughout his political life Mr Clarke has been a committed first-past-the-post man. But if a referendum delivered PR for the Commons, then, and perhaps not until then, the temptation for him, and perhaps Chris Patten too, to create a new business-friendly, broadly pro-European party of the centre right would surely be irresistible.

For despite the doubts clooding the future of EMU, it still looks as though the hig money in politics is not going to follow the Europhobes. Next week's report of the CBI survey on EMU will sbow that while the membership was divided over whether Britain should enter a single currency in the first wave - and voted on balance against it - it dismissed by a large majority the Hague notion of ruling it out for a decade. The CBI has probably never before diverged so decisively from Conservative party policy.

Conversely, Gordon Brown's speech yesterday, emphatically keeping open the option of EMU membership, emphasises the harmony between CBI thinking and New Labour's. A new Cabinet subcommittee is to consider party funding, but Blair's personal inclinations - unlike those of many in his party - have tended against state funding. It is a sign of how far times have changed that because of the par ties' respective attitudes on Europe, Mr Hague may be more starved of husiness funding - and therefore more in need of state funds - than

All this provides the prospect, enticing for Labour, of a split Conservative party, guaran-teeing a Blair premiership for several partiaments. But yesterday's decision, momentous as it is, doesn't guarantee that Mr Blair will back Commons PR (or even the not truly pruportional Alternative Vote system, a compromise still being advocated by Peter Mandelson). He isn't, genuinely, yet persuaded of the case for reform. He wants the long-term hegemony that it would help to confer; but be has surely not given up all hope that he can have it without a change to the electoral system, and without presiding over a multi-party coalition.

The European elections nevertheless provide a laboratory in which to test the impact of electoral reform. Kenneth Clarke is one politician who will be waiting and watching for the results; the other is Tony Blair.

The not so discreet objects of desire

by Suzanne Moore

always life after death, because trade marks live forever. His Medusa buttons enable instant brand recognition, which is important for the kind of people who want to be branded in this way. Clothes were only part of his massive empire. As with Yves St Laurent and Calvin Klein, the name itself has become a commodity.

The outpouring of grief from in which women were questioning power and wbat it meant to be a working woman, in which the nouveau riche wanted both to be classy and classless, expensively tasteless and in which the cult of celebrity recruited entire populations. While other designers,

Versace, we see a time in which

Post-Aids "Look hut don't touch" culture was on the rise.

was neither revolutionary nor reactionary, just an astute husioessman who sold no more and no less iban what has always been sold to women. There were very few Versace frocks that could be worn with underwear. It matters not wbether Versace was gay or straight for despite the much-vaunted shock value of his boudoir imagina-

"The issue becomes one of the wearer's libido, rather than one of 'being attractive'. Westwood fosters the idea of a self-defined feminine libido, however demented, which communicates itself idiosyncratically through dress ... The sexiness she expounds is autonomous; if the wearer thinks it is sexy, then it is". It is this autonomy, the opening up of sexuality that makes Westwood such an exciting designer, more transgressive than someone like Versace could ever be.

To complain then that fashion is somehow insignificant is to miss the point. It is precisely about making the insignificant signify something, about giving meaning to a cut, a button, a texture, a look. The fact that people spend vast amounts uf money in order to demonstrate their individuality and all end up looking the same is the great paradox that drives it to continually restyle itself. Whatever its losses, the fashion world will continue churning out its clothes and we will continue to desire and dismiss them in the same breath. As Versace's death illustrates, even when the emperor is naked there are always those ready to rip the new clothes off his still warm corpse and say they are the

Despite the much vaunted shock value, Versace designed clothes that were essentially sexually conservative

the fashion cognoscenti has such as his rival Armani, and been somewhat over the top Donna Karan, were designing even for those whose profession "You are fashion" Versace may have been the ultimate fashion victim but he has not died for any particular cause.

The muddle over whether he was a misogynist or, as he claimed, able to give back "femininity" to women is further evidence of our schizophrenic attitude to fashion. There is no other popular art form that we would treat so simplistically. Nor would we place it in a vac-uum devoid of historical and cultural context. So we bave Versace who, with his tarty, sbowy frocks, emphasised sexual availability as a source of power for women, who helped them play once more; or we have Versace, the gay misogynist who squeezed women into tacky dresses inspired by the prostitutes he saw as a boy. Yet if we look at the rise of Donna Karan, were designing functional clothes that women is going over the top. Gianni could wear at work, day to evening wear, Versace made clothes that were definitely for going out in, for showing off in. This was power dressing for those whose power rested on pay and display and they appealed to everyone from East End girls to genuinely power-ful womeo such as Madonna and Demi Moore.

Such decadence depended on a sense of artifice that is intrinsic to fashion, for if clothes are not about surface, identity and fantasy what are they about? Versace's frocks were for women who in John Berger's famous description "Wateb themselves being looked at ... The surveyor of women in herself is male: the surveyed female. Thus she turns herself into an object ..." Versace merely gave women a guiding band in what they were already skilled at. He tion was to turn women from subjects to objects. The twist was that women chose this for themserves. Contrast this approach with a designer like Vivienne West-wood who, for all ber battiness, were essentially sexually con-servative in that their very functalks of sexiness as being about what feels sexy to the woman herself. "At my age I'd rather have a bit of flab, I actually think that's more sexy. I like my own hody." As Caroline Evans and Minna Thornton say in greatest thing ever.

Sorry BT international calls are

upto 63% cheaper

with RSL GLOBAL PHONE Lowest Prices Available

Lowest P	nces A	vaila	able
One minute	RSL	B.T.	Save international	Global
call to	Phone
AUSTRALIA	21.15	49.00	57%
BANGLADESH	82.25	133.25	38%
CANADA	14.10	23.62	40%
GHANA	61.10	131.1 9	53%
HONG KONG	34.08	68.78	50%
INDIA	64.63	119.85	46%
ISRAEL.	44.65	79.45	44%
JAPAN	28.20	76.99	63%
MALAYSIA	44.65	108.10	59%
NEW ZEALAND	25.85	49.00	47%
PAKISTAN	76.38	133.25	43%
SINGAPORE	32.90	68.78	52%
SOUTH AFRICA	44.65	101.66	56%
THAILAND	63.45	108.10	41%
UAE	58.75	101.66	42%
USA	11.75	23.62	50%
All Price	s Include	VAT

It doesn't cost much to stay in touch.

To start saving phone RSL GLOBAL PHONE now

Lines in praise of 'traditional' poetry Can 'on the page' poets compete with a performance superstar? No contest, says Ruth Padell

BBC producer, "to have an inforwho don't buy poetry mal discussion with a poet wbo's getting a millioo pounds for a CD. We want a traditional poet to put aoother perspective. We'll be asking questions like, 'Can traditional

"What do you mean by traditional?" I

There was one of those deep phone silences when you hear milli-miles uf wire writhing away under London. I had a guess.

"Do you mean 'poetry on the page?"
"Yes," she said. "As opposed to poetry for the young. Poetry on disc."

She was voicing an assumption which canters loose round the media every day, that poetry is "difficult", traditional and, therefore, like fox-hunting, endangered. Its habitat is the page, another Iraditional, endangered thing. Poetry's "way forward" must involve the two touchstones of modernity, electronics and

In fact, "the young" from 13 to 20 read and buy poetry by the tun. It gets listened to, talked about passionately, jokily, casily, all over the country, everywhere from pubs to schools to prisons to the Internet - by the young. Many of the best pacts live by teaching in schools. It is hard, badly paid work; but is creating – for the country, if you're going to be grand about it – a hody of the young who think poetry by living poets addresses issues in their own lives, can be playful as well as serious, and is out there for them. They know some poets are more "difficult" than others, but trust them to communicate, as good pop lyrics do. After a reading by Carol Anne Duffy, Paul Durcan, Jo Shapcott, Simon Armitage or Heancy, there are signing queues a mile lung, swarming with people under 20.

who don't buy poetry may include thirty-something mediafolk, but not "the young".

"Can poetry survive without electronics?" No question. "It survives," said W H Auden of Four Weddings and a Funeral fame in his even more famous elegy for Yeats, "in the valley of its making. A way of happening. A moutb." It because survives people need it, write it, think with it. They welcome it on the tube. Poets are econumically challenged, publishers sign up cookery books to compensate money lost on a poetry list, but poetry itself is alive and saying new things in new ways; keeping in touch with its past, with what's happening in other places, eager to take new risks. Pity more people don't go for it, but that's their loss. I thought poets should be generous to each Poetry will survive without them. Whether they other. Murray emphatically agreed, though his survive without poetry is another question.

Poetry's into electronics already. It is huge on the Internel. But for electronics you need electricity: electronics is a parasite on the culture, as you realise when the power goes down

A hit? Murray Lachian Young, EMI's £1m poet, with his butler Daily Record

dent Daily Poem to kitchen cupboards, where it yellows bappily for years, meaning new things long after CDs get scratched. I like the idea of EMI putting out a poetry album, hut it's not going to affect people's eoduriog need for and response to

The guy I was sel up to meet was Murray Performance College, does charismatic satire in nightclubs, and now has that million-pound deal with EMI plus a £250,000 contract with MTV. Good luck to him, I felt; but be didn't seem to feel the same about me when our eyes met in the make-up mirror. I said idea of it seemed a hit one-way. He wasn't conspicuously generous to poets who'd said his work was crap. "Can't get published themselves," he said; which wasn't true.

I hope he sells. I think the idea's fun. One friend of mine, whose opinion I'd take over most people's, enjoys Murray's performance EMI gets up to.

tatorship. Even pages cabarel oumbers. Her favourite is a straight mao getting outed at a gay bar. But on the page, the work is - well, there's sometimes a nice tension between the Christmas cardy, traditionally predictable thump and rhyme, and the sting of the situation. He's getting money for presentation, not poetry. Kids reared on "Poetry in Schools", surfing the poetry magazines on the Internet, will want something more musically interesting, designed and generous. Maybe it wasn't very nice to say that on telly; but I wished him well, and you've got to risk people not being nice to you for a million And it's not much of a risk compared with some. I'm reading a new book of poems called Impedimenta (retailing at £3) by the Protestant Ulster poet Adrian Rice, who knows more Lachlan Young. He did a year at Media Jokey, witty, subtle, his poems have a go at the about poetry and risk than Murray ever will. values of his particularly sensitive community. in a particularly sensitive time.

The more bonour to his community, you'd say, for producing a poet who questions it from within. But not everyone agrees. A poum from his last book was about Masons giving out "jobs for the boys", and he happened to be in The Honest Ulsterman when his brother. 3 policeman, was having a laugh with a couple of colleagues. One suddenly asked, "Would that be your brother's poem?" "It would," he said. "Bit close to the bone, was it?" Banter about this aspect of Prutestant life was standard on the housing estate where the Rice boys grew up. But things flipped at this point. "Does your brother want his bouse burn! down? Poetry on the page and in the mind musically designed, deeply felt words, shared dangerously between audience and poet - bas always mattered and always will. Whatever

DUSINESS & CITY FINANCIAL JOURNAL OF THE YEAR

BUSINESS & CITY EDITOR: JEREMY WARNER

Breach of court order may force SFO to pulp report

Tom Stevenson Financial Editor

The Serious Fraud Office faces new embarrassment after being farced to withdraw from sale and possibly destroy thousands of copies of its latest annual re-port. The SFO has also had to write to those who have already asking them to disregard a section that puts the office in the humiliating position of breaching a court order.

The SFO is currently deciding whether to pulp the re-maining copies of its report or replace the uffending page. The error was realised too late, however, to do anything about the many early copies of the rereceived copies of the report port that had already been sent out to the press and others.

A letter from the red-faced fraud office has been sent to the report's recipients, reminding them they, too, are limited by the count's reporting restrictions. Because of this The Independent is unable to give any further details of the SFO's error.

However, the climbdown is a serious embarrassment for the SFO and its new director Rosalind Wright, who only took

Mrs Wright used the report to publicise a list of recommendations for changing the current system of prosecuting fraud and regulating the City.

This week's faux pas will have serious repercussions at the SFO if it undermines its credibility at the same time as it is calling for broader powers to in its annual report. The report showed a sharp increase in the number of cases of suspected fraud against investors.

It is understood the error in the report slipped through hecause the court nrder it breaches was imposed after the completion of an early draft.

control of the office in April. It combat the rising levels of fiit needed make a change before comes less than a week after nancial fraud that it highlighted the final version was printed. after a run of successful convictions by the SFO which appeared to he restoring its reputation. The office has come in for widespread criticism since its founding in 1988 after failing to secure convictions in a number of high-profile prosecutions. In a letter to the Attorney-general on Monday, Mrs Wright called for the creation of a single investigatory body to replace the current system which sees responsibility for prosecuting fraud split between the SFO, the Crown Prosecution Service and the Department of Trade and Industry. She said it was time for recommendations made 11 years ago by Lord Roskill to be

More lenders push up mortgage rates

Diane Coyle Economics Editor

A week after the Bank of England raised interest rates, the Halifax and the Nationwide Building Society both an-nounced increases in their mortgage and savings rates yesterday.

The decision had been expected after other lenders, nopected after other lenders, notably Abbey National and Cheltenham & Gloucester, raised their mortgage rates in the immediate aftermath of the Bank's move.

The news came as share prices and the pound retreated from their recent highs. The from their recent highs. The FTSE 100 index ended more than 15 points lower at 4,949, having failed in breach the 5,000 barrier.

Mark

1 may 54. 7

Sterling lost nearly two pfennigs against the German mark to close at just under the symbolic DM3 level. Rumours of Bank of England intervention, along with a warning from the Bundesbank President, Hans Tietmeyer, that the markets should not take the exchange rate "correction" too far, prompted some profit-taking. Mike Blackburn, chief executive of the Halifax, said: "Although our borrowers will see a small increase in their monthly payments, this should have little impact on the steady and sustainable recovery in the housing market." However, one investment bank warned yesterday that there was no sign of a general pick-up in the market. Although house price inflation had risen, other indicators such as the number of home sales were stable at best, according to economists at Nikko Europe.

The robustness of the recovery in the housing market in 1996 is unlikely to be repeated over the next few years, said head of research Simon Briscoe. Rising mortgage rates and the Budget reduction in mortgage interest tax relief would weaken its recovery, he predicted. The Halifax, with 2.5 million borrowers, announced its standard variable mortgage rate rise by 0.25 percentage points to 8.2 per cent. The typical monthly increase will be

The Nationwide's million borrowers face an increase of 0.5 per cent to 7.85 per cent, with the society making up for not moving last time around. A home-buyer with a typical £50,000 repayment martgage will pay an extra £14.50 a month.

Separately, official figures suggested the strong pound has started to bite into export orders. Turnover in the engineering industry rose by 0.4 per cent in the three months to May. A 2 per cent advance in export sales more than offset a 0.8 per cent drop in home sales. However, total turnover was 0.2 per cent lower than in the same three months a year earlier. Compared to last May, export orders have

President Bill Clinton warned yesterday that Europe and the US were in danger of talking their way into a trade war over the $14bn (£8.5bn) merger of Boeing and McDonnell Douglas,

His warning came as Boeing and the European Commissinn appeared nn nearer tn agreeing a deal to prevent the EU vetoing the merger and imposing punitive fines on the US aircraft manufacturer.

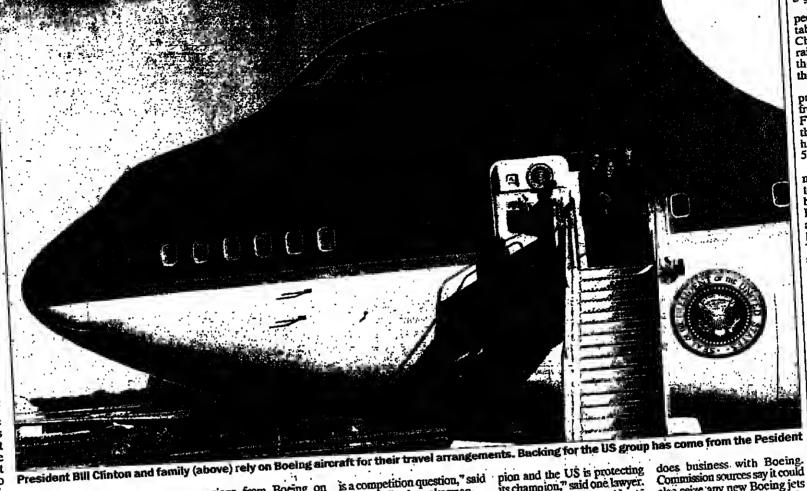

Amid rising tensinns on both side of the Atlantic, fuelled by US allegations that Europe was opposed to the deal for nakedly political reasons, President Clinton told a White House press conference: "There's an orderly process for our handling this and I think we'd better let the orderly process play itself out before we talk ourselves into a trade war." Although the President said that he thought a trade war could probably be avoided, he cerned about what appear to be the reasons for the objection to the Boeing-McDonnell Douglas merger by the European Union. And I think that it would be unfortunate if we had a trade stand-off with them."

A spokesman in Brussels for the EU Competition Commissioner, Karel van Miert, said it would take a "miracle" to break the deadlock before the EU made its final ruling on the merger in five days' time. It has already ruled provisionally that the merger is anti-competitive and has told Boeing that it must offer more concessions to allay its concerns about domination of the civil aircraft market.

The US Senate unanimously approved a motion condemning the EU for its threat to block the merger. The Republican Senator for Boeing's home state of Washington, Slade Gorton, said: "The sole reason for the European Commission's criticism and imminent disapproval of the merger is to gain an unfair would follow any EU veto of the competitive advantage for is a competition question," said

But the President of the Commission, Jacques Santer, hit back immediately, telling a news conference: "We are look-ing at the Boeing-McDonnell Douglas merger according to very objective criteria ... there are no political considerations."

The EU's panel of anti-trust advisers has concluded that the deal should be blocked because it will give Boeing a hold over 84 per cent of the world aircraft concessions from Boeing on the exclusive supply deals it has signed with US airlines and spillover of funds from defence. contracts into civil airline programmes.

However, America's Federal Trade Commission has approved the deal without conditions, saying it will have no impact on competition.

The EU continues in insist that politics are not involved. not a trade issue, this

Mr Van Miert's spokesman. But competition lawyers in both Brussels and Washington sense that the Commission's objections arise at least in part from the desire to strengthen the position of Airbus, which will be left as the only rival manufacturer of large commercial the transfer of black, aircraft. People are sensing that this is all politically motivated, that the EU is protecting its cham-its champion," said one lawyer. The Commission is seeking to re-open a bilateral agreement on aircraft subsidies signed in 1992 which limits indirect support and caps direct launch aid at 33 per cent of the cost of new If the Commission goes ahead with its threat to voto the merger it could fine Boeing 10 per cent of turnover as well as Cuba-fining any EU company that also seize any new Boeing jets being delivered to customers in Europe as payment of the fine.

It is the latest in a long line of trade disputes hetween Europe and the US. The most recent one was Washington's use of the Helms-Burton Act to penalise European companies that had dealings with Castro's

:- Comment, page 23

Arnault waters down merger proposals Boeing deal. He said: "I'm con- Airbus."

Andrew Yates

Bernard Arnault was yesterday forced to make an embarrassing climbdown just 24 hnurs after he launched an audacious attempt to scupper the £23bn merger between Guinness and Grand Metropolitan. Fierce criticism by institutional shareholders in Guinness and GrandMet has forced Mr Arnault tn amend his alternative plans to merge the drinks businesses of the twn UK companies with the Moët Hennessy champagne and Cognac operations of his French luxury goods group, LVMH. Mr Arnault yesterday conceded that his demands for a 35 per cent stake in a merged drinks group, which would in-clude the IDV husiness owned GrandMet and the United Distillers arm of Guinness, were excessive. "We would be willing tn accept a lower stake in the combined spirits business. The 35 per cent figure is a fig-ure derived from the value in nur assets against the market's assessment of the value of the combined spirits company. We could accept a stake lower than 30 per cent and we would consider taking a cash payment for some of our assets, said a LVMH spokesman yesterday. Guinness and GrandMet still looked set last night to spurn a businesses and plough on with bolding.

their own straight merger even though Mr Arnault is prepared to reduce his stake. "Even if he had a 20 per cent stake he would still have a majority holding in the spirits business where most of the cost savings would be had and where the growth potential is the greatest. A demerger of our food and brewing businesses would destroy value," a GrandMet stroy value, a Grandmer spokesman said yesterday.

An overwhelming number of big investors in GrandMet, beaded by George Bull, and Guinness, led by Antbuny Greener, said privately they would reject Mr Arnault's nriginal proposals that would have inal proposals that would have

Most of the UK companies' institutional sharebolders believe a straight merger between Guinness and GrandMet offers the best deal and are not willing to entertain the idea of a three-way merger of the spirits husinesses. Mr Arnault, despite being the higgest individ-ual shareholder in Guinness and GrandMet, would need the support of these institutions to push his plans through. Andrew Hartley, a UK fund manager at Scottish Equitable, which owns shares in Grand-Met, Guinness and LVMH, said yesterday: "Mr Arnault makes deals that sometimes have no argument with his style which is why we have a hulding in LVMH. But it is unlikely to work in this case. I think Mr Arnault's attempts will fizzle out. He has paid an awful lot of money to get this far and LVMH has not got the financial muscle to stop a merger.

Mr Arnault has splashed out more than £800m buying a 6.4 per cent stake in GrandMet to get a seat at the negotiating table. Another large shareholder of GrandMet and Guinness said: "Mr Amault has tried to drive a wedge between shareholders and GrandMet and Guinness but it will not succeed. The idea of a transferring lats of value to

George Bull (left) and Tony Greener rejected the plan

Mr Argault is ridiculous. GrandMet and Guinness should press ahead with their straight merger."

Some institutions were willing to entertain Mr Arnault's alternative proposals to split Moët Hennessy in two, giving Grand-

Various attempts were made to update the Woolworth image.

Many of the ald lunch counters.

for instance, were converted

The company also attempted to emphasise cosmetics and into coffee hars.

Met and Guinness control of the Hennessy cognac business and LVMH ownership of the Moët champagne operation. "A split up of Moet Henness has a greater degree of logic," said Ralph Woodford, nf Edinburgh Fund Managers.

Woolworth disappears from downtown America

David Usborne New York

The hold, red lettering of Woolworth that has been a staple feature of downtowns all across the United States for more than a century is about to pass into American high-street history.

The Woolworth Carporation announced vesterday it was giv-ing up on its efforts to turn around its chain of 400 FW Woolworth stores which have become a drain on its carnings. The shutters will begin ralling down un the shops for the final time over the next few months. The decision will mark the end of an era in American shopping. As in Britain, the Woolwarth brand still denntes for most penple hanest-togoodness wares and decent prices. Fur years, a common feature of the US chain, which is unconnected with the UK Woolworth business owned by Kingfisher, were in-store lunch counters where shoppers could rest, refuel and chat.

FTSE AN-Share 2311.56

While the "Woolies" mon-

Charge (10 1991/97 Hg): 1996/97 Low 2373.70

5032.94 1.63

20681.07 17303.85 0.781

4227.31 2848.77 1.31†

STOCK MARKETS

20519.25 +160.51 +0.6

15706.29 +260.27 +1.7

icker, popular in Britain, nev-er took hold in the US, for most Americans Wantworths was associated with its "five-anddime" heritage passed down by its founder, Frank Woolworth. It was in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, in 1879 that Mr Woolworth decided that the success nf bis "great 5-cent store", where everything was 5 cents or less, was such that he could begin adding some items that cost 10c. And thus was born the "five-and-dime" format that became Woolworth.

Money Market Rates

Gennany __

1 North

7.44__

6.03

0.81

Smith(David S.) 200.5 15.5 8.4

While the formula endured for more than a century, and spawned sibling chains in Britain and elsewhere in the world, in recent years it has become frayed in the United States as competitinn in the clothes and bnusewares market intensified. Woolworth was hurt by such giants as K-Mart and Walmart and even specialised superstores such as Roys "R" Us.

greatest. About a quarter of the remaining Woolworth stores are in the New York City area. Many of the leases beld by Wandwarth reportedly date back to the Depression and are therefore extremely favourable. Even in the Connecticut town nf this correspondent, the two Woolworths that used to be here

In its efforts to save the brand, Woolworth Corp closed down scores of Woolworth loof chemists. cations where the losses were INTEREST RATES

7.06

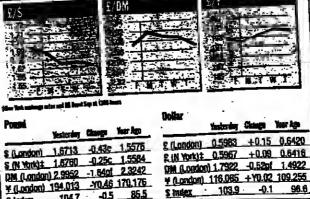

Zeneca Group 2144.5 120.5 5.3

6.5 7.5 Glavo Wellcome 1343.5 56.5 41 7.0 Gellaher Group 251.5 10

Price (s) Groups (s) % Change

home goods over other seg-ments such as toys. But last year, the Woolworth chain still made a $37m (£22m) loss. just two years ago have closed.
One was transformed into a The chairman of Woolworth Roger Farah, recently warned glitzy branch of Saks Fifth Avshareholders that he considered enue, the other has become part of the fast-growing CVS chain 1997 as the make-or-break year for the Woolworth name.

Vestocking May's chig Vest Ago

18.76 +0.41 20.46

+0.B 384.80

conginmerate, yesterday revealed it may pay its entire div-

Cost of FIDs reaches £120m

Sameena Ahmad

The cost in the Government over its proposals to abolish for-eign income dividends (FIDs) continued to mount yesterday after four more companies jnined the growing list of UK multinationals rushing to take advantage of FIDs before they are scrapped in 1999.

Since the Budget a formight ago, nine companies have announced they are either paying FIDs for the first time or are extending their FID schemes. Already the cost exceeds £120m to the Inland Revenue in uncollected taxes, suggesting its estimates that it will lose just £200m over the two-year loophole period are far too low.

Companies affected by the abolition, which will mean double taxation of overseas earnings, again called for the Government to scrap corporate taxes on dividends. A CBI committee, which met with the Government a week ago, was told there would be a shift in the proposals but companies should stop complaining to the media about the implications." said an involved party.

Tomkins, the guns to buns idend as a FID fullowing the Budget proposals. Ian Duncan, finance director, said the move could save the company at least £10m in extra taxation. If this two-year window is going tn exist, then clearly we should maximise our use of FIDs." he said.

said yesterday it would extend its FID payouts if the Government did not amend Budget proposals detailed in the forthcoming Finance Bill, "Abolishing FIDs will raise our taxes by fom a year," said a spokesman. Both Grand Metropolitan and Scapa, the UK chemicals

Burmah Castrol, the oil giant, group, announced yesterday they would pay FIDs for the first time. GrandMet said the move would save around £33m a year. On Wednesday Siebe and drugs group Medeva joined the list. UK companies which have extensive overseas earnings have been lobbying for a change in the proposals, with some threatening in leave the UK and others pleading they would become more attractive to foreign predators, Most, like Tomkin's Mr Duncan, believe the best solution is an abolition of ACT the dividend tax, and a change to an instalment system of paying mainstream tax

HOW...

LATER

below Yr Che Yr Ngo Next Figs

157.5 +2.9pc 153.0 12 Aug

111.8 +3.1pc 108.4 25 Jul

 $M_{0re}$

Although the European Commission has stuck rigidly to its line that Boeing's takeover of McDonnell Douglas will distort competition, it will do

no such thing

This merger is not worth going to war over

Will Washington and Brussels really go to war over Boeing? Although the stand-off is plainly serious, as the flexing of political muscles oo both sides of the Atlantic demonstrates the best of the Atlantic demonstrates the demonstrates, the betting must still be on one or both parties blinking before it is time to scramble the bombers.

Here's why. Although the European Com-mission has stuck rigidly to its line that Boe-ing's takeover of McDonnell Douglas will distort competition, it will do no such thing. The European Commission has spotted an opportunity to squeeze maximum advantage out of the situation for its own jet champion, Airbus Industrie, and is playing its hand accordingly.

In truth, there are really very few anti-trust considerations involved, as the US Federal Trade Commission has already ruled. True, the merger would increase Boeing's share of the commercial airline market but only by 4 per cent. Moreover, even after swallowing up McDonnell Douglas, Boeing would still be left with a smaller share of the market than it enjoyed 10 years ago, thanks to the inroads Europe's Airbus Industrie has made.

When the Boeing deal was first unveiled there was barely a squeak from Airbus. Indeed the view trickling out of Toulouse then was that the merger might actually work to its advantage by creating a more orderly market and reminding the world's airlines that if they still wanted a choice then Air-its monopoly of the jumbo jet market for the last two decades is one that will not be forgotten quickly by the airline industry.

For all that, the Commission's objections to the deal do not seem fundamental enough to go to war over. However, that is not going to stop Brussels using the deal as a pretext for prizing concessions out of the Americans in other areas - starting with a tightening of the rules governing the support given to their aerospace industries through the enormous research programmes run by the US

Defense Department and Nasa.

This is not the first trade dispute between the two blocs and it will not be the last. The good news is that since there are no principles at stake, they should be able to borsetrade their way out of the current fix.

People must be forced to save for old age

There is something particularly irritating and holier than thou about the way Har-riet Harman, social security minister, bangs oo about having "inherited" a huge pensions challenge from the previous Government, as bus was the only other player in town.

Since then there has been much comment in Brussels about how Boeing's scope for Labour's strategic reviews, magic wand like, he "forced" to save for their old age, then it is only to be welcomed.

Strangely enough, the pensions problem faced by Britain is the exact opposite of the one that exists in Germany, France and Italy. The problem in Britain is the inadequate nature of the state pension - which is nowhere near a living wage - and the fact that a very significant proportion of the workforce fails to make any further provision for retirement. Forcing the pensions industry into providing better value for money, security and flexibility, as the OFT this week proposed. would certainly help matters, but it doesn't provide a solution in itself.

On the Continent the promised benefit of pay as you go pension arrangements are by comparison very generous, but the tax raised to pay for them increasingly inadequate. It is hard to know which is the more difficult problem. In Britain the challenge is to find ways of improving retirement benefits for all without significantly adding to the tax hurden; on the Cootinent it is that of cutting benefit to a level governments can afford. Either way, however, the challenge faced by politicians is broadly similar - it is that of persuading the public that if they want reasonable pensioo beoefits for all, they are going to have to pay for them.

Whether this is done through the state, or bottom line is that people will have to be compelled to save. Unfortunately, that is always not done a major deal since Brooks Broth-bound to look like a form of taxation. In grasp-ers in the heady days of the 1980s. This is ing this nettle, Peter Lilley's much maligned proposals for privatising the state pension and changing it from a pay-as-you-go scheme to a funded investment approach, provides a useful blueprint. After the political capital Labour made out of these proposals during the election, the new Government couldn't possibly use the plans in the way intended, as a substitute for the basic state pension.

Suitably rejigged, however, they could be used as a way of providing reasonably fair second tier pension arrangements. The justification for compulsion in pensions provision is an obvious one. Without compulsion, it is those who save voluntarily who are forced to pick up the tab for those who don 1. Even so, this is oot going to be an easy thing. to sell to the electorate. Ms Harman's review might ease the process, hut it doesn't make it any more palatable.

M&S deal may be small but it's also significant

So, conservative old Marks & Sparks is stumping up oearly £200m for 19 branches of crummy old Littlewoods. Is this a sign of a new, more aggressive expansion from the behemoth of Baker Street?Or just an-

the private sector, is largely irrelevant. The i by the Rolls Royce of British retailing It is certainly a rare occurrence. M&S has obviously not a huge transaction for MeeS. but it is not without significance all the same. There are not many opportunities to snap up this amount of prime high street retail space and M&S seems to have moved swiftly to beat off rivals likes of Boots and Kingfisher.

Obviously, this is more of a property deal than anything else. There is no goodwill write-off, and no redundancies or stock write-offs to worry about. All that is for Littlewoods. M&S simply gets 19 new stores, changes the name over the door, gets the refurbishment people in and away it goes. In fact this deal says a lot more about Littlewonds than it does about M&S. Having failed to flog the high street stores as a job lot it is now selling its higgest, and in many cases, best stores, to a rival. It will be left with around 100 smaller hranches which it may or may not rebrand under the Berkertex name. With the deal to huy Freemans home shopping from Sears still subject to an extended MMC inquiry and a pools business under the cosh from the lonery. Lindewoods seems beset on all sides with problems. James Ross, the chairman, faces the prospect of his revised strategy for the group going up in smoke. Since the controlling Moores family are not exactly backwards in letting management know what they think, it could other example of relentless, measured growth | be an interesting few months in Liverpool.

Marks & Spencer pays £193m for Littlewoods' prime stores

Nigel Cope

Marks & Spencer made its first hig acquisition in more than a decade yesterday when it agreed to pay £1925m for 19 Littlewoods stores. The deal is the largest by M&S since the purchase of Brooks Brothers in the United States in the 1980s. It is thought to be the company's largest ever UK transaction.

Announcing the deal to shareholders at the company's - largest, meaning some will be annual meeting in central Lon-refurbished to take a full M&S don yesterday, M&S's chairman, Sir Richard Greenbury, said it was "an outstanding opportunity" which underlined the company's continued confidence in the future of the

have been seeking extra footage for years". The extra 600,000 sq ft of space would be in addition to the 1.4 million sq ft expansion already planned over the next three years, Sir Richard said.

The deal will be completed next February and the stores will be re-branded under the Marks & Spencer name. The 19 branches are some of Littlewoods offer. Others will be converted to food halls, home furnishings stores or outlets specialising in

. Up to 1,800 Littlewoods jobs will be affected though 80 per high street. ... cent of these are part time. The "We expect to start fitting out redupdancies will be Littlethe stores next. February and woods' responsibility, with anawe'll be ready to open them pro- : tysts expecting a cost of around gressively through the year," he said. He added that the stores were "all in places where we store an unspecified number of jobs as a result as the deal.

M&S put in a bid to Littlewoods right at the beginning of the sale process in March and beat off rival offers from Boots and Kingfisher. Sean Eddie of Nat West Securities said: "It's a good deal, but fully priced." The sale of the stores is part of a revised Littlewoods strategy by the group's chairman, James Ross, after plans to sell the entire high street chain fell through. Though the company was clearly pleased at the price the sites had fetched, analysts said the company had sold its best stores, leaving the prospects for the remainder uncertain.

Mr Ross shrugged off such criticisms yesterday, saying: "The sale of these stores realises sigmificant value from a small group stores business if it could realise greater value from revitalising the businesses and reconfiguring

the property portfolio."
The 19 stores are scattered across the country in locations such as Bath, Belfast, Cardiff, Derby and Chester. The flagship store at London's Marble Arch is also included.

Littlewoods is expected to sell another four or five stores and close several others leaving it with a portfolio of around 100. These will be re-launched with a new formal focusing more on womenswear and the Berkertex brand. In time, all the Little-woods stores may be rebranded onder the Berkertex name.

The announcement from M&S was combined with an update on current trading. This of our larger properties. The showed that clothing sales in the board of Littlewoods was always clear that it would not sell the per cent in the first quarter led per cent in the first quarter led by stroog sales of womenswear. Home furnishing sales were 16 per cent ahead. In food, sales n June and July are running at 3.5 per cent above last year,

At the shareholders meeting Sir Richard was forced to defend the appointment of David Sieff as a non-executive director of the company. Mr Sieff is the son of former M&S chairman, Lord Sieff. He stepped down from an executive role in April but was appointed as a non-executive. Sir Richard denied the move was cootrary to guidelines on corporate governance, "I don't accept the Cadbury recommen-dations in respect of the very special circumstances associaled with David Sieff." He added: The name Sieff in Marks & Spencer means a great deal."

shares with buy-back £451m last year because of the of DM2.75 to the pound

Michael Harrison

British Steel yesterday launched a £155m share buy-back, designed to revive its flagging share price and bolster earnings which have been hammered by the streogth of sterling.

The company's brokers. Cazenove, have repurchased just under 100 million shares about 5 per cent of British Steel's equity - at a maximum of 155p each

The market reacted favourably to the buy-back, marking British Steel shares up by 10p to 159.5p.

British Steel gained share-holder approval to buy back up to 10 per cent of its share capital at last year's annual meeting, and it hinted that a repurchase might be on the cards alongside its preliminary results last month.

These showed that profits

German mark - the currency in which steel is traded in Europe and price weakness.

British Steel to revive

At the time analysis were peocilling in a further drop in profits this year to between 150m and £200m.

Since then sterling has streogthened still further, breaching the DM3 mark, while the Budget inflicted more pain with the abolition of dividend tax credits. There has also been another rise in ioterest rates, boosting the pouod further.

Although steel prices have begun to harden and British Steel is accelerating its prog-ramme of job cuts, John Bowdeo, director of lovestor relations, said it would only partially offset the strength of

The company is assuming an collapsed by 60 per cent to average exchange rate this year

German mark - the currency in Bessentially our balance sheet was healthy but our shares were very depressed and we > valued," Mr Bowden said. British Steel had net cash of £785m at the end of last year and paid a dividend of 10p.

thought they were also under-

Even with the share huyback, the dividend may not be covered by earnings this year if British Steel holds the payout and profits fall as sharply as analysis forecast.

One broker believes British Steel will actually make a loss this year.

The shares had been propped up by heavy US buying, with investors in New York treating British Steel as a highly-geared play on currency movements. and prices, A 2 per cent move-meol in prices this year will be enough to raise or lower profits

Microsoft scours world for employees

Cathy Newman

Bill Gates' Microsoft is set to capitalise on its global dominance with plans to expand its US workforce by 19 per cent through the recruimment of 3,600 people within the next year.

Microsoft's chief operating officer, Robert Herbold, said he wanted the West Coast of America to remain "the ceotre of the universe for the software business". However, he said he and his colleagues would have to look outside the US for many of the new workers, as good software developers were in short supply in the States.

Mr Herbold said: "Finding enough software developers in the United States is difficult, and we have to be looking outside the country. We already are."

A spokesman for Microsoft said 800 new recruits would replace departing workers, 2,000 would take up posts at the company's suburbao Seattle headquarters, and 800 would look after sales, service and marketing around the country.

Mr Herbold said he would identify poteotial employees in countries such as Ireland, home to the company's European manufacturing and distribution centre, India and China.

However, Mr Herbold did sound a note of caution, saying that in some markets the company had cut staff numbers to improve efficiency. The Dublin manufacturing outfit has shed 92 workers over the past nine mooths and 47 jobs went from a similar ceotre in Humacao.

Mr Herbold said there were limits to Microsoft's growth in the Seattle area and in Redmond, Washington.

Speaking about Microsoft's interactive media division, which includes high-profile projects such as the Microsoft Network online service, he said it was still an experiment and not

"We put down projections when we think it will be making money," he said. "But the one thing about this area that is certain is that uncertainty rules."

He said profits in the emerging business could soar when 50 per cent of the nation's households were booked up to the Internet, which he said would create an "inflection point". It was possible that point could be reached in 2001, he said.

Bill Gates: Has plans to expand his US workforce by 19 per cent within the next year

Helicon shares soar in early trading

First-day dealings in Helicon Publishing Group's shares yesterday saw the price register an 8 per cent premium at one stage, buoyed by Microsoft's 20 per cent stake in the company. The share price, which hit a peak of 135p in mid-morning trading, eased towards the close and settled at 126.5p - a 1.5p gain over the 125p placing price.

Dealers said plenty of investors were trying to buy into its stake was diluted to 20 per the Oxford-based publishing ceot in the listing, due to Heli-company yesterday, "Microsoft being a major shareholder gives a big seal of approval. There's been a lot of interest in Helicon, with mainly private client buy-ing," said Stephen Roberts, a trader at Winterflood Securities. Microsoft acquired a 40 per cent stake in 1996 through a private placing to raise £1.2m for Helicon. Although Microsoft sold cone of its shares, con placing 41.2 per cent of new equity on the market. Helicon has a contract to provide Microsoft with history and current affairs data. It licenses this data to Microsoft, which puts the information on its own computer systems. Helicon's other customers include Compuserve and America Online.

The company publishes a range of titles, including encyclopedias, geography, languages and computing.

Hercules delay may cost Lockheed £1bn

Lockheed Martin, the giant US defence contractor, is close to agreeing a deal to pay compen-sation to the Ministry of De-fence for the late delivery of a Elbn fleet of Hercules transport

The group is expected to have to pay liquidated damages of at least $20m (£12m) but it could also end up bearing some The 13-month delay in delivery could also affect any deal that Lockheed Martin wins to supply the RAF with more Hercules aircraft.

Lockheed had been due to begin delivering the first of the 25 aircraft to the RAF last November but they will not is supplying flight controls and

November but they will not now start to arrive until January oest year. The hold up has been caused by delays in getting FAA certification for the new aircraft. This has taken two years rather than than the 9 months forecast by Lockheed.

Department will choose between Lockheed and a rival consortium led by Boeing in 2001. Lockheed, which is also buying Northrop Grumman, another US defence contractor, is Deutsche Aerospace joining the JSF programme.

"We want to be a global company, not just one that sells is supplying flight controls and some avionics for two demonits products overseas, and that means looking for global partners to help us," said Micky Blackwell, president of Lockstrator aircraft. The US Defense heed's aeronautics division. He said that it was not interested in joining forces with Airbus Industrie until the consortium was privatised.

in talks about the possibility of the French fighter manufac-turer, Dassault, and Germany's

IN BRIEF

US housebuilding starts jump 4.8%

New housebuilding starts in the US jumped 4.8 per cent in June, with the biggest rises in the south, midwest and west. It was the first monthly increase since April, with the annual rate of housebuilding increasing to 1.45 million.

Separate figures from the Labor Department showed a drop in cost increase daying a 240 000 test mock from 377 000 the

AST TRU

As Index

in ocw jobless claims, down to 349,000 last week from 377,000 the previous week. But the department said this was probably due to seasonal shutdowns by the hig car manufacturers, a regular event in the first two weeks of July. The less volatile four-week average number of claims edged up to 348,750, the highest since

Emap warns shareholders of sterling hit

Emap's French earnings will be hit by the strong pound, chairman Sir John Hoskyns warned shareholders at the company's 50th annual general meeting. He said: "Today, sterling is 20 per cent stronger against the French franc than the average rate over the last financial year. Our financing structures will continue to provide some hedge against this, but there will, nevertheless, be an effect on the sterling value of our French earnings.

an effect on the sterling value of our French earnings."

He added that prospects for trading in the year ahead "remain good. Growth in the UK is strong. France remains slow but is improving. At an operating level the group continues to perform in line with expectations". The UK advertising market was "well ahead" of last year and there were signs of improvement in France, he said. Emap floated in 1947, and the 50th AGM included a presentation and review of the company's first half-century.

Ex-GrandMet director to head Railtrack

Railtrack has appointed Gerald Corbett, previously finance director Grand Metropolitan, as chief executive. The track operator said Mr Corbett will take up his post on 29 September wheo John Edmonds, the present chief executive, retires.

Capital gets go-ahead to buy Virgin Radio

The Radio Authority said it "sees oo reason" to bar Capital Radio's acquisition of Virgin Radio. The Authority had been conducting a public interest test to determine whether the £64.7m deal would undermine plurality of ownership or diversity of content.

output.

Despite its decision, though, the Authority "sought undertakings" from Capital that news programmes would be separately produced and presented on the three London stations, Capital FM, Capital Gold (AM) and Virgin FM. Virgin's promise of performance has also been amended in the light of the merger to limit alternative rock to 20 per cent of the total

Country Casuals settles with ex-chairman

Country Casuals Holdings said the High Court and Iodustrial Tribunal proceedings brought by John Shannon, the company's former executive chairman, had been settled and all litigation between him and the company was at an eod. Country Casuals said the terms of the settlement are confidential to all parties.

Metroline shares priced at 173p

Shares in Londoo bus company Metroline have been priced at 173p, valuing the company at £37.2m. Eight senior managers of Metroline, including chief executive Declan O'Farrell, will be sitting on a paper profit of £12m when the sharet trading on 29 July. The company, which was formed as a result of a £20m management buyout from Loodoo Transport in 1994, has forecast it will make pre-tax profits of at least £4m (£3m) on the year to October.

Pre-tax profits at Nightfreight halve

Nightfreight, the contract delivery business, saw its pre tax profits more than halve in value to £805,000 for the six months to 31 May 1997 compared with the same period last year. Chairman David Cohb said "vigorous action" was being taken to improve the performance of the main parcels division. "We are working strenuously to reduce costs and improve efficiency," he said. Earnings per share fell from 2.61p last time to 1.04p, and the dividend fell from 1.30p to 0.50p.

	Company Results
	Tornover £	Pre-tax £	EP$	Olvidend
recorded florances (f)	- (-)	-0.07m (2.19m)	Q.1p (1.7p)	œ
i-Tec Sports (F)	91.1m (92.8m)	3.14m (2.03m)	4.5p (2.5p)	1.2p (nl/)
ightiyalgist (1)	44.1m (38.2m)	(m18.1) m18.9	1.04p (2.81p)	0.5p (1.3p) ellance Soundly (F)	102m (93.4m)	3.06m (4.15m)	8.9p (12p)	6.75p (6.75p)	1
emeriald (F)	3.4bn (3.4bn)	105m (92.0m)	29.4m (29.3m)	6.8p (-)
touley Laboure (F)	407m (318m)	19.4m (14.8m)	11.7р (9.3р)	4.0p (3.325p)
forthington Group (F)	30.3cr (27.1m)	2.86m (2.0 im)	6.3p (3.7p)	2.6p (2.5p)	_
F) - Final (1) - listerion	(N) - Nine months				-

Micro Focus shares tumble as chief quits

Cathy Newman

Micro Focus, the computer and software group, yesterday lost its chief executive. Marcelo Gumucio, just 18 months after he joined the company.

The sudden departure sent the shares tumbling 142.5p to £17.82. A source close to Micro Focus said Mr Gumucio's exit reflected the company's disap-pointingly slow move into in-formation technology services and products.

Mr Gumucio was unavailable for comment last night.

a step in the right direction" with the purchase of Millennium UK, a year 2000 consulting company, the source said the company's besitant progress in the IT services sector had been frustrating". However, he added: "Marcelo joined Micro Focus at a point when it was losing a great deal of money. The revenues are now on the increase and costs are under control." In the past 15 months the share price has more than doubled. Micro Focus said he would be replaced by Martin Waters, the former chief executive officer of Platinum Solutions who had been working as a consultant at has 20 years' management experieoce in IT groups, will be president and chief executive of-

The management changes will come as a blow to the company, which had only just begun to re-cover from a difficult few years. Although Micro Focus shares, which are among the most volatile on the market, are still well below their 1993 high of £30, the stock has recently soured from its all-time low of 588p.

The company said the terms of Mr Gumucio's resignation Although Micro Focus "took were still being resolved. However, he was only three mooths into a year-long cootract.

> Gumucio earned £231,000 in the year to the end of January, of which £129,000 was paid in performance-related boouses. He is to resign the 660,500 options he continues to hold in the company.

Mr Gumucio joined in Jannary last year from Memorex-Telex. He arrived at the company less than two weeks after it reported a full-year £6.5m pre-tax loss. Micro Focus said he would cootinue to work as a consultant and he had returned to his family-owned investment firm, Gumucio, Burke & Associates.

of the costs of bringing the fleet of C-130J aircraft into service.

Meanwhile, Lockheed said it Ted Baker founder worth £37m after float

Ted Baker, the designer and around £37m at the placing retailer of fashionable men's price of 135p a share. The isclothes, is coming to the stock sue is being fully underwritten market in a £56m flotation which will make the company's founder, Ray Kelvin, worth around £37m, writes Magnus Grimond. The windfall comes on top of E3m that Mr Kelvin, chief executive, pulled out of the business as "exceptional di-rectors" emoluments" ahead of the market launch. The one-off payment has been justified by the company on the grounds that it has no pressing oced for a cash pile built up over the past few years. Mr Kelvin is now raising £12m from selling shares in a £26m institutional placing and will see his remaining 45 per cent holding valued at rities, with first dealings ex pected next Thursday.

The basiness was founded by Mr Kelvin in 1988 before being bought out by his joint ventur partner, A Goldberg, a Glasgo based stores group. Mr Kelvin bought it back when Goldberg went under in 1990. Ted Baker's menswear brand competes inst the likes of Hugo Boss, with Ted Baker Woman positioned against labels such as Katherine Hamnett. Operating profits before the exceptional emoluments have leapt from £348,000 in 1994-95 to £4.16m last year, on sales up from £4,22m to £14m.

City regulators hand down £285,000 fines

Magnus Grimond

Financial regulators have fined stockbroking firm a total of £285,000 following regulatory breaches. The fine of £225.000 levied on Sovereign Unit Trust Managers comes on top of £120,000 compensation it has been forced to pay investors in certain of its unit trusts, plus £1.27m it has had to pump into the funds as a result of mispricing and wrongful payment

The Investment Management Regulatory Organisation took the disciplinary action after Sovereign incorrectly priced eight of its unit trusts as a result of poor internal organisation. More seriously, it charged the fees for managing three of its trusts, carried out by PDFM, to the trusts themselves rather than bearing the costs itself, as the rules require. Sovereign said there was no suggestion of fraud and investors were "generously" com-pensated, with an average payment of £35 a head.

Separately, the Securities and Putures Authority has levied a fine and costs of £60,000 on brokers Teather & Greenwood, after it failed to prevent potential conflicts of interest arising in relation to four placines of shares. Two of the deals involved Eric Kenelm Ford, a partner, who has been fined £8,000 and agreed to pay costs of £2,000. Both the firm and Mr Ford were reprimanded.

Creating a successful business doesn't have to mean creating a big business. At Internet Dial, we're bere to help small businesses harness the power of the Internet. To find smarter and more satisfying ways of working. To explore new markets and new ways of doing business. So if you want to be a successful small fish, not a beached whale, we should talk. Subscribe by September 1. 1997 for our special low rate of £7.50 per month for an individual dial-up service, and save our £20 registration fee too. Call free, seveo days a week, to find

FreeCall 0500 200 980 quoting ref. BVWA4

market report/shares

Data Bank FISE 100 4949.0 -15.2 FISE 250 4500.1 +12.6 FISE 350 2369.0 -4.7 SEAQ VOLUME 1.1bn shares. 59,381 bargains Gifts Index 97.08 +0.20

يه مع و ين المرابع ( أو المرابع أو المرابع المرابع المرابع المرابع المرابع المرابع المرابع المرابع المرابع الم securities to head being separate to buy little

Africa The Africa Constitution

A My as E - and Market

Blue chips take a breather but banks stay on the boil Blue chips, after a six-day winning run which lifted Foot-sie more than 200 points, paused for hreath, although many of the front-running financials continued to make National Westminster the likes of Barclays and Bank, up 19.5p to an 893.5p peak, was the centre of atten-tion in late trading. Rumours investment side helped to keep bank shares on the boil. swirled that a bid, allegedly at 1,070p a share, would be an-It told clients its preferred nounced today by Prudential shares were Barclays, HSBC, Corporation, the insurer. Lloyds TSB and Standard Chartered. Many were quick to dismiss the speculation as yet another example of a stock market ramp. Such a deal, they said, would make little, if any sense. Whether or not the Man from the Pru hovers over story is yet another indication of 2,500p on HSBC, which had viction that labeled and the story is yet another indication of 2,500p on HSBC, which had to live with its own in the story induced in the story in the story in the story in the story in the viction that takeover fun and arm, the old James Capel, eulogising its merits, claiming games are about to break out in the high-flying financial NatWest, with a profit warning and the far reaching problems of its investment arm to tolerate, has surprismgly put on a strong market display, even if the shares have been overshadowed by

Paradoxically the NatWest

NatWest Bank was conspicuous by its absence and, as if to rub salt into the omission.

rival securities house Lehman

Brothers said Nat West was a

MARKET REPORT

DEREK PAIN

stock market reporter of the year to snatch profits.

cent of the capital out of cir-culation at 155p a share, leav-

The songs of praise lifted the second day running the HSBC to yet another peak, up 26.5p to 2,177.5p. Barclays gained 26p to 1,308.5p and Abbey National 12p to 891.5p. Insurances produced some strong features with General Accident up 41p to 947.5p and Royal and Sun Alliance 17p at 488.5p. Pru was little changed at 614p. Schroders, 42.5p harder at 1,837.5p, was another financial in demand but Mercury Asset Management remained neglected, off 3p at 1,269.5p. Footsie ended 15.2 points lower at 4,949. In early trading it hit 4,993. Trading was again often hectic with tional, up 11.5p to 619p, enjoyed positive comments from Goldman Sachs. Rolls-Royce continued to fly support and Reed Interna-

out of its long dive, climbing 9.5p to 232p. The market sees the abolition of the Government's golden share in BT as a signal it will soon relax the one billion level was breached. Overseas huyers were still restrictions on foreign ownevident, although there apership of Rolls and British Aerospace shares. Under prepeared to be some relaxation sent regulations foreigners in US interest and a tendency by a few domestic players can only hold up to 29.5 per cent of Rolls and BAe, down

The supporting FTSE 250 index was firm but the FTSE 3p to 1.337p. BT, still smarting from the SmallCap again gave ground.

British Steel was the star MC1 fiasco, fell 5p to 440.5p in more heavy trading. BZW was said to have moved the shares to hold. Footsie performer. Its share buyhack, orchestrated by Cazenove, took nearly 5 per Jefferson Smurfit, the packaging and paper group, added 6.5p to 196.5p as the losses by its 46.5 per cent owned US associate heightened the being the price up 10.25p at 159.75p. National Grid went to a lief that a transatlantic deal 262.5p high, up 5p, on HSBC was near.

Shield Diagnostic jumped 50p to 570p and Drew Scientific, where there is talk of a

The major drug shares, dealings expected to start the after recent strength, had a afternoon. An opening price torrid session with Zeneca off 120.5p to 2,144.5p and Glaxo Wellcome 56.5p to 1,343.5p. become the major competitor SmithKline Beecham fell 42.5p to 1,204.5p. SkyePharma declined 12p to 76.5p on drug development delays.

Micro Focus, the computer group, collapsed 142.5p to 1.782.5p on the surprise departure of chief executive Marcel Gumucio.

MFI Furniture gained op to 151.5p, largely on the back of the windfall spending spree. Profit forecasts are hardening with £90m top of the range.

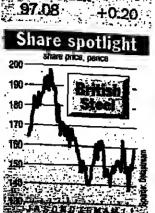

Manchester United rose 15p to 685p on hopes of a Far Eastern deal, Martin Edwards, the club's chief executive, sold more shares - 80,000

Market leaders: Top 20 volumes telephone group, is due to make its stock market debut rights issue, rose 12p to 117p. with conditional when-issued dealings expected to start this become the major competitor to BT, is raising around £125m, selling 23 per cent of its equity. Since tunnching last year it has attracted 20,000 customers in eastern England and the Midlands and hopes to get into profits by the end of 2,000. Pycraft and Arnold, the market's first quoted loss adjuster, closed at 57.5p against a 55p placing. Profits should be £1.2m this year With £1.5m cash, bolt-on acquisitions are likely. Helicon Publishing, another debutante, traded at 126.5p from a 125p placing. Microsoft has a 20 per cent stake

Win a Year's Travel Insurance with Leading travel insurer BUPA leave your answer to the TravelCover is offering three question below, together with lucky Independent readers the your name and address.

E5000).

To enter the competition, simply dial the number, and

Calls cost 50phsis at all these. Winner picked at random after lines close NJ NUY 1997.

Linux Newspaper Publisher wiles make Editor's decision is final.

a) Alaska

c) Singapore

BUPA TravelCover opportunity to win a year's abroad (up to 183 days per year), as well as cover for baggage loss (up to £1500) and trip cancellation (up to

To enter the competition, simply dial the number, and

YTHE INDEPENDENT

PLUS A 10% DISCOUNT FOR EVERY READER

What was last year's most popular long haul destination

b) Dominican Republican

FISE 100 Index hour by hour

Usual Newspaper Publishing rules apply. Editor's decision in the control of the c | Name | Company | Prime | Company | Name | Company | Co

Prices are in starting except where stated. The yield is test year's dividend, grossed up by 20 per cent, as a percentage of the share price. The price/destrings (P/E) ratio is the share price divided by last year's examings per share, excluding exceptional terms. Other details: r Ex nghts x Ex-dividend a Ex all u Unlated Securities Market a Suspended pp Partly Paid pm Nil Paid Shares. $ Alla Stock.

The Independent Index FTSE 100 - Real-time 00 Sterling Rates 04
UK Stock Market Report 01 Bullion Report 05
UK Company News 02 Wall St Report 20
Foreign Exchange 03 Tokyo Market 21

Anyone with a tone-dial telephone can use this service. For a detailed description of The Independent Index, including its portfolio facility, phone 0891 123 333. For assetsince, call our helpine 0771 873 4375 (800am - 500pm).

| 1250000 | National Grad | 1900000 | Natifikest Blank | 1700000 | Scottarh & National 1450000 | Licyde 755 | 1900000 | Certeira | 1900000 | Smild Beacham | 1800000 | Smild B

Somerfield faces uphill struggle

of retail jokes, Somerfield has actually had quite a good year, once it had shaken off the débacle of last summer's flotation. The price had to be cut twice to get the issue away, but shares in the former Gateway supermarkets business have since performed quite strongly. Eventually priced at 145p, they have riseo to 189.5p, outperforming the FT All Share index by over 7 per cent and the food retail sector by 9 per cent, in spite of yesterday's 6p fall.

Given the amount of abuse burled at the company during its float run-up, this is no mean feat. But the question now is whether this performance is

Analysts point out that oearly all the early outperformance was achieved oo day one, when the shares jumped to 171.5p. Since then, Somerfield has traded virtually in line with the sector and with greater risk attached, giveo the company's poteotially vulocrable position to competition on the high street. Meanwhile, the yield, which was around 9 per cent at the time of the float, is now around 5.6 per ceot and so not quite the attraction it once was. Some of this is a bit harsh on Somerfield's management, whose début full-year figures were better than many of the company's critics were expecting. Pre-tax profits were at the top end of expectations, up 15 per cent at £105m. Margins edged up from 3.2 per cent to 3.6 per ceot and the Somerfield-branded stores showed like-for-like sales growth of 4 per ceot. This is good but only half the Somerfield still has a long tail of unconverted old Gateway stores, where sales fell by 5.4 per ceot. Worse are the Food Giant discount stores which, though profitable, saw same-store sales fall by 8 per cent.

All this gave a group like-for-like figure of just 1.4 per cent, which has fallen to 0.2 per cent in current trading, with decent volume growth offset by food price deflation. A further worry is that these figures must have been boosted by the launch of the company's Somerfield is improving margins and working to reduce costs and improve relations with suppliers. It is selling parcels of Food Giant stores when it can. Twenty-two were offloaded to Spa this year without the oeed for write-

For a company that has spent the best part of a decade as the butt of a decade as the button of a decade as

EDITED BY MAGNUS GRIMOND

HSBC James Capel is forecasting profits of £106m this year, which puts the shares on a lowly forward rating of seven. Cheap, but with competition crowding in, Somerfield is going to find life increasingly difficult. Avoid.

Odds are in Stanley's favour

Betting may be a mugs' game for the punter but the likes of Stanley Leisure, the UK's fourthbiggest betting chain, keep raking in the cash. Pre-tax profits rose by nearly a third to £19.4m in the year to April, with racing profits galloping ahead from £7.2m to £13m despite the "Dettori effect", when the popular jockey rocked the racing world by riding seven winners in a row at Ascot and cost Stanley more than £2m in one fell swoop.

The message from Stanley is that the bookies seem to have emerged rela-

HSBC James Capel is forecasting of the National Lottery and its scratch cards. The acquisition of betting chain Gus Carter looks a good buy and Stanley still has the appetite and cash to buy more businesses. Further out it is likely to get into bingo and hotels.

Stanley has also benefited from the Government's decision to relax gaming regulations, allowing more slot machines with higher payouts into betting shops. But the performance from its casino business was much less impressive, even though it can now put one-arm bandits alongside the roulette wheels.

Casino profits edged up from £10.5m to £11m, but gaming margins slipped by half a percentage point to 16.4 per cent due to higher staff costs. The company is paying higher wages and investing in training in an attempt to keep staff longer.

Analysts forecast current-year profits of £25.5m, pitting the shares, unchanged at 310.5p, on a prospective ple ratio of 20. This toppy rating, a 30 per cent premium to the market, anticipates arter premium to the market, anticipates ticipates extra profits from the deregulation of the gambling market

	erfield: A	t a giai	re-
Market val	ue: £573m, shar	e price 189.5	(-6p)
Four-year record	1994	1995	1996	1997
		4,107	Section 1
Pre-tax profits (£m)	37.5	-33.3	91.8	105.4
Pre-tax promo (CON)
Dividends per share (p)		•		10.2
Current trading We for We sales, most recent	announcements	Share pence	rice
4 2	Laborator Laborator	190		M
	B <sub>a</sub>

Stanley, along with the rest of the industry, is lobbying the Government to give its customers the chance to place bets on the Lottery, or play slot machines that pay out £250 prizes. Together these measures could eastly add £5m to the bottom line.

Investors could do worse than having a punt on Stanley. But most of the upside already looks to be in the share price. Fairly priced.

Hi-Tec stands up to the big boys

Ti-Tec Sports, the branded footwear group, has never lived up to expectations. Among its many problems, Hi-Iec has faced dumping from its bigger US rivals, such as being and among the state of the stat as Nike, and extreme difficulties holding on to management. At least 12 members of the board have departed since the beginning of the 1990s.

But yesterday's results, showing pre-But yesterday s results, showing pattax profits up 55 per cent at £3.14m in the year to 2 May, provide some evidence that the group is climbing out of its hole. Particularly welcome is news that it is returning to the dividend lists after two years with a final payment of 1.2p.

There are signs that the board is becoming more stable. Paul Harrison, finance director, was yesterday appointed chief executive. Mr Harrison has been with the group for three years and in all, the four executive directors. including previous chief executive, Terry Mackness, have now been together for two years.

At the trading level, margins are slowly increasing as the group gets to grips with rationalising its brands and its costs, while gearing has tumbled from 90 per cent to 21 per cent over two years. The group also seems to be bolding its own against the big boys, with sakes down just 2 per cent last year, but it remains to be seen whether it can generate decent top-line growth.

Hi-Tec shrugged off the recent string of profit warmings in the sector, saying there remained plenty of opportunity for its Magnum work boots in the US and sports shoes at bome. The stock market may take some convincing and Frank van Wezel, chairman and 52 per cent shareholder, has to prove he can work with his fellow directors.

Even so, the shares, up 1.5p at 38.5p, appear to be discounting the worst on a forward multiple of 7, assuming profits of £4m this year. Hold on.

Herd of dinosaurs ready to pounce on Bank

Just as Steven Spielberg's latest dinosaur flick is about to hit British cinema screens, a prehistoric group of economists has formed a club to celebrate the values of a

A herd of Thatcherite economists has launched a "shadow" UK monetary policy committee to keep an eye on the Bank of England. They held their first meeting last night and intend to emerge from the undergrowth, Tyrannosaurus-like, to tear limb from limb any weedy lefties who attempt to debauch the currency. All the old names are there: two former wise men, Professor Patrick Minford of Liverpool University and Tim Congdon of Lombard Street Research, as well as Alan Walters. Thatch's old éminence grise, now of AIG Trading Group.

Peter Spencer, charman of the herd and professor of financial economics at Birkbeck University, says:
"We felt that, particularly in view of the Bank of England's gaining independence, it was very important that there should be a debate."

Other dinosaurs include Gordon Pepper, professor at City University business school, David Smith of Williams de Broe and Peter Warburton of Flemings.

The herd will operate under the protection of the Institute for Economic Affairs (IEA), and will print minutes within a week of each quarterly meeting and publish them before the Bank of England's quarterly assessment of the economy. Stand by for some blood-

Stephen Morgan, chairman of Redrow, the housebuilders, recently sold 54 million shares in the company at 158p each, realising about £85m in the process. This cut Mr Morgan's stake in the

PEOPLE & BUSINESS

joined a 'shadow' UK monetary policy committee hear he spent a large chunk of the proceeds on building a oew golf course oear Wrexham.

This isn't surprising, since Redrow has done well out of developing St Davids Park Hotel and Golf Club, near the company's base in Wales.
This development included a This development included a private housing estate, a championship-sized swimming pool, gym and sauna, and the golf course is now home to the Welsb PGA.

BAT is moving its head office from the West End of London to the City; it's moving from Windsor House, near Scotland Vard in St near Scotland Yard in St James's Park, to a plush new edifice called Globe House above Temple tube.

Wheo the building is completed in the second quarter of next year, roughly 900 staff will transfer there, the majority from Woking and Staines. Michael Prideaux, a okesman for BAT, says:

You can't have an international tobacco company operating out of Staines, though I'm sure it's a very nice place."
Mr Prideaux says BAT subsidiary Brown &

workers entering the building for rogue non-BAT brands. They confiscate them and replace them with BAT brands such as Lucky Strike and Benson & Hedges.

The France

, V/

1778

C .

The bowl is Ssolved. M

नेका अन्तर भव

ने भारत के होता

Jound Inc.

ngo arem

cycles in the also in the his rose to the Strange but true. Mr Prideaux adds that he personally prefers Monte Cristo cigars to cigarettes.

Incidentally, visitors to the current BAT head office are confrooted with a mountain of fags, a gigantic glass ashtray and a lighter in the reception area. It fairly makes you wheeze just to look at them.

David Thompson, managing director of Wolverhampton and Dudley Breweries, was born io the brewery. I hear. There was a mini-hospital with a delivery room inside the main Wolverhamptoo brewery, says Mr Thompson, a scion of the Midlands beerage dynasty. More recently Mr

Thompson wanted to convert the premises in Wolverhampton into an office so he could work where he was born. But the proposal was deemed too expensive and was dropped. Now the Thompson birthplace is a kegging hall. How many other brewers can say the same?

John Willcock

on +44 171-825-8430 or email: leeanne.gilliar@ft.com

Tour gets on top of Boardman

The leading British cyclist is nursing more than his injuries: he fears for his future in big stage races like the Tour de France. Robin Nicholl talked to him in St Etienne

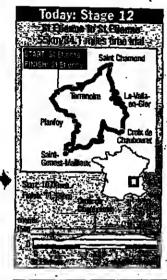

Chris Boardman struggled with two agonies as the Tour de France rested here yesterday. Nearly two weeks after he took the leader's yellow jersey for a second year, he hung a big ques-tion mark over his Tour future. It was prompted more by his inconsistent form than his crash nn Bank

on a Pyrenean mountain descent which displaced two vertebrae, and left him in great pain. "Big tours seem to be beyond me," he said. "I am a good enough single-day rider and for smaller stage races. I am 28 and I have to know what I can do. "I shall be making a career review after this, but it doesn't have to be as drastic as it sounds. I just have to get people around me to accept what Certainly, he wants to escape the pressure that being team leader incurs. "I took on the position of leader because it was open, but I may be better off as a No 2 or 3. Then I don't feel

The opening time trial is a hell of a lot of pressure. In seven and a half minutes you have to get everything out. That I can handle."

With his team sponsors, GAN, the French insurance group, quitting at the end of the year, Boardman may have to consider offers from other teams unless his current team manager, Roger Legeay, finds a new backer.

lems is one that many riders would love to have, His career highlights since he won Olympic gold in Barcelona include a yel-1994, the world hour record in 1993 and 1996, and world titles in the 4.000 metres track pursuit (1994 and 1996) and the

The next step up is huge. "It is only logical for people to expect more after what I have done," Boardman said.

bonus. Luckily Cedric Vasseur took up the reins, hut it was like salt in my wounds."

still I kept turning the pedals." Boardman has known Tour

Among Boardman's probw jersey debut in the Tour in road time trial in 1994.

"After that opening time tri-al any results would have been Vasseur's valiant solo effort put Boardman's fellow GAN rider in the yellow jersey for four days, and that took the pressure off the Briton. He rode oo in agony after his crash, "It was like a poker sticking in me for eight and a half hours. Each day after that I would ride saying: 'I cannot carry on with this.' Yet

Each turn of the pedals is agony for Chris Boardman as he receives a water bottle on Wednesday's 11th stage agony twice, In 1995 Britain expected much, but the twilight in Brittany turned into the twilight of his Tour. He crashed on a wet road in the opening time trial, and next day was flown home

Last year he announced that it was Paris or bust. He reached the French capital, but suffered with an internal bug that made life hard on a vicious stage to Pampiona, Such hardships made him work harder oo being right for 1997.

"I could oot have done any more than I did to prepare, and I was even two kilos lighter than the previous year," he said. with fractures to a wrist and an-However, I was not happy with my form. It is so inconsisteot, and now I am having blood tests to check it out. "It is going to be a laborious nature to give up," he said. "I am one and a half hours behind the leader, but I am focusing on One aim is success for Frederic Moncassin. GAN's sprinter has missed out in all the sprint finishes so far. "I will be trying py, his injury stops him riding search just to find the reasoo hard to get Fred in a good po- his special time-trial hike.

why I cannot maintain my sition for a victory. I feel so sor-form." sition for a victory. I feel so sor-ry for him. He has been frus-

Now he is "dead set" oo trated too often. reaching Paris. "It is not in my Meanwhile, Boardman is focussed oo today's 55km moun-tain time trial at St Etienne. Before his tumble he would have been a real threat to the Tour leader, Jan Ullrich, but despite pain-killing tablets, acupuncture and physiotheraPhotograph: Allsport

"I cannot ride in that position. In fact I cannot even put my hands in my pockets because of the torn muscles around my neck," Boardman said.

Ullrich is expected to romp home in the time trial, especially as Boardman is injured and some other real threats - Tony Rominger, Alex Zülle and Yevgeoy Berzin - are all at home, nursing their broken col-

*INDEPENDENT

01932 846824

01705 826875

Loudon SW14

0121 878 3588

2 - 3 Dover Street

BUSABONG TOO

0171 352 7414

0181 567 9474

94 Sexside

East Suspex

01323 642 867

London W1P 5RD

ROYAL ORCIED THAI

36 Charlotte Street

schecter M1 4FD 0161 236 5183

0171 631 0289

RESTAURANT

THAI PAYILION

42 Report Street

0171 287 6333

54 Portland Street

6161 236 1388

Manchester M1 4QU

BN22 7QP

1a Langton Street

RANGKOK BROADWAY

SEERACHA RESTAURANT

26 - 28 Whitfield Street

157 Uxbridge Road

Canterbury 81227 462 876

Rants

78 Osbourne Road

SOMPITA THAI CUISING

KAM PAN THAI RESTAURANT

431 Upper Richmond Road West

CHAOPRAYA RIVER RESTAURANT

Redgrave ready for glory

Rowing HUGH MATHESON

The British team for the World Championships on Lac Aiguebelettes near Chambery in Eastern France in September has a fresh-faced, post-Olympic look.

The 35-year-old Steven Red-grave, looking as relaxed and confident as in any of the 18 years he has been in the British team will race in the sealest team, will race in the coxless four with his partner in gold since 1991, Matthew Pinscot, and James Cracknell and Tim

Cracknell said: "I have not won a major race since my ju-nior gold in 1990 and in this crew you learn exactly how much you have to do at certain times in the race.

"I am surprised at how fresh I'm feeling sometimes. But then of course winning is much casier than losing. We may not have the highest cruising speed but oo one can match our change of pace in a 40 stroke burst." The four made their competitive dehut in Munich in May and has won all seven races

The coxless pair of Bobby Thatcher and Ben Hunt-Davis has finished second all summer. But the combination has proved a revelation, having been born out of a coxed four. The four was a man short at Munich and the pair raced to make up the programme. Taking second place, they feared this might be a fluke in the unfair conditions. but repeated it in Paris where the conditions were tricky but equal and then did it again at Lucerne to tie on points in the World Cup.

They travel to the championships with genuine hopes of a medal in an event where Britain, in the form of Redgrave, has been on the rostrum for the last 10 years.

Two womeo's crews of high class have emerged during the season: a coxless pair of Cath Bishop and Dot Blackie, and a double scull of Gillian Liodsay and Miriam Batten. It is to be hoped that each will train on after second places in Paris and fourth places in Lucerne.

* THE INDEPENDENT

REE: Thai food dish up to the value of £8

TREAT YOURSELF TO SOMETHING EXOTIC

KHAO NIEW MAMUANG (Mango with Sticky rice)

gredients (Serves 3)

mi Salt

In a bowl, mix the opposit milk, sugar and salt and stir until the sugar has lissolved. Mix in the still warm cooked noe and set aside for 30 minutes.

Peel the mangoes, and slice the two outside longekslipf each fruit as close the contral stone pit as possible. Discard the stone. Since each piece of Mound the rice in the centre of a serving dish and arrange the slices of mango around it. Pour the coconut cream over the rice and serve.

KHAO NIEW (Sticky ride)

troky rice is bought by that name and is available in oriental and specialist cres. In Thailand it is often squeezed into a ball with the fingers and then hoped into a sauce.

s cook approx 1 lb. 450g of sticky rice, put the rice in a powl or pan, cover th cold water and soak for at least 3 hours (or overnight if possible) rain and rinse theroughly. Line the perforated part of a steamer with a doue thickness of muslin and turn the rice into it.

ur water in the bottom of the steamer and steam the rice over a medium eat for 30 minutes. Turn the rice into a bowl and serve.

* THE INDEPENDENT

This voucher entitles the bearer to a free Thai Food Dish from the main menn, m to the value of £8, per table reservation at any one of the participating Thai restaurants as listed in The Independent and Independent on Sunday on 12th and 13th July and The Independent on Friday 18th July. This voucher is valid until 31st August 1997.

Pre-booking is essential. Please identify yourself as an independent diner when making the table reservation.

RESTAURANT LIST

ARUNG TAP RESTAURANT

U171 263 1A30

LODGON WCZN 4BP

0271 379 4580

CEDENCIARRAY OLDER SWS OFA

MT 202 2744

THAI THAN a distrup to the value of 18 at a 0171 259 2314

printed below can be used, per 21 10171 722 0026 the reservation; to exima free That Dieb from the main menn in 208-210 Estierses Park Road

That Just a root its instrument up to the state of State by the of the
to the state of State by the of the
to the state of State by the of the
to the state of State by the of the
to the state of State by the of the
to the state of State by the of the
to the state of State by the of the
to the state of the of the of the of the of the total of the state of the of the of the of the total of the state of the of the of the of the of the total of the state of the of unter the August 1997

Se was not be by depth at Thursday to your palests whether it a stundings intensely David at That satur space and That satur space are some and That satur space active or sweet. sticky rice! The choice is your

115 Finchier Road Series Cottage London NW3 6HY CHANG THAI DESTRUBANT

London SW11 45D

SALA THAI PESTAIRANT 1066 Christoharch Road

CHIANG MAI RESTAURANT SAP THAL RESTAURANT

OR BOY THAI RESTAURANT Lendon SW17 OPG

RUNIWONG THAI RESTAURANT 16-20 London Read

CHARUMAN THAI RESTAURANT

Trans AND CONDITIONS

1. To participate in the effer, stopty cut out the vouctar printed in the independent or ledebendent or Scotley and telephone the participality restaurant direct to make your table reservation, quoting the independent offer it order to quality for the office is order to questry our un-premotion, You must be at least 16 year, of age to previolpate in the prosection. 2. As reservations wast be made in advance and are subject to weakehilly. 3. Vouchers will set be accepted withou

5a High Street Laicester LE11 2PY

01509 260030 BURAPA THAI RESTAURANT 69 Westow BM Loudon SE19

0181 766 7424 NAVA THAI RESTAURANT The Ramilton Arms School Lage West Sussex GU29 BWZ 01730 812 555

NIPA RESTAURANT Boral Lancaster Hotel London WZ 2TY 0171 262 6737

MARISA THAI RESTAURANT 218 Old Christchurch Road Dorset BH1 1PE YUM YUM THAI RESTAURANT

30 Stoke Nowington -Church Street London N16 OLU 0171 254 6751 TUI THAI RESTAURANT 19 Exhibition Rose Loadon SW7 2HE

0171 584 8359 MATHUROSE THAI RESTAURANT 92 Kirkdele wierken. London SE26 48G 0181 699 1184

9 Bounchesto Place Knightsbriden London SW3 1NQ 8171 581 8820 THAI POT RESTAURANT 1 Bedfordbury Covert Garden

PATARA

starter or mula disk from the locavidual priced dishes lighed on the menu up to the value of CB, Beverages are sucludes trock this office. E. The vocation commot be used in part E. The vocather cannot be used by part payment against either a set lauch or a set dense: 6. The vocather highly must another to the dark against which the vocather is intended to be used and present it at the time of order. Only one vocather can be used per table reservation irrespective of the number of people covered by the reservation.

7. If the value of the selected disk comme lease star 25 on relations will be adven to large their £3 on change will be given

Streathau, London SW16 7AB 0181 769 7529 PU's BRASSERIE 10 Gate Street

Holbers London W2A 3HP 0171 404 2132 THE COCK & DRAGON Chalk Lase Cockfocters

Berts EN4 9RU D181 449 7160 CHIANG RAI THAI RESTAURANT 16 Princess Street

0161 237 9511 CHANG RAI THAI RESTAURANT 762-766 Wilmslow Road idsbury M20 3DR 0161 448 2277

THE CRAS & DRAGON 220 Frimley Read Server EU15 205 01276 22578 THE NORBITON & DRAGON

16 Clifton Road Kingston SMITEY KTZ 6PW 0181 546 1951 WALMER CASTLE 58 Leebury Road, London W11 2A1 D171 229 4620

THAI GARDEN Sussex Barn Ringle's Cross East Sasses 01825 763827 THAI CARDEN 47a High Street

Weybridge

conjunction with any other offer, is not transferable and cannot be embanged for ceals. 9. Photocopies or counterfalts or other reproductions of the worther or other reproductions of the vouché are not accepted. 10. The offer appli-ent in meals only. 11. Opening times a acceptable dress codes may vary. Please confirm white making your to reservation. All judvidest preturnent trading tyres and conditions apply. 12. The independent carnet be held. training parson may be a baid responsible and shall not be fable for any failure or breach by the faithful restaurant and accepts no responsibilities have been presented by may settled by the voucher holder directly with the individual rectsorant. 13. All exquiries toost be made in writing to: "Free Thai Digh" Offer, 1st Floor, Warwick House, 1 Clarement Leon,

SIAM ORCHID THAI RESTAURANT

Promoters: Howepaper Publishing plo, One Create Square, Currery Wherf, London, E16 5AP and Dislogue Meriating Pertaectals 1st, Warnick House, 1 Clarement Lane, Estec, Surrey KT10 90R.

CRICKET: Lancashire and Kent take command while Hampshire offer little resistance to Surrey

Taylor's toil is salve to Sussex

HENRY BLOFELD reports from Old Trafford Lancashire 561-8 dec v Sussex 156-5

Had this been a boxing match the referee would have stopped the right in mid-morning, ft was as one-sided as that and one could only feel sorry for Sussex, whose most realistic amhitioo now is to try and make sure the match goes to a fourth day.

After all the upheavals at Hove in the winter and spring, Sussex knew that this was going to be a long season. After tos-ing four senior players and surviving a palace revolution, the remaining players cannot be blamed for what has happened.

Fortunately for them, Neil Taylor took up the challenge at Old Trafford and was the only Sussex batsman, metaphorically, to hite the ears of the Lancashire bowlers. On the eve of his 38th birthday, he is a little chunkier, with an open stance that must make the howler sometimes wonder whether he is ready to bat. Hard though Taylor fought driving, cutting and hooking in fine style - he was still unable to do anything about the air of un-reality which hung heavy over the game. Wheo a side needing 412 to avoid the follow-on has sunk to 65 for 4 there is not a lot that can be done, but at least when Taylor was in Lancashire knew they had a fight oo their hands.

Round-up without loss.

Kevio Curran's best perfor-

second-placed Essex oo the second day of their Championship match at Northampton.

Essex hit the self-destruct hutton and were all out for 275. By the close Northamptonshire had stretched their lead to 103

Derbyshire were left fighting a rearguard action at Cheltenham after Gloucestershire's

Shauo Young hit a career-best

237. The visitors ended t90 runs behind with seven second-innings wickets intact and facing a fifth Championship defeat.

best innings in a home match, and some hosole scam bowling in helpful conditions carried

Yorkshire to the brink of victory over Durham at Scarborough.

Yorkshire reached 372 to gaio

a first-innings lead of 220 and

Darren Lehmann's 86, his Curran picked up 4 for 32 as st-innings lead of 89 over session to rain at Trent Bridge,

This may sound a little unfair. not to say ungenerous, to Lancashire, for no side can do more than beat the opposition set against it. On Wednesday, John Crawley and Neil Fair brother had assured Lancashire of a good score and now Mike Watkinsoo and Ian Austin cooverted it into a huge one. In the first 138 minutes of the day Lancashire added another f81.

Not surprisingly, the Sussex openers seemed bowed down by the weight of their task and concentrated on little more than survival. Peter Martin is full of confidence after his 13-wicket haul against Middlesex at Uxbridge, and bowled extremely well with good cootrol and movement away from the bat. The score was only nine when he had Neil Lenham lbw playing half forward and, at 4f, Rajesh Rao was out in similar fashion.

This was just the occasion for a typical innings of interminable patience by Bill Athey but when he made six he felt most uncharacteristically for Austin outside the off-stump without footwork and was caught at first

Two balls later, Keith Greenfield played oo stroke at one which came back and bowled him. Taylor's entertaining display followed before Gary Yates cleverly beat him in the air with ooe he threw up a little more and had him caught at extra cov-er. After that, it was back to siege warfare until rain eoded play with 1f overs still to be bowled.

Low blow: Essex's Graham Gooch falls flow to Northamptonshire's Mohammad Akram yesterday

Ealham eases pain for Marsh

DEREK PRINGLE reports from Canterbury Kent 498-9 v Leicestershire

Mark Ealham, the England all-Curran puts Essex rounder, scored a career-best 139 as Kent, enduring a day on the back foot mostly washed out by rain, finished on 498 for 9. Presuming they declare overnight, Kent oow have two days in which to bowl Leicestershire out twice. theo reduced the visitors to 61 for 5 at the close. Bradley Park-Such an achievement, if fulfilled, will go some way to easing the er dominated the latter stages disappointments of their capof Yorkshire's innings with a tain, Steve Marsh, left-strandmance with the ball since 1993 stylish unbeateo 74, Despite losing the enti ed two runs short of his second Despite losing the entire first three-figure score of the season.

Matthew Hayden may have been ignored for the Ashes series, but it is a safe bet that the left-hander from Queensland will have smeared a lot of egg on the faces of the Australian selectors before

His pleasure at passing fifty yet again in the Championship with some muscular pulls and harsh cuts and powerful drives may have been tempered by the fact that when he was bowled

the end of the season.

DAVID LLEWELLYN

Hampshire 200-5

Surrey 477

reports from Guildford

Hundreds clearly do not come easily to Ealham, and this, the third of his career, was only his first at home in nine seasons with Kent. Painstakingly crafted, he spent just over 75 minutes in the 90s, oeeding 40 balls just to move off 96, a score which he seemed to becalm him until James Ormond supplied the ball he neatly tucked off his hips. When he was eveotually out, he had batted for six and a half hours, faced 328 balls and struck 19 houodaries. Ormood, who ended with 5 for 107, is another 19-year-old starting to make waves. On Wednesday morning he damaged Kent with three quick by Martin Bicknell for a good-wickets before going off the boil in the afternoon, when he and the other Leicestershire bowlers prematurely settled for tea and cake before Kent were quite ready to take it.

A strapping 6ft 3in, he looks and bowls like a zestful David Millns, the man he followed from the Pavilioo End. Where he differs from Millns, however, is in the thought he lends to his art, and pacy though the teenager undoubtedly is, he is not the headless tearaway Millns was when he first started.

Ormand has twice been on a hat-trick in this match, and tributed to the county champiyesterday's chance to perform ons' woe by adding 146 for the the feat came wheo he eighth wicket.

In addition to that they are ea-removed Ealham, who suffered the cruel demise of seeing a miscued drive rebound from foot to stump, and Julian Thompson also bowled, this time off an mside edge.

Marsh, meanwhile, has oot had a fulfilling week. On Saturday, his team were outclassed by Surrey in the Benson and Hedges Cup final. Yet Marsh is the consummate team man. He has been around long enough to oot let yesterday's slight mishap worry him and would have been content with the way he and Ealham con-

Hayden's reminder for Australian selectors oear miracles since his arrival in the winter of 1996. Surrey had

lnoking 58, he needed just 35 more runs to win the race to 1,000 first-class runs this season. Never mind. He may well get hips only for his back foot to slip the chance to do that today, beinto the stumps. cause Hampshire's situation, With the Benson and Hedges with the bulk of their froot-line Cup safely in their grasp, nothing further to worry about in the Nat West Trophy, Surrey are now in a position to concentrate more fully on the Championship.

hatsmeo out of it, is far from promising. They oeed a further f28 to avoid the follow-oo but it could have been worse had bad light not hrought a premature close to the proceedings. If Surrey whip them ont smartly enough this morning that could see Hayden returning to the crease a trifle earlier than anticipated.
The Surrey bowlers will cer-

A A Donald not out _____ M A V Bell Bur b 708sy ____ Estres (b7, b10, w14, nb8)_

Test fast bowler, has achieved tainly not make scoring as easy as they their own batsmeo won nothing in f4 years. Now found it. Hampshire did have a in the space of 10 months they spot of had luck, Matthew have lifted the Sunday League Keech tried to turn a ball off his and the B&H Cup.

But hanging on to the 36year-old may not he as easy as offering him an all-in package worth a reputed £100,000 a year. Gilbert and his Englishborn wife Hilary are due to "talk torkey" as chairman Mike Soper puts it, this weekend. The discussions will take into account ger to secure the services of manfamily needs, security and so on, ager David Gilbert for a further with Gilbert promising a decithree years, if reports around sion will follow shortly. He may Guildford are anything to go by. Gilbert, a former Australian well settle for a two-year deal at The Oval. .

Oldham rely on Russell's cool head

Rugby League DAVE HADFIELD

Oldham and Leeds share the distinction of opening the British proceedings in the second phase of the World Club Championship, both hoptog that they can take advantage of home surroundings tonight.

The North Queensland Cowboys will spy a familiar face at Boundary Park, with their former loose forward, Ian Russell, making his debut for Oldham.

The Oldham coach, Boh

Lindner, who played with Russell at Illawarra, has oo qualms about throwing him straight into the action. "He will give us a steady head out there, which is what we oeed, he said. "He might have slowed down a hit, but you don't lose your ball skills. Narrow defeats to Sheffield and Castleford have dragged Oldham into bottom place in the European Super League, so it is doubly important that they rebuild some confidence during this interlude. With his regular stand-off,

Francis Maloney, injured, Lind-oer moves another Australian, Luke Goodwin, into that role. With their first choice front-row of Ian Roberts, Steve Walters and John Lomax all listed to play, the Cowboys look too

Although the Adelaide coach, Rod Reddy, says that he has no stars at his disposal. Walters' hrother, Kerrod, looked suspiciously like one as he carved British defences apart last month. Both houser and coach believe that Leeds will be the stronger for their experiences in Australia. "They con-Bidered themselves unlucky against us and we will have to be at our best to beat them again," Reddy said. Leeds are still without the injured Richie Blackmore and Francis Cummins, but are like-ty to promote Adriao Morley from the substitutes beach to start the match. Warringtoo begin their Australiao campaign at Penrith today, but the most cagerly awaited match of the weekeod is on Sunday evening, when Brisbane are at Wigan.

The Brisbane coach, Wayne Bennett, has repeated his offer, made after the first phase of the compection, to help the British game catch up.

"I take oo pleasure from the first round of results, because they were not good for rugby league," said Bennett, who has not yet had any response to his offer. "I think the world of [Super League chief executive] Maurice Lindsay aod, if he thought there was anything t could do, I would do it tomor-

Six more sign for Bedford

Rugby Union

Bedford signed six oew players yesterday and theo announced plans for four more signiogs all of them internationals - as they try to make up for last seasoo's promotion oear-miss.

The Leicester scrum-half Aadel Kardooni, Orrell No 8 Peter Anglesca and Worcester outside half Tony Yaap have joined the ambitious Secood Division side along with New Zealanders Simon Crahh, Richard Kirke and Justin Cullen.

Their director of rugby, Geoff Cooke, the former England and Lions manager, stressed that the Midlands club's speoding would not stop there. "In a fortnight's time I hope to announce the arrival at Bedford of four more internationals," he

Two of them are recent internationals and two of them current, adding to speculation that he is negotiating terms with former England winger Rory Uoderwood, whose departure from Leicester was recently announced.

"Our aim is to recruit early and to achieve a squad with the sort of strength in depth that we shall need to win Divisioo Two oest season," Cooke added.

provided by boxing promoter Frank Warren, who believes Bedford will be the team to beat oext seasoo after losing to Bristol in the promotion play-offs.

"With these players on board and more to follow, I am confideot we will be a League One side this time next year," he said. The ambitious Cornish club, Penzance-Newlyn. snapped up Welsh ioternatiooal Kevin Moseley. The Pirates have beaten off a pack of senior clubs to sign the former Pontypool, Newport and West Hartlepool lock oo a two-year contract. The Pirates' player-coach, Mark Ring, a former welsh in-ternational, said: "He's the hig ooe for us. We fought off a couple of English senior clubs and a couple of Welsh ooes - Newport and Ebbw Vale - to get Kevin is 6ft 8in and a fit 13 stooe. He has a coaching back ground too so it's a hig gap we've filled."

fo Australia 100,000 tickets have already been sold for oext April's Bledisloe Cup match between Australia and New Zealand, despite the fact that the game will be played in Meibourne, the country's traditional hot-bed of Australian Rules football. Tickets have ext season," Cooke added.

The money is again being than five times their face value.

Italians invited to stage World Games

Equestrianism GENEVIEVE MURPHY

The ftalian Equestrian Federation is hoping to stage next year's World Equestrian Games, although no firm decision will be made until the end of the month.

The invitation to host the Games was received on Tuesday evening, shortly after the announcement that Ireland had finally abandoned the struggle to fund the big event which was due to be held in County Kildare next summer.

In a meeting yesterday morning, the ftalians agreed to post-pone their decision until after 30 July wheo Bo Helander. secretary general of the In-

The number of pigs' ears sent In the post to Mike Tyson, who was disqualified a formight ago for fitting off part of Evander Pholyfield's eac Each ear had a stamp attached and the address written in felt tip pen The only things we won't mail for you are cats, dogs and kids, a US postal service ternational Equestrian Feder-ation, will be in Rome for further discussions. ff ao agreement is reached, the Games will be split between two beautiful venues: the Piazza di Siena in the heart of Rome and Pratoni del Vivaro some 20 miles south. Both were used for the equestrian events at the 1960 Olympic Games.

Although it is short notice. the Italians have the great advantage of two long-established showgrounds where at least one major eveot is held each year. The Piazza dt Siena is the home of Rome's annual Nations' Cup meeting and an annual three-day event takes place at Pratoni del Vivaro, which w the veoue for the 1995 European Open Championships.

Britannic Assurance County Championship Gioucestershire v Derbyshire CKELTEMMAE Derbyshire (4pts) are 190 ram behind Gioucestershire (5) with seven sec-enti-irelings victorie standing. Derbyshir won loss

Diffels De Total (few 3, 55 overs) De Total (few 3, 55 overs) De Total (few 3, 55 overs) De Total (few 3, 515) De Total (few 3, 515) De Total (few 4, 515) De Total (few 4, 515) De Total (few 5, 515) De Total (few 6, 515) Kent v Leicestershire CAMERISMENT, Kent (4pts) are 486 for 9 in their first linnings against Leicestorshire (3). Kent won loss

Match 6 [Jackpot]

Match 5 plus bonus ball grip oo Nottinghamshire, first-ly by extending their own first innings total to 344 and then re-Warwickshire tightened

ducing Nottinghamshire to 93 for 7, Dougle Brown taking four

Paul Reiffel shone with both bat and ball as Australia opened up a 215-run lead over Glamorgan oo the second day of their First he took the last five

Glamorgan wickets for just eight runs in 46 halls as the Welsh county slumped from 218 for 5 to 254 all out to concede a 115-had radically changed their batting order for the second innings, Reiffel came to their rescue with an unbeaten 35 to lift them from a perilous 42 for 5 to t00 for 5 at the close.

Theo, after the Australians run first-innings lead.

three-day game in Cardiff.

of the wickets to fall.

7-307, B-633, 9-433.
120 events 384-7.
Bewling Milins 30-5-106-1; Mullially 30-5-116-1; Omrond 28-4-107-5; Person 32-11-79-2; Johnson 20-6-56-0; Wells 3-0-14-0.
LEICESTERSHIRE: V I Wels, D L Maddy, I J Sutdiffe, I J J Minsters N C Lonrson, B F Smith, 19
A Naton, A R K Person, D J Milins, A D Mullially, J Ormand. Umpires: K E Palmer and B J Meyer. Lancashire y Sussex

Sussex won loss SUSSEN WITH COSS LANCASHURE — First tonings (Overnight: 380 for 5) "M Weiterson town b Javes .... My Warparson tow b Junior
W K Hong Rw b Drakes
G Yates b Jarvs
P J Maron not out Extres (0)15, w2, 1032)
Total (for 8 dec, 139 ow

7etal (for 8 dae, 139 overs) 581 Fait 1-57, 2-67, 3-310, 4-334, 5-338, 6-457, 7-496, 8-499 Did not hait D J Shadford, 120 overs 4-69-6. Bowling Orales 30-6-114-1: lares 28-2-104-2; Robrison 32-4-12-3; formey 30-6-125-2; New 8-1-25-0; Greenfest 4-1-18-0; Reo 7-1-18-0.

ON WEDNESDAY IT WAS THEM.

CRICKET SCOREBOARD Felit: 1-9, 2-41, 3-85, 4-65, 5-137.
To bett: V C Drakes, P W Jervis, M A Robinson, R J Writer, Shaddord 12.3-1-37-0; Mertin: 15-6-33-2 Austra 8-1-38-2; Waterson 8-1-19-0; Yates 11-4-23-1; Uurghress: D J Constant and R Julen.

Notts v Warwickshire TENT SHDGE Nottinghometre (spin) are 251 runs behad Warwickshire (s) with three first-inning, wickets standing, Notinghometrie with toos
WARWICKSHEEF - Prut Innings
(Normight 225 for 9)
A Donata not out INVESTIGATION OF THE STATE OF T Northamptonshire y Essex

D Raptey not Out. 29
SA J Bossell c Hussein b Covicin 29
Schriss (b1, 166, nb1.7) 3,84
Pett: 1,65, 2-55, 3-100, 4-155, 5-24, 6-281, 7-282, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-294, 8-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-284, 9-2

2.2-0-0. General J H Hempstore and P Wiley.

£5.000.000

£72,421

n I Roberts not out .... R J Warren Inc.
Extres (ob2)
Total (for 0. 11 overal)
To bot: "R J Balley, M B Loye, K M Curran, D J To bot: "R J Balley, M Stepe, JP Teyto, M Alexan, S A J Boowel.
Rowflag Cauch 4-3-7-0; Williams 5-3-7-0; Such

Ü Atzsai c Root b Donella

M P Doemen not out

N P Doemen not out

O M M Roon not out

Dotters (o1, lb.), w4, nb4)

Total (for 7, 43 mers)

Falt 1. 22, 234, 3-53, 4-61, 5-69, 6-79, 7-79.

To bet: P J Franks, A R Orem.

Bowlingt Doneld 13-2-37-1; Brown 16-8-29-4; web; B-3-18-2; Bel 5-2-7-0; Giles 1-1-0-0, Usephres: V A Holder and B Leschester. Surrey v Hampshire ggu DFORD: Hampshire (5pts) are 277 rms behind Surrey (6) with five first-innings wickets standing.
Surrey won too:
SURREY - First innings
(Overnight 457 for 9)
CC Less c Ued b Bour!
A J Tutor not out

TOTAL EACH TIER

£5,000,000

21 Total (210.1 ws., n04) 21 Total (210.1 ws., n04) 22 Total (210.1 ws.) 24 Total (210.1 ws.) 24 Total (210.1 ws.) 24 Total (210.1 ws.) 24 Total (210.1 ws.) 25 Total (210.1 ws.)

A Welher, Bouding: Gough 8-1-27-2: Savetwood 7-3-18-2: Hardey 8-3-14-1; Stemp 3-3-0-0. Unspirote: J H Harts and G Sherp. Totley's Challenge Series (Second day of time; today 13.0) Glamorgan v Australia

2 Wester 25-5-97-2 Footers (19-3-58-2)
DERHAM - Second Institute 1 J B Levis 6 Stivenwood ...
M J Foster c Bladely 6 Gough ...
J E Morris c White b Gough ...
N J Speats c White b Gough ...
N J Speats c White b Hardey ...
C Board c Bladely b Stivenwood ...
M M Betts not out ...
M M Betts not out ...

SECOND XX CHARPSONSHEP (Second day of three today 1.0); Senthampton Yesdam ALA for 7 dec and 18 for 3 three today 1.0); Senthampton Yesdam ALA for 7 dec and 18 for 3 three today 1.0); Senthampton Yesdam ALA for 7 dec and 18; for 2 three today 1.0); Senthampton 187 for 7 dec (SR Treeges 105. PR Witnesser 123. M Captalay 72; G1 Barry 4-94. Heves Summa 413 for 5 dec and 82; for 2; Glampton 318 for 8 dec (I Phorne 53. T. W L Law 58, R E Bere 54. G I Mayne 53. Senth Shielder burham 162 and 319 for 7 D G Clagaration 1320; or M S Weston 51; Laconswitze 215 for 9 dec (Larcated) 235 for 8 dec (PR Seen 10100, I) Hayres 63no, 51 W Andrew 3-35, (Second day of locar today 11.0; E dec (PR Seen 10100, I) Hayres 63no, 51 W Andrew 3-35, (Second day of locar today 11.0; E dec (PR D Enry 129, CR Hernel 93, N V Pachy 72; Somesta 176 and 241 for 2 M Elimpothick days, M Burns 63 not. The 6-ck Sumy 447 and 156 for 7 (R W Revest 63, E) El Stambon 4-53; Kerk 277 (R M Peanson 4-100).

S Memprovict.

Browling: Decrees 9-3-17-2; Parter; 10-2-26-3;
Coder 6-2-13-0; Bander 4-1-10-0; Date 4-1-14C; Mayner 4-0-17-0.

Unspired: 1-0-17-0.

C Balderstone and 7 E Jesty. Worcesterskire v Pakista

Banding: Shoop 6-2-7-0; Adult 3-0-1. 2-0-8-0. Unspires: 1 D Bond and N A Mellander.

TODAY'S NUMBER

spokesman saki

599 £1,679,435 Match 3 £13.719.212 THE NATIONAL LOTTERY

Draw date: 16/7/97. The winning numbers: 8, 18, 23, 26, 35, 45. Bonus number: 3. Total Sales: £28,293,431. Prize Fund: £13,733,006 (45% of ticket sales plus £998,712 Superdraw funding).

NO. OF WINNERS

Toller's

BATTERS ATMAN AND THE PARTY OF

and the file of Control of the contro

4.00 WALLINGTON POR

SALISBU All Samme a Corne # 30 lesert Lat. & St. March 719 L. 1. 1. 1. 1. 2.

Logical Company of the State of 6.20 Assessment and C: 155 G: $3.0 COMMUNICATION OF THE STATE OF T

**********

A STATE OF THE TANK OF THE TAN Age of a law way

6.50 METHER BOOK A Marie Louis Senson

AUIII LAIM PAR ACING SERV

distribution. 11 A.M. E.P. d ME Gwall 4 No.

Toller's form evokes stardust memories

RICHARD EDMONDSON

When the pixies went round sprinkling their magic dust the sack broke at Majors Farm stables, Whitsbury. This report was almost made impossible following your correspondent's visit to the tiny Hampshire yard in the early 1990s. That day the only sprinkling that seemed to be needed was salt and pepper as one immate appeared to believe the procrusion from this writer's cuff was not a bunch of fives but rather a bunch of carrots.

contrary seemed, strangely, to be the case) as he first alerted the nation to the bewitching nature of his premises. The Majors captured another major earlier this month when Compton Place popped up at 50-1 in the Group One July Cup and there are expectations that the current incumbent, James Toller, will collect the richest race to be run in Britain this weekend.

The Weatherbys Super Sprint, at Toller's favourite course, Newbury, will by no means feature the best two-yearolds in the land as it is designed not appear to earn Desert Or-chid any enemies (in fact the bought animal This factor, however, will have no bearing on the post-race celebrations. Toller's representative is the filly Petarga, who already has

RICHARD EDMONDSON NAP: Delphic Way (Newbury 3.30) NB: Matata (Newmarket 8.30)

wmning form, at Bath, to her name. "I'm very pleased with her and it's the obvious race to and managed to overcome it.

"With these sort of horses you don't get too many shots at a £50,000 race. We can always look at nurseries and that sort al Applause looks to have run of stuff later, but she's won her race so we've got to go for it. It's a race you can only approach with a degree of confidence if you have got an outstanding that we've found the key to him two-year-old and I can't say I've in holding him up off a fast-run got that, so I'm not exactly bullish. But she's half useful and she's been working well." Compton Place proved himself wholly useful at Newmargo for," the trainer said yester-day. "Both times she has run at trainer now considers the chestpany. "I keep looking at the race and trying to find some way it was a fluke, but I'm sure now it just wasn't." Toller said. "Rovup to his Cork & Orrery form with Indian Rocket, and while I didn't expect mine to win I knew he'd run a good race. Now that we've found the key to him pace I'm sure he will continue to show his form." The first venue for this conviction is Deauville and the Prix Maurice de Gheest in three weeks' time, although York's Nunthorpe Stakes stands as an going up in France. The autumn target is the Haydock Park Sprint Cup. As he navigates the halls of Chatsworth in Derbyshire, the Duke Of Devonshire, Compton Place's owner, does not consider for one moment another tantalising event, the Breeders' Oup Sprint in America. The Duke's chestnut bullet is to be kept in training for another season at least and so he is leaving Hollywood Park to its own stars this year before testing the Majors Farm stardust once again in 1998. Yesterday's results, page 31

Helissio heads King George betting at 13-8

lad, Jimmy Scott, believes the state of the ground at Ascot holds the key to which of the stable's runners - Pilsudski or Sing-

This unprovoked attack did ever, it is the Arc winner, Helissio, who heads the betting on the race which opened yesterday. "There were no excuses spiel - will come out on top in next week's King George VI & when Pilsudski beat Singspiel in the Breeders' Cup," Scott said.

"And Pilsudski has improved since. But he is a big, gross horse, who likes to get his toe in, whereas Singspiel is better els," Scott added. King George VI & Queen Elizabeth Stalese (Ascot, 25 July). Corac 13-8 Heisesio, 2-1 Srigspiel, 100-30 Pisadeti, 10-1 Swain, 12-1 Shararu, Predappo, 16-1 Krigisher Mat. Totor 13-8 Heisesio, 3-1 Singspiel, 7-2 Pisadeti, 12-1 Predappo, 14-1 Krigisher Mil, 16-1 Swain, Sharirou. on fast ground.

"Helissio would have to be but it is a case of how he trav-terday when the jockey suffield when a shoe came flying from the pack and hit him on great pain, was unable to give any assistance to the horse who

Unlucky horseshoe

A horseshoe brought Gary at the back of the 13-runner Carter bad luck at Leicester yesfered a bruised right knee after the right kneecap. Carter, in being struck by a loose plate. Carter, riding Pip's Addition in the Sutton Selling Stakes, was finished well beaten.

The Second Section of the Principle Control of the Principle Country of . 80

2.30 Overture 3.00 Hidden Meadow 3.30 Alpha Whisky 4.00 Boss Lady 4.30 Always Alight 5.00 Russlan Rose 5.30 Sheltering Sky

MEMBURY

GOING: Good to Pirm. STALLS: Round course – inside; straight – stands side. DRAW ADVANTAGE: High for 5f to 1m on straight course.

Left-hand course.
Course is SE of town near ASA. Railway station (service from London, Paddington) adjoins course, ADMISSION: Members $14 (Aurison 18-21 57); Tatorsalis SE; Silver Ring $4 (OAPs half price) Accompanied 17-year-ones or many accept per person.

Prec; Picale area $4 per car plus $4 per person.

BLINKERED FIRST TIME: First Village (3.30); Vanishing Trick (visored) (4.00). WINNERS IN LAST SEVEN DAYS: Out Line (4.30) won at Ling-

Reid on Friday.

LONG-DISTANCE BUNNERS: First VIII.age (3.30) has been sent 323 miles by J Berry from Cockerham, Luncashire.

2.30 EBF ECCHINSWELL NOVICE STAKES (CLASS D) £5,000 added 2YO 6f 13 OVERTURE (23) R Hannon 8 4 ARBANT (USA) J Gosden 8 12 COUBLE BRANDY I Balding 8 MUYUSSIR C J Bensteed 8 12..... Pers sons I Balong 8 12.....

SABRAAN W R Hem 8 12 ....

TUMBLINEED PROSPECT 8 Meeton 8 12 M Tebbert 2 NGSHT OWL R Charton 8 7 T Sprine 7 - 10 declared -BETTING: 9-4 Ariest, 9-2 Overtime, 5-1 Generations, 7-1 Sobbass, 10-1. Temblescool Prospect, 12-1 Hight Out, Pips Song, 14-1 Stone Fronthe Ent., 16-1 Double Bready, Mityasakr

STORM FROMTHE EAST R Hannon 8 11 ..... Done O'New .

3.00 WATERMAL STAKES (CLASS C) £7,500 added 7f 64yds (Round)

— 8 declared — BETTRIC: 2-1 Decorated Hero, 11-4 Hidden Meadow, 5-1 My Branch, 11-2 Restructure, 12-1 Cayantu Kei, Wilhelf, 14-1 Enty Dollar, 50-1 Rabeen

3.30 CHATTIS HILL MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS D) £5,000 added 2YO filles 5f 34yds

3 KENKAN (23) P Cole 8 11. MADANE CLAUDE | Toker 8 11. O QUEZ SHOW (28) R Harron 8 11. THANKS ERVING O Chappel 8 11. Dane O'Nell 5

— 11 declared -BETTIME: 3-1 Kentan, 21-2 Alpha Whisty, 7-2 Baylout, 8-1 First Dunce, Thenissiving, 9-1 First Village, 10-1 Cloudberry, Delphic Way, Madama
Cleanie, 12-1 Quiz Show, To Love With Love, 14-1 Belle De Halt

4.00 WATERFORD FOOD HANDICAP (CLASS D) £5,000 added 3YO filles 1m 2f 3-2231 SELLETTE (25) O Haydn Jones 9 7 ...

SALISBURY ....

HYPERION 6.20 Samara Song 6.50 Hujoom 7.20 Irsal 7.50 Desert Lady 8.20 Rambold 8.50 Tycooness

GOING: Good to Firm (GFirm in places). STALLS: Straight – far side; 1m 2f – inclde; 1m 4f – stands aide. DEAW ADVANTAGE: Nanc.

DEAW ADVANTAGE: Name.

Right-hand course, mainly uphill and testing.

Course is im SW of city off AD094. Subsbury station 3m. Bos service to course. ADMISSION: Members £13; Tattergalis £9; Course Enclosure 54 (n-16s free all enclosures). CAR PARK: Free, BLINKERED FIRST TUBE. Mose (7.20).

WINNERS IN LAST SEVEN DATS: None.

LONG-DISTANCE KUNNERS: Tycoopens (8.54) has been sent 284 miles by M Johnston from Middleham, North Torkshire.

6.20 AXMINSTER 100 APPRENTICE HANDICAP (CLASS 6) £3,000 added 1m

Sördraum meiger: 250. Armeste Step Str 130. Accham 73: 20. Armeste Step Str 130. BETTIME: 9-4 Colmisseer, 4-1 Seasses Song, 8-1 Berubox Boy, 10-1 King BETTIME: 9-4 Colmisseer, 4-1 Seasses Song, 8-1 Hary Call, Warren Keight, 20-1 Lady Sower, River Soign. 25-1 Absolute Utopie, Magic Lahr, 33-1

6.50 NETHERAVON NOVICE STAKES (CLASS D) £4,550 added 270 7f

RETRIBUDA BOY 8 Meeten 8 12....

ians in it

e World &

up,"	Scott	said. very difficult to beat in France,
2	6620	FANCASTIC FLAME (42) P Makin 9 8
3	61-020	VAMERHING TRICK (USA) (29) H Cecil 9 5	i
4	542	KAZIRANGA (ISA) (61) L Curriery 9 3L. Deltori 9	l
5	621	BOSS LIEDY (49) R Charlest 92Pat Bildary 7
8		LONELY HEART (13) O Braceth 9 2
7	2-33	ENGISTED (BO) Sr M Prestott 8 13 & Duffield 11	í
8	2122-0	JULETTA MA (USA) (37) W May 8 11
9	443-0	SANDA ROSA (60) J Duntoo 8 1 T Sonake 8
10		INCLUMENTON (LA) M Exceptant 8 1. Only 3
11		BELLAGRAMA (38) M Festigration-Godley 7 10.R Pirench (3) 4

BELLIGHTHAN CSR M Femerator-Godey / 10.8 Firench (3 4 — 13, declared — Manimum weight: 7st 10th. True handicap weight: Befingram 7st 8th.
 BETTING: 11-8 Boss Larly, 4-1. Selfette, 5-1. Korkanga, 13-2 Callisted, 8-1
 Yasishing Tides, 10-1. Inclusion, Londy Neurt, 12-1. Suota Rose, 14-1
 Juliette Mia, Fantastic Flame, 20-1. Bellegram

4.30 SHRIVENHAM HANDICAP (CLASS C)

-50000 LAW COMMINISTION (2) (D) 0 Selectit 7 20 0 D Helband 8 000010 CHARGE SELET (20) (D) (R) 8 Heb 5 100 J 0 Smith (3) 1 65-550 Marth (4) 1 (2) R Alechest 4 9 3 D Hentino 10 000224 SR JUST (R) R Alechest 4 9 3 D Hentino 10 000224 SR JUST (R) R Alechest 4 9 3 D Hentino 10 000224 SR JUST (R) R Alechest 4 9 3 D Hentino 10 000224 SR JUST (R) R D) P Aleches 5 0 5 15-003 LADY (RSSE) (R) JUST (R) R D) Select 6 9 4 4 February 5 15-003 LADY (RSSE) (RSA) (JUST (R) R D) R Alechest 7 9 2 D Reat 11 - 25-103 LERBARY SOCIETY (RSA) (D) Tolbre 4 2 S Senders 12 300-01 DESERT LYRK (15) (D) T Weston 4 9 1 R Hughes 2 30-01 DESERT LYRK (15) (D) T Weston 4 9 1 R Hughes 2 30-01 DESERT LYRK (15) (D) T Weston 3 9 0 Cred A Edday (7) 8 20422 AWAYAS ALICHT (19) (20) K Exitor 3 8 10 D Aleches 7 10 Marky 13 20422 AWAYAS ALICHT (19) (20) K Exitor 3 8 10 D Aleches 16 V 450000 SCISSOR RDGE (8) (8) J Bridge 5 8 0 P Doe (7) 14 - 03033 TALIANNO (8) (N) Mark 3 7 11 Marky 10 Dayer (S) 9 D (p) (7) 14 deciated —

BETTHAC: 6.1 Literary Society, 7-1 Awaye Alight, 8-1 Sir Story, Camin Egybia Out Line, 10-1 Lord Olivier, Descrit Lynn, Never Thirst Twice, Tallwind, 22-1

5.00 JULY HANDICAP (CLASS D) £5,100 added 2m Penalty Value £3,597

5.30 LEVY BOARD HANDICAP (CLASS D)

15 Q-030 DAVIDG REVENEE (11) 0 Crespet 3 8 3 G Circum 19
17 Q-8532 SEA DAVIZIG (5) (30) 1 Bridge 4 8 0 M Adems 4
18 20033 GND (13) Powled 3 7 10 M Variety 8
16 Q-0612 DAVIZINEA (6) (3) (3) 1 Bridge 3 7 10 Minute Daviet (5) 18

= 13 DECEMBE - 13-2 Shottering Sty, 7-1 December, 10-1 Weypolet, 12-1 Decides, Lyoton Lad, Q Factor, Sen Danzig, Zeifa Zont, Zugedi, 14-1 Decides, Rovenge, Winsome Wooster, 16-1 Blue Flyer, 16th, Xonophoe Of Canana,

BETUNE: 8-13 Hojsom, 5-1 Burnutin Boy, 8-1 Dragon Boy, 10-1 Feath sy Night, 12-1 Smart Beau, 20-1 Downclose Duchest

7.20 ST JOHN AMBULANCE HANDICAP (CLASS D) £5,000 added 3YO 1m 4f

3-134 MOTET (23) 6 Waggs 9 7 A Cherk 3 0 53363 MSAL (11) M Ppc 8 13 R Heghes 1 00100 B HHNO THE SCHEE (29) C Oper 8 10 W J O'Conner 3-3305 DEEP WATER (USA) (25) P Cob 8 9 C Rutter 4

— 4 deciared — BETIMG: 11-8 ks/d, 3-1 Deep Water, 7-2 Sehini The Scenes, 4-1 Mutet

7.50 NIGHTFALL STAKES (CLASS C) £7,000 added 2YO 5f

1A3 RUZEN (34) (D) 8 Paling 8 10 _____ D Harrison 3
12 DESERT LADY (20) (ED) (EF) R Charles 8 8 ____ 7 Speaks 2
544184 DAYS OF GRACE (7) (p) M Messels 8 5 _____ F Norton 1

8.20 NETTON CLAIMING HANDICAP (CLASS F) £3,300 added 6f

360006 ROBELLION 65 OD D Arbertyce 6 8 10 ..... S Whitworth 11

— 16 deciented — BETTING: 4-1 instituteous, 8-1 Sporten Buy, 7-1 Multin Martin, 15-2 Distinctive Dreams, 10-1 Petraco, Robellico, 12-1 Remircki, 16-1 Astron. Cheritan Imp. 16-1 Lumorea, 20-1 Bellar's Legacy, Mellors, 28-1 others

8.50 ODSTOCK MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS D) £4,900 added 1m 6f

1 2-4,500 accord Lin 67

2 00 Alcoans (5) Lacy Hamis 4 8 7 According to 100 according to 10

- 3 declared -ITHNS: 5-4 Desert Lady, 11-8 Muzes, 7-2 Days Of Grace

MUSSE BURGL 2.40 Always Lucky 3.10 Suga Hawk 3.40 Vintage Taittinger 4.10 Goretski 4.40 Hudeen 5.10 Bowcliffe

GOING: Good to Firm. STALLS: Straight course – far side; round course – inside. DRAW ADVANTAGE: Low for 50; High from 71 to 1104L. Right-hand oval course with tight turns. The straight 5f course

■ Right-hand oval course with tight lattits. The straight of course is one of the fastest in the country.

■ Course is 8m E of Edinburgh on Al. Bus link from Edinburgh station 5m, ADMISSRON: (2ab 512; Tattersafts 55 (OAPs and unamployed 53). Accompanied under-10s free. CAR PARES free. SLINERED FIRST TIME: Fall Moon, Wee Caristy (4.40); Don't. TES IN LAST SEVEN DAYS: Governiti (4.10) won at Cat-

serick on Wednesday; Palliam (4.10) won at Hamilton on Friday, LONG-DESTANCE EURNERS; Slove Magic (2.40) & Hardeen (4.40) sent 407 miles by W G M Turner from Corton Denham, Somerget, Obserous Boy (3.10) sent 406 miles by 8 Dow from Epsom, Sorrey. 2.40 ROBIN COOK & UNISON CLAIMING STAKES (CLASS D) £5,000 added 2YO 5f

e Tiscardo — - 7 secundo — BETTINO: 11-8 Abraya Lucky, 2-1 Oriel Gid, 5-1 Jamior Muffie, 15-2 Stew Magic, 12-1 Dispoi Emerald, 33-1 others

3.10 GJW LIMITED STAKES (CLASS F) £4,000 added 1m 4f

- J. Gozanes BETTHG: 11-4 Suga Hand, 4-1 Oberons Boy, 5-1 Escapeffson, 7-1 Classic Ballet, 3-1 Shorny, 10-1 Koner, 12-1 Ganeral Glow, Lord Advocate, 14-1 Forzair, 18-1 Get A Life, 20-1 Italities

3.40 NTERNATIONAL SOLIDARITY HANDICAP (CLASS F) £4,000 added 2m

4.10 STUC CENTENARY HANDICAP (CLASS E)

4.40 DAILY RECORD YES YES SELLING STAKES (CLASS F) £4,000 added 270 7f 30yds

5.10 HERALD HANDICAP (CLASS F) £4,000 added 1m

Adminum weight: 7st 10th. Tue hondicap weight: Celle's Rakhbay 7st 9th.

Hammum weight: 7st 10th. Tue hondicap weight: Celle's Rakhbay 7st 9th.

Hammum weight: 7st 10th. Tue hondicap weight: Celle's Rakhbay 7st 9th.

Hammum weight: 7st 10th. Tue hondicap weight: Celle's Rakhbay 7st 9th.

Hammum weight: 7st 10th. Tue hondicap weight: Celle's Rakhbay 7st 9th.

Hammum weight: 7st 10th.

Hammum weight: 1st 10

6.45 Panama House 7.10 May King Mayhem 7.40 Cim Born Born 8.10 Monte Cavo 8.40 Khayali 9.10 Fairy Prince

GOING: Good to Firm. STALLS: Inside. DRAW ADVANTAGE: None.

Left-hand, undulating course.

Left-hand, undulating course.

Course is 1m NW of town on A639. Pontefract (Mondrill) station (service from Leeds and Wakefield) 1m; Tanskell station (service from Wakefield) adjoins course. ADMISSGON: Club £12; Paddock £8; Silver Ring £35.50. CAR PARE: Third Blog. car with four occupants, 54, plus 52 at curostiles; renainder free.
BLINERERD FIRST TIME: Heavy The Frood (6.45); Energy Man (viscred), Frime Light (8.10); Eing Chestout (9.10).
WINNERS IN LAST SEVEN DAYS: River Tern (9.10) won at Warwick on Saimrisy.

LONG-DISTANCE EUNNERS: Ocean Park (7.10) sent 240 miles by Lady Herries from Augmering Park, W Sussex; Fabrilous Moodo (7.10) sent 238 miles by M Saunders from Haydon, Somenset.

6.45 MAIDEN AUCTION STAKES (CLASS D) £4,550 2YO 6F 6 HEIRY THE PROUD (92) J Berry 8 10..... 4 BALLA D'ARRE ($7) R Boss 8 7 ...... K Darley 10 8 EM J Honson B 7... A Culture 13 EASTERN PURPLE R Falley 8 7. GOOD CATCH P R Webber 8 5...

3 LEGEND OF LOVE (10) J Giber 8 5...

27 PURMAN HOUSE (23) T Ensemby 8 5...

BUZZ THE AGRETY M BESTARD 8 3...

5 DANCENS RIO (12) P HESIATO 8 3...

DETEROIT CITY J BODY 8 3...

DETEROIT CIT PRESS MEAD (49) 8 McI

LADY YAVANNIA (35) K McAukrie 82 . STARLINER (11) M Britain 80 ..... 30 STABILINE - Lyach 2

- Lyach 3

- Lyach 4

- Lyach 4

- Lyach 4

- Lyach 4

- Lyach 6

- Lyach 6

- Lyach 7

- Lyach 7

- Lyach 8

- Lyach 8

- Lyach 8

- Lyach 8

- Lyach 9

- Lyach 8

- Lyach 9

ELSINORE (23) Mas J Ramsolm 82. GOLDEN FORSURE O Loder 82.....

7.10 YORKSHIRE-TYNE TEES H'CAP (CLASS E) £4,100 1m 4f

| CLASS E | 2-A_LDO INT 4F | Process | 10.000 | Med Notes | 10.1200 | Med Notes | 10.120

BETTHY: 5-1 Road Roses, 5-1 him, King Mayham, 7-1 Posting Strangers, 5-1 Str. Chartes, Chartes, Chartes, Fishing, 9-1 Mercary, Magis Messary, 10-1 Ocean Park, Admirals Secret, 12-1 his Specialty, Our Main, 16st, 14-1 Augustan, 18-1 Patedous Nitoto, 20-1 others

	_
_
	40	ANTONIA	DEUTERS	HANDIC	AP THE
1	.40	ANTONIA (CLASS I	D) £7,000	added 5	1
	-30000		SENT (7) TO			alev
	161456	FIRST MAITE	(Z/) (D) SRB	Owner 4 9 13	5 Wobet	r 13
	400201		DO CON
	050212		W (18) (CD) J.
	441064	SHARP PEAR
	5-4133	SUPERBIT (2)
	000155		(4) (CO) M W
	002524	MANOLO (FR	(4) (CD) J Be	ry 48 12	C Lowther	719
	340150	CAPTAIN CAR
3		JUST DISSIDE
i	030305	MED'S BONN
Ž	003203		49 (CD) N Byon
ì	662036	CAMIONNELL	(S) 7 Easterb	4710	L Charmo	ck 1
ļ	300030	TUTU SDOYSI	X (13) (D) E in	csa 87 10	_Kim Tlable	7 11

BETTHR: 9-2 Clin Bom Bom, 11-2 Burders Boy, 13-2 Superhit Store, 15-2 Ruyal Dome, Manolo, 8-1 Neds Bonasca, Sherp P Contain Garat, First Helio, 14-1 Conjument, 18-1 others

_		d sac mails not continued that sales
8	3.10	COUNTRYWIDE FREIGHT HCAP (CLASS E) £4,500 added 1m
1	35-550	PRIME LIGHT (16) 0 Wage 4 10 0 & Million (5) 3 B
2	0-0000	NO CLICHES (30) (D) 0 Nichols 4910 Alox Greenes 11
ī	086000	AMTONIAS MELCOY (18) S Bowing 499 S Webster 4
	-00003	TIMOLERS POLLY (39) (D) R Whitsher 5 8 2Dom: Nickeows 2
Š	6006	MR MONTABLE (28) T Donnely 6 9 1
8	110053	POWER GAME (1.4) (D) J Berry 4 8 13 K Dorbry 1 8
7	002102	TRYTAIR TOMES (4) (D) / Berry 4 8 11
ì		ENERGY MAN (46) M Dods 48 7
i	205113	MONTE CAYO (7) (II) M Bottom 8 8 8
Ю	-05154	JAVA RED (1/4) (D) (BF) J FitsGerald 58 4
u	D03200	PLEASURE THICK (III) (CD) E Inche 680Iller Tinkler 6
1	26-050	SHE'S SHERLY CREAT (13) JJ O'Near 4 7 11 D Which 8
IJ	601433	PRIME PARTNER (14) (D) T Ensterby 4 7 10_1. Charmock 10
		19 declared

8.40 ST JOHN MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS D) £5,000 SYO 1m 2f

BETTHO: 5-4 Monitor, 3-1 Khayell, 13-2 Reca Reyale, 6-1 Alabetar, 14-1 Stormy Staff, 10-1 Young in Sport, Go Hence, 25-1 others 9.10 EUROLEASE LIMITED STAKES (CLASS F) £4,000 added 6f

-10 declared -BETTHE: 11.4 Pairy Prince, 3-1 Don Pape, 9-2 Parer Term, 5-1 U-Ho-Har 7-1 Shades Of Love, 8-1 Farentil My Love, 10-1 Showard, 10-1 others

4.20 OLDHAM SELLING HURDLE (G) 3.20 GRANT THORNTON MADEN HUR-DLE (E) £3,000 2m 00 ARBORNE BLUE (8) J Jenkins 8 11 5 . A Maguin 003-25 FRESKY THINE (27) M Hammond 8 11 5 . R Cardin 1 11403 REACH FOR GLORY (4) (CD) WG M Turner 8 12 5. 2 2523-2 FURRETTO (43) M Hammord 7 11.5 __R Genday 3 06U-22 CHARLYC (27) W Currengam 7 1012 L McSade (7) 2729-2 FURSETTO (43) M Hammord 7 11.5 ____ is very 08U-22 CHARLING (27) W Curringham 7 10.12 ___ is very 0735-7 MEL (41) R Buckler 7 10 12 ____ __ B Powel 0729- HERRIETTA BOO BOO (61) O Burchel 7 10 7 ____ b J Burchel BETTRE: 6-4 Roderick Hadeon, 3-1 beste<sup>1</sup>s Pet, 7-2 Belle Rack, 4-1 Printy Thyse, 18-1 Aktorne Blue SOPHIE LOCKETT (PS) K Hogg 4 10 4 _M Foster - 6 declared -BETTHOS: 8-4 Furietto, 11-4 Reach For Glory, 5-1 Mai, 13-2

4.50 EDINGLEY HANDICAP HURDLE (F)

1 21-032 HULENS BAY (5) (D) 8 Unically 18 12 0 .A P McCop 2 427544 NEW STATESMAN (20) (D) P Richard 8 10 8.5 Feb. 3 35-230 REACRACK (2) (D) J Briteri 10 10 6.......................... 07544

bilinium: 20st. The uniques Surja Set Sit, Poliphike Sur Sit, BETTENG: 10-11 Bullium Buy, 4-4, How Stateswith, 9-2 Statemak, 11-2 Script, 10-1 Poliphikus

NEWMARKET

6.30 Phylidia 7,00 Corradini 7,30 Bahamlan Beauty

Right-hand course with 1 m straigh

HYPERION 8.00 Manazii (nb) 8.30 Alharir 9.00 THE FUGATIVE (nap) GOING: Good STALLS: Sunds rade DRAW ADVANTAGE: None.

Engin-base course with 1 m straight.

Course is SW of town on a 1700. Bus link from Cambridge and Newmarket stations.

ADMISSION: Club $15 (16 to 25-year-olds $10); Grandstand & Paddock $10 (10 to 25-year-olds $6); Farmy Enclosure $3, CAR PAREL Members $1; comminder free.

LEADING TRANSES WITH EUNNERS: H Co-cl.—6) winners from 276 transcriptions gives a success ratio of 25.3% and a profit to a $1 level stake of $25.74, 8 Hannon — 43 winners, 533 rumers, 8,19%, -5,249.76; L Canada -- 34 winners, 270 rumers 12.6%, -4,109.84; J Dunlop -- 31 winners, 301 rumers, 10.3%, -5,123.06. LEADING JOCKETS: Pat. Eddery — 112 winners, 551 rides, 20.0%, -547.72; L Dettori — 83 winners, 538 rides, 15.4%, -5.163.30; W 8 Swinburn — 41 winners, 311 rides, 14.1%, +82.17; J Reid — 39 winners, 375 rides, 10.4%, -553.62.

BLINKERED FIRST TIME: Betriato (7. 'U); Rand Of Light (visured) (9.00).
WINNERS IN LAST SEVEN DAYS; None. LONG-DISTANCE EUNNERS: Major Change (8.00) has been sent 192 miles by Mis-

i	Ges	bell-	r from Whiteombe, Dorset.
	6	.30	SPORTING INDEX SPREAD BETTING CLAIMING STAKE (CLASS D) £5,000 added 3YO 1m Penalty Value £3,81
	1	140042	DON SEERSTAN (LE) (RE) (Nearmeter) W Hastas 9 6
١	2	0-0	PRINCE DE LONG (S) IJ C Wissort O Cospono 9 8
ı	ź	0.2400	CHEVAL ROC (%) (Robert Whewarth) R Historian 8 12
ı	4	5-100	COLD STEEL (82) (A 4 Pennsyl W Javes 8 8
Į	5	002034	NY BELOVED (21) (Peter Hammont) R Hannon 8.5
Ì	8	000055	GRESATRE (28) (E R Ketteracker) C Dayer 8 4 to Humann (7)
ı	7		MOON SONG (43) DAS 0 6 Brazen A Janes 8 3
Į	8		PORCER PRINCESS (13) (BF) (M 8 Having M Sci 8 3 R Mallon (5)
l	وا	6263-6	Pitricia (39) (Mr. P.) Malers P. Malers P. Malers 7 13 Quien 1
	10		MRSS BARCELONA (S) (M. J. Polstace) M Polstace 7 11 Lowe
1

ved, 8-1 Cold Stuel, 10-1 Mone Song, Prince i Barcelone, Greentre, 25-1 Windsom

K the recent trend is to be continued this claimer will be fought out by MY BELOVED and In the recent trend is to be confused the cashfer will be fought out by MY BELDYED and Dons Sebasties. Their transers are back among the winners and it could be My Beloved who collects getting the weight. She hasted the soft ground here lest time, but her form in claimers is abouted and she started the season in a hot handicap at Warwick. Royston Firence is booked for Don Sebastian, who has the blinkers removed after taking to best impais at Epsom last time, He tooked decent earlier in the season and is bound to go close with the yerd going so well. Phylidia is before in hare compared to a handicap and she probably needed her first run of the season at Warwick. Selevation: MY BELOVED.

7.00 KINGS GAP STAKES (CLASS C) £7,500 added SKY R HER 3 .K Fallon

Committed was one of the rare horses to best Celeric lest seeson and he ran up to smiter ability against Celeric when fount to Persan Punch in the Henry 6 Stakes at Sandown, Third in lest season's Chester Cup and Ebor, Corradins would ideally want more of a stamins sest, but he does meet MABHAAN on 15th better terms for the five-longin beoring at Nottingham in April, if Corradini sents a strong pace then Nabhaan probably wants a sedate one to utilise his turn of toot, he's in too form after good efforts with big worgms against the vestly improved Zaralaska at Royal Ascot and at Haydock and, while he doesn't have the gett of his stablemate Celeric, Nabhaan still seems the right type for a race of the porture. A trunk in through the firms books thrus on an invessment fact. Dat Salason has this nature. A thumb through the form books turns up an interesting fact-Pat Eddery has never won on Capitals Normillas. John Dunlop's traveller has been beaten in races tha season he has won in the past, but he is another who has a decent turn of foot on his day and this naturn to 12 furiongs is bound to sust Nim. Pentant is asked a stem ques-tion after his malden win from Royal Crown at Beth, but still looks far better than the no-hoper Chalbrol. Selection: NABHAAN

7.30 HORSE RACING ABROAD MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS SKY) 4 BACCHUS (14) (BF) (M Hawkes) A Stewart 390 ..

BETTING: 3-1 Rutumien Bounty, 4-1 Listed Account, 5-1 Hoble Story, 6-1 Polloh Romanico, Bac-chez, 7-1 Bebinds, 8-1 Mary Comissillis, 10-1 Yahara, 33-1 Russ Yador 1996: Navgast 3 8 11 Done O'Neil (3) 11-4 (R Hornor) drawn (4) 6 ran

1996: Navigaré 3 8 11 Dane O'Neil (3) 1.1-4 (R Harmon) drawn (4) 6 and FORM GUIDE:

Some disappointing filles here-and Dock Henry Bastriato has been gelded and runs in blinkers. Last yeer's writter was dropped in trip after handleap runs so there is still hope for Listed Account. Bashamilian Beauty could easily be the one after the switch to Dovid Loder from Collins. She flopped when odds on at Basimote over nine fundings, but her previous close third over seven at Tipperary is decent enough on paper-the winner there Lif's Boy going on to win the Guineas Timat and then third to Desert King in The Tetraches that Course But the account interesting on the other trips. ch at the Curragn. But the one who is preferred is a cost in the shape of BACCHUS, who comes from the family of Henry Cectr's smart sort Gwydion. The son of Prince Sabo had done some good work on the gallops and is sure to come on for his debut fourth to Always On My Mind at Werwick where he was slowly every when backed down to favourtesm. Butrinto started in the Wood Ditton and ran on the opposite side of the course to easy winner Blue Gobin at Lingfield. Polick Romance has been particularly disapporting in view of the juversile promise, but Noble Story still has time on her side to confirm her two-year-old promise (fourth to Joza at Windsor). Many Comwallis, from a dam who won over this trip, and Tahasa, by Caarlaon but of an Irish Guineas third, would not be sur

8.00 SPORTING INDEX HANDICAP (CLASS C) £10,000 SKY added 1m 2f Penalty Value £7,830

D12650 MAUDR CHANGE (6) (D) (Ivo in One Parenesting & I, 6500
2-2151 SKY COMMANDER (21) (CD) (Ivo in One Parenesting) Cay Kelleray 5 10 0 ... R Floresch (3) 2
2-2151 SKY COMMANDER (21) (CD) (Indeatourn in Makhourn) in Storie 3 9 0 ... L Dettori 8
1-2110 ALBANA (USA) (25) (R) (Parenested Stories) W flore 6 8 12 ... R Martin (5) 10
61225 ROUFONTAINE (23) (D) (Prenceted Stories) W flore 6 8 12 ... In Roberts 6
600006 EDAN HERRITG (9) (D) (In Compliance) G Dow 5 8 11 ... S Sendors 9
431 MELTARY (USA) (20) (R) (Roberts desponsation) in Cost 3 8 10 ... K Fallon 3
130056 BOLD ORIENTAL (6) (D) (N Total Alex John Melgrich IN California 3 8 8. Park Editory 4 1142- HERR TRIGGER (482) (CD) (A c Edwards Dr J Stangli 6 8 7 ... J Tube 5 6
15003 MANNAZ, (5) (Harright in Melestrum) R Armstrong 3 8 8 ... R 1881 1
0-00050 MELTARANERA (28) (B) In Findro W Musson 4 11 ... J Quiter 7 12 ... J Quiter 7 11 ... J Quiter 7 12 ... J Quiter 7 1

SETTINE: 5-2 MILITARY, 4-1 Rold Oriental, 5-1 Sky Camanonder, 8-1 Minutell, 8-1 Albeha, 10-1 Ma-jor Change, 12-1 Routostales, Edon Heights, 14-1 Matteinra, 20-1 Herr Trigger 1996: Mowng Arrow 5-9 11 J Reid 10-1 (Mass 9 Holls drawn (S) 11 ran

Henry Cool's Memorise won the big ren-fluttorg handicap here last week and his Militan has a leading chance after a game matter win at Doncaster. But SKY COMMANDE cuid improve further now that he's away from resting ground – on which type of surface te beat Combetto here test time with Bold Oriental (Sib better) not getting the best of tens in fifth. Bold Oriental and Manbadi both ran well behind Memorise iwas days ago and are sure to be being right there agen tonight. The older horses looked strothed, essections, Najor Change, Lumbered with 10st. Selections SKY COMMANDES

8.30 SOMERSHAM MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS D) £5,000 SKY added 2YO fiffies 7f Penalty Value £3,818 ALHARIR (USA) (Handen Al Malaoum) J Dunlop 8 11 .... DONTHIS () W RODD J HES 8 11. CLOROUSIA (PR) (Robert H Smith) L Cumara 8.1: LITTLE MISS; NEFF (M 8 MC R Guest 8.11..... MATICIA (20) (Yeriya Nasabi N Callaghan 8.11.... MOONSTONE (Mrs O 8 Brazier) A Janes 8.11... et H Smithi I. Comper R 11 _ I Dettod 9 MOURSTURE (AND 0 8 BROWN A JAmes 8 11

MYSKEROUS ECOLORY (N) 1 Gredey C Brown 8 11

MYSKEROUS CHANGEY PM, Stud M Bet 8 11

PARTICULAR FRIEND (Molecum N Maleburn) E Dunion 8 11

SUPACALIFRAGUISTIK (46) (N) 1 Gredey C Brown 8 12

11 um) E Dunton 8.11

16-1 Speradic, Mystactous Ecology, 20-1 others & Ouston 2 9 11 T Quan 7-1 (P Cole) drawn (11) 11 ran

Nuture has the experience, but the colt who piqued her here three weeks ago, The Glow-Worm, was only third of four to Tracking at York lest Safunday, John Dunlop won with Has-mi here ten days ago and ALHARRY might be another winner for his talented sire, who was responsible for winning newcomer Miss Zefonic at Windoor less Mondoy. Gloreath be inteely bred by Bernig but of Golden See, who won over this trip at two in France. Partic-tion Friend is a Cadadux Generou, half-elser to Mari, who was strait certy on in her co-

9.00 HARSTON HANDICAP (CLASS D) £5,500 added fillies in mares of Penalty Value £4,199

- 8 consumer - - 9. Consumer -

The best race of the night with so many in-form performers doing battle. My choice-and she should be at decent odds-te ALMASSI. The stable communes to share with Faith Mone she should be at decemb odds-46 ALIMASE. The stanke complities to strine with 1 aton home, who was also empered for this race, withining another depart sizes at Sandown on Wisdensday after the Yermouth breeze. The form book says Almasi didn't score as easily at Salsbury on her latest stant by a heed from Caudillo), but she could be seen as the winner a long way but and Chick Wall's Improver is good water for the 7to rise. The grade at Salsbury was low, but she had earlier showed her worth in a O-80 at Doncaster where she lace to beat Bolin Dorothy. Very much on the upgrade, Almasi is fancied to quick on up again with the uphal finish sure to suit her. The main by it the ordin Many Magistalane after her sociength malden win at Beverley a fortught a brother Roger The Butter used to win hot sprints at York, and Mary Magdal brother rough rise studer used to win not spirits at rout, and wary Magazarete is red in straining by regard by Michael Bell, hence her appearance in a decent maken at New-bury last backend. Always On My Milind won her maden in fine style, also. The oppos-tion wash't much, but she's gradually coming good and rain would help her cause. The Pagather is still on a high and plenty contributed to her defeat at Warwick last Saturday-a bed draw, a slow start and a wetter weight. To be beaten only four lengths into fifth by bed draw, a slow start and a weiter weight. To be besten only four lengths into fifth by New Tern was a decent run in the accumitances, though this company may prove too hot for her. Sheletsyhely has been in a visor-induffing when she best hory Dewn off a Sib lower mark hare three outings ago-but the headges in dispensed with tonight. Galline likes this uphill finish and is well handicapped, though she cid little from the best draw at Sandown last time. Watch The Fire showed her Pohletfract win from Farna Again was no fluide when she followed up at Carlsie, besting the hat trick seaker Court Express. She comes from off the page so should be well suited by this pace and uphill finish. Mod Or Light was a shock winner of this last year when she beat Almass. The weights are the same tonight, but Almesi has improved since and for Light is brief in a visor effect was soon showings this term.

* THE INDEPENDENT RACING SERVICES ILIVE COMMENTARIES PRINTS 981 982 ALKSEL SURCH 963 SOUTHWELL 984 NEWMARKET (E) 475 965_ SALISBURY (E) 986 0891 261 970 Calls cost Silp per minute. TLS. pit. Scratters it ECAL 47

SOLETHNESS HYPERION 2.20 Rayman 2.50 Eez-Away 3.20 Rod-erick Hudson 3.50 Global Dancer 4.20

Reach For Glory 4.50 Bullens Boy Lieft-hand sharp, one course.

Course is 5m W of Newark, Rollesson Junet, joins course. ADMISSION: Cash $12; Tainers. (OAP Diamond Club $4. CAR PAPE. GODNG: Good (Good to Firm in places). joins course. ADMINSTON.
(OAP Diamond Club $4. CAR PARK: Free.
RLINKERED FIRST TIME: None.

TERS IN LAST SEVEN DAYS: Bayerd (2.20) was here on Saturday. LONG-DISTANCE EUNNERS: Mel (4.20) has been sent 208 miles by R Buckler from Melphath, Dotact.

2.20 FISHERTON NOVICE HANDICAP CHASE (E) £4,075 2m 4f 110 yds

6 413-PO STEP IN LINE (21) 6 McCoux 5 10 4 J J Morphy 7 4323 F TELMAR SYSTEMS (41) J Office 8 10 2 J J Johnson — October 6 — O erd, 13-2 Step in Line, 7-1 Reserves, 16-1 Tel-

2.50 APPLEYARD & TREW HANDI-CAP CHASE (D) £6,500 2m 121U-4 NOBLELY (41) (CD) R Arrer 10 11 10 _R Ferrand PESSAM BEZAMENY (25) (D) Nes D Harre 8 11 5 A P MECAN 0006-3 JUSZEY REFRANK (15) (D) L Velle 7 11 5 A Magnier 6313-1 (MANN-HO-NE) (S) (D) M Harrow 68 11 4 R Gertin 333/5 BRANKIN EBERRY (B) (D) (RF) Mes 6 Serah 8 10 11 __G FRyen (6) 412-13 SIGNA RUN (6) (CD) J O'Shes 8 10 10

— 9 decembed —
Minimum weight: 10st. The handlesp weights: Northern Optimist set 13th, Chen The Man 9st 13th, Septeland Lasy 9st 11th, BETTIME: 9-4 Know-No-No, 9-2 Browleisberry, 6-1 Sigma Rus, 13-2 Simpleford Lady, 7-1 Enz-Away, 8-1 Junzy Refrain, Noblob, 16-1 Chun The Ham, 20-1 Northern Optimist

3.50 MANCHESTER NOVICE HANDI-CAP HURDLE (E) £3,350 2m 11 FUNCH (27) (50) G McDout 4 120 L Statistica (7) 530/10 Lishbreic Quest (6) McS 5 mm 8 11 G . It Guest P432 GLOSAL DANCER (15) L Wels 6 11 3 . A Magain 4057-5 STRING DOWNEY (43) (7) J O'Sea 6 20 0

55526- ALPHA LEXIVER (RIT) L General 6 10 O.R. Julianos 003P-4 ADMINIS BRINT (IN) 6 Gazete 8 10 O.R. Julianos PO-6 ALPHENON PRINTE (RT) 1 Hams 4 10 O.A.S Smith

Minimum: 10st. The verigins: Spring Looded Set 13th, Alpha Leather Set 13th, Admind Burry Set 10th, Alphano Prince Set 7th, BETTME: 23-6 Pention, 13th-4 Global December, 4-6 Lighting Quest, 8-1 Admind Breny, Alpha Leather, 12-1 Spring Leaded, 33-1

Woods began to show why even some of the greatest players are in awe of his potential

grimace, gestures of annoyance.
At odds with bimself, unhappy with us game the tournament favourite was scrambling. The grass cuttings Woods used to test the his game the tournament favourite was used to test the wind told him little other than it was day for accuracy rather than distance. Keep the damn thing straight you could imagine him thinking. Woods almost announced his presence in the championship by driving the 364-yard first. Instead the ball kicked left into a greenside bunker. "No justice," someone in the gallery said. "Away to go," a small boy called out but there was no answering smile. Things were already genting difficult.

Being the focus attention is some-thing Woods has to live with. "I'd love his golf game," an old tournament pro recently said, "but not the pressures

Woods' playing partners provided an interesting comparison. Steve Elking-

Welcome Tiger Woods, welcome to ton with his elegant swing. Bernhard Troon's trickery, its bounces, its Langer's studied efficiency. Not men temptacons. One under at the turn but to be intimidated by power. Men with eight fairways missed and a capricious smart games and a great deal of exbreeze getting up. Here and there a perience they chose not to gamble, usugrimace, gestures of annoyance.

perience they chose not to gamble, usugrimace, gestures of annoyance. what Woods was up to.

the fourth Woods gave the gallery what they wanted unleashing a buge drive that skipped on to 422 yards, easily a hundred past Elkington and Langer. Just 135 to the pin, missed eagle putt; birdie. So where now? How about hare ground alongside a stand overlooking the par three fifth which is where Woods landed. A fluffy pitch to save par and a hirdie at the par-five sixth. Fairways did not appear to be on Woods' agenda but he was two under and his escapes were becoming reminiscent of a young Severiano Ballesteros.

Another misread green, another birdic chance gone and then acquaintance with the Postage Stamp's seductive contours. Moving along serenely Langer also was at two under and another hirdie came bis way. Woods, however, got it wrong, losing a seven iron enough in the breeze to find a greenside bunker. A decent enough shot from the sand but well past the pin to be left with a tricky downhill putt. Misreading it again be took two and was back to one under.

This didn't please Woods at all. He swung his putter angrily, tossed it at the bag and offended the game's etiquette by leaving the green before Elkington holed out for a double-bogey. A par for Woods at the ninth and they were out in the far country, held up on the next tee by the group in front. The trick was working out just where in the rough Woods would put his next tee shot. To the right this time followed by a splendid second. Two putts, another save.

While they waited on the 11th tee a train approached slowly. Identifying Woods, the engineer gave a blast on the whistle. Woods smiled but the moment did not appear to relax him greatly. A blind shot over dunes ended up in a gorse bush. "Come on, Tiger," ns young supporters shouted as they watched him stride towards another problem. One simply begat another. Taking a penalty out of a gorse bush he was too ambitious, moving the ball only 80 yards forward and still not on the fairway. "I got frustrated out there," he said afterwards, "but I never lost my patience and I'm proud of that."

For a while frustration looked like being the source of a crisis. Woods' fourth shot at the 11th went to the back of the green and a rare triple-bogey seven went on his card.

From there Woods began to show

why even some of the greatest players golf has ever known are in awe of his potential. Not just his remarkable power, but his shot-making and the courage to hold a round together.

Making more than one birdie on the back nine at Troon is a difficult enough task at the best times but when a breeze gets up on the Forth of Clyde some smart play is called for. Few managed it yesterday, but Woods was up to the task. A hirdic at 17 another at the last.

Accepting that he'd benefited eventually from a souch of good fortune, he said, "I'd like the wind to remain a hig factor. If it's real tough like this it makes it easier to make up ground. You can shoot 66 and make up position. But if things are calm you can shoot 66 and remain in the same position. I got a good bounce at the last and I'm still in the ball game. I was disappointed not to birdie one of the first three holes and I hardly read a green right. But I'm still in the ball game."

If Woods starts hitting fairways today it could be altogether a different ball game.

Troon Talk

BY JAMES CUSICK

Lasses are a class apart

board, which claims the Royal & Ancient game is "still dominated by class". So is Mr Woods playing over more élitist turf this week? Not so, insists the seweek: Not instant the service of the Ayr-shire club. While the terms class and clitist may certain-ly apply in the hallowed American bastions of Augusta and Cypress Point. Ian Valentine, the current captain of Royal Troon, told the Diary that the 800 members of Royal Troon were a mixed bunch, united by only one aim: "To play golf. We don't even accept appli-cations from non-playing

Yes, there are doctors and lawyers and the odd Sir and professor, but Mr Valentine and other prominent menbers insisted that elitist would be an inappropriate term here. Only the feminist movement (in extremis) may question such clams of egalitarionism. All members of Troon are male, the ladies having their own separate clubbouse a quarter of a mile away, the Portland course, and their own constitution, Royal Troon owns the ladies club, Valentine accepted: "There is nothing in our constitution to prevent a woman becoming a member, but so far in our history no lady has been proposed. But then I should point out there is nothing in the ladies' constitution that prevents a male from applying there. Plenty of room for Nike's

The whole Robertson family drove down from their home in Paisley yesterday morning. Dean is staying with his parents this week.

"Makes it a cheap week for him," said his brother, an-

Reserve Robertson made to sweat ese competitor went bome carly and Robertson was in.

Michael Bonallack, the secretary of the Royal and Ancient, had quictly told him the position of first reserve usually always made it. But even by Wednesday morning Dean Robertson, the 27-year-old Scots professional, was still sweating. There had been hints that Ian Baker-Finch would save himself from embarrassment and withdraw but he did not. And yesterday confirmed be should have the shot 92). Instead a Japanother golfer wbose uwn bat-tles at Troon are playing in the annual match against Glasgow University and the experience will doubtless bave been passed on. Robertson shot a respectable 76 playing along-side Mark Calcavecchia aud Andrew Coltant, "He played well," said his brother, "and he'll shoot par to-morrow," Nothing like a blt of family support.

Ahead of fashion: One spectator provides some light relief for the players on the first day of the Open

Licked by the Postage Stamp

When Willie Park, the first winner of the Open Championship, traps and put a bank of nature's rubbish on the left and suddenly ner of the Open Championship, took a look at Royal Troon's eighth hole he was aghast. It has "a pitching surface." he said. "skimmed down to the size of a postage stamp". The name stuck, although it is unlikely whether Mark Cakaveochia delivered his abuse yesterday in such charming and eloquent

The last time the American played this course he would have gladly taken it hack to Florida with him. He may still want the bulk of it as a reminder of the three closing 68s that landed him the Open in 1989. but there are 126 yards of it that he would gladly leave behind. Yes, just 126 yards. Tiger Woods could flick the ball that distance with the back of his put-ter on the practice ground, but if ever a hole proved that it is not size that matters it is the Postage Stamp. Shrink the even the Tiger, who bogeyed the bole yesterday, is rubbing his

In the Twenties Walter Hagen took a double-bogey five there in the final round and lost an Open Championship by a stroke. Three decades later a German by the name of Herman Tissies got in a tizzy so profound he entered the record books. More of him later. Yesterday Calcavecchia arrived at the Postage Stamp in about as good a mood as be could get. The fifth, sixth and seventh had yielded birdies, the sun was taking the edge off the chilling wind and the young boys on the scoreboard behind the eighth tee were busy shooting up ladders adding him to the leaderboard.

Golf has a habit of introducing glowering clouds to an other bunker. otherwise perfect morning, bowever, and although Cal-

Guy Hodgson watches as the notorious eighth hole claims another set of victims with his tee-shot, maybe a degree to the left, it was enough to send his ball arcing into a bunker so maliciously shaped the Marquis de Sade would be storming straight into the greens committee if one of his victims strayed there. Calcavecchia would be waiting behind him ready to bang the table, because his ball landed so close to the bunker's rim that the next shot was almost impossible. Or at least it was while standing up. Down to his knees the erstwhile champion sank, seemingly in prayer, be-fore miraculously chipping the ball out over the Penny Black of a putting surface. On and on it ran before sinking into an-

Fine. You take your punishment and go. Calcavecchia cavecchia was only a fraction out chipped to four feet and was disgruntled golfer, his upward momentum cbecked so thor-oughly he finished with a threeover-par 74.

contemplating a scruffy but acceptable bogey four until he pulled his putt horribly. Exit one ing more smoke.

If he was cursing, the sound was drowned: the eighth at Troon is not only the shortest hole in Open golf but possibly the noisiest. Pilots taking off from Prestwick Airport seem to use the flag as a bearing, and as if that is not enough of a distraction the hole also has the Glasgow-Ayr railway line run-ning alongside it. That had some of us wondering what the pre-electric age was like - until bogey in two holes and hissed off into the distance having banked up enough steam to peel the Postage Stamp and an alhum of first-day issues off their envelopes. The Flying Scotsman could not bave gone by billow-

Colin Montgomerie kindly ar-rived to provide an illustration. Big Monty made a right hash of his tee-shot, took his second managed to avoid yesterday.

Which made you also speculate what sort of mood Herman the German was in after being licked by the Postage Stamp in 1950. Tissies found a bunker on the left with his teeshot and was still making his acquaintances with the sand four shots later when his fifth finally got him out of the snare and into another sand trap on the other side of the green. Again he needed more than one shot to escape, found a hillock as anger added over-emphasis to his efforts and two strokes later was back in the bunker where he began. His final tally at the hole was 15, a score that even Ian Baker-Finch

Give or take the odd five the Postage Stamp let the field off lightly yesterday, although 49 players managed to drop sbots there. No one could manage a hole in one, which added lustre to Gene Sarazen's achievement 24 years ago.

The great American failed to qualify when the Open was beld at Troon in 1923 and there were many who believed he should have stood aside for a younger man when be accepted an invitation to return to the course at the age of 71 in 1973.

He rammed those thoughts where they came from by bol-ing the eighth in one in the first round. "For many years the Postage Stamp had haunted me," Sarazen said afterwards, "1 feared it... I felt there could be no better way to close the books on my tournament play." The Postage Stamp closed no

TODAY'S TEE-OFF TIMES

Second round

0715 W Bladon, A Great, P Hauganu 1974 0725 °S Young, G On, DA Russel Szinkowski (US) 0735 D Han (US), I Gamdo (Sp), M Bladley 1225 P Lonard (Aus), °C Watson, J Mag-0745 C Stronge (US), J Lomes, E Es (SA)
0756 I Edium (Swe), J Funk (US), Y mon (Aus)
(Kencko Uspan)

Keneko (Japan)
DB05 D Carke, S Jones (US), F Nobio (NZ)
Li245 P.U. Johansson (Swe), S Mon
DB15 M James, M Whebe (US), C Pawn (US)
DB25 C Montgomene, T Werson (US), M
DB25 C Montgomene, T Werson (US), M 0825 C Rocca (tt), L.Jarman (US), M. Long

(NZ)
0836 3 Favon (US), J Pamevik (Swe), R 1205 R Russell, F Couples (US), E Romero (Aug)
0846 1 Wroots (US), 3 Langer (Gen), S Elk.
www.Uspani 0865 P Herdington, M Brooks (US), C Par.
1325 I Woosnam, R Allenby (Aus), P Stew-

Sunger (Fig)

USALS P Mitchell, C Stadler (US), D-Frost (SA)

USALS T Bjorn (Den), I Cook (US), S Ames (Imn)

USALS P Azinger (US), "D Oleston (Swe), G Player (SA)

LSSS J-M Olecobet (Sp), T kile XUS), N Ozz-

Appleby (Aus) Myase (Japan)
1025 R Damron (US). P Baker, R Dews 1435 Baker-Finch (Aus), R Claydon, 2 Tway (Aus) (US) 1025 P O'Melley (Aus), "B Howard, J Payne 1A45 R McFarlane, B Andrade (US), M Roc

1035 P (TMate) (Aust, "5 Highest, J Fother 1035 G Brand III, G Day (US), C Mason 1045 P Fulke (Swel, J Kelly, "J Miller 1055 M Bradley, P Termanen (US), S Dunten (US) ... 1505 M Miller, G Murphy, M Marriet (Sing) ... 1505 M Miller, G Murphy, M Marriet (Sing) ... 1515 A Sendywerl, G Clark, 2 McGovern ... 1125 R Jacquelin (Fr), G Dodd (Aus), J ... 1525 R Remesy (Fr), V Phillips, U Tapping ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Swell, T Gogele (Ger), C ... 1525 R Remson (Ger), C ... 1525 R R Remson (Ger), C ... 1525 R R Remson (Ger), 1335 * S Webster, A Cabrera (Arg. II How et l. 1345 / Kernohan (US), G Ghei (444), P Hin-1145 T Purtzer (US), R Borel, W Westner

Strenkamer (Neth)

1255 P Blockmar (US), J Spence, S Mc-1205 N Sato (Japan), P McGerley, & Water 1215 R Goosen (SA), S Torrance, F

art (US) 0905 M-A Meron (Sp), T Lehmen (US), V 1335 M (J'Meera (US), S Maruyama Singri 173)

1 Super Lavy (Spi, T Kite NJS), N Casto935 N Faldo, T Tolles (US), N Proc (2lm) (US) N Casto (US), N tomer (PC)

4995 P Hedblom (Swe), J Halas (US), Kim
1005 A Caffar (Gen), S Michalson (US), S

Appleby (Aus)

409 (Aus)

429 (Aus)

429 (Aus)

429 (Aus)

429 (Aus)

421 I ove (US), S Ballesteros (Sp), H

Masse (Lanam)

5 The times America's Tom

Watson has won the Open

THE NUMBERS GAME

7 The bogeys that Colin Montgomerie had in his round of 76 40 The age Nick Faldo Is today 11 The years since anyone had a worst round in the . Open than lan Baker-

2 The bunkers Tiger Woods visited on the par-four first 9 The shots that England's Championship

Mark Roe needed to get down at the par 4 Railway

TV TIMES

Live coverage: 10.30am-12.20pm and 1pm-7.30 BBC2 Highlights: 9pm-9.40 BBC2

WEATHER FORECAST

Cloudy with sunny periods. Winds will strengthen from the north west, 10-15mph during afternoon. Max temp 190.

Taunted by Troon: two who suffered in the first round

As a member of Royal Troon, Colin Montgomerie is well aware of the old tradition of setting off early in the morning. playing the front nine. crossing over to the adjoining Prestwick course to complete 18 holes, lunching in the renowned clubhouse there, and then setring out on the return journey. Monty might have contemplated doing much the same yesterday, except replacing the last by continuing a routemarch along the coast.

A first-round 76. five over par. once more sees the Scot battling to avoid the cut in the Open. something he has failed to do on four of the last five occasions. This is nothing new to me," Europe's four-times No 1 conceded. "Whether I do well tomorrow or not, I'll come back from this. It won't hurr."

Montgomerie needs to reverse his opening rounds of 65-76 from the US Open. "I'm capable of doing that," be said. "I just played particularly badly today. In his wife's home town and Andy Farrell on the faltering progress of the local favourite

Scottish favourite, Tom Watson. Immediately, Montgomerie pushed his tee shot, was over the green with bis second and had to hole a five-footer for par. Montgomerie's form coming into the tournament was unquestionable, capped by a 62 in the Irish Open. But more than his local knowledge, it was his noted straight driving that should have made bim a contender on a course with fairways of single carriageway width. But Monty hit only three out of 14 fairways. At times be took irons off the tee for positional purposes and still missed the short grass. Meanwhile, Watson smote his driver to such an effect that the difference between their tee shots was over 100 yards. at the club where his father retires as secretary in a month's time. Monty was welcomed on to the first tee with another

Montgomerie: Only found three out of 14 fairwaya

two par-fives on the front nine. Monty went on a shocking run of seven bogeys in nine boles. Mostly these were caused by being on the right rough off the tee, his familiar push under pressure, but occasionally it was because he was in the left

At the end, he stomped off to the clubhouse, but whereas in the past that would have been the last anyone would bave At the sixth, a jumbo making seen of him, he lived up to a promise to explain himself affrom Prestwick airport took ter a short cooling-off period. one look at Monty and made a He even managed to force a dogleg left, heading out over the smile when someone said he Atlantic. The captain was not a must have been pleased to par had judge. Having birdied the the last three holes.

lan Baker-Finch probably felt be bad made the right decision when he played Royal Troon's first yesterday in a regulation four. Seventeen horrible Open Championship boles later be was proved sadly wrong. The 1991 champion, a player once so good he has set Open records of 20 shots for nine holes at St Andrews and Royal Birkdale, was buried under the wreckage of a 21-over-par first round so embarrassing he withdrew from the tournament immediately after completing it. The hardest thing is being an Open champion and wanting to do well," he said. "I don't want to give in but I don't think I should play tomorrow. The decision has been made."

Royal Troon was not at its most benign yesterday but Baker-Finch gave the impression he could not have found a fairway on an airless day with the aid of an electronic guidance system. He went out in 44, eight over par, which proved to be his halevon period because the back fore he was persuaded by oldnine was even worse.

quit after shooting a nightmare 92 from thick gorse on the 12th, the Fox. His inclination must bave been to cry when that was followed by a double at the 15th and a treble at the par-five 16th, where he drove out of bounds.

Guy Hodgson on the Australian who

He dragged himself off the course with a score of 92 - the worst Open round since Guy McQuitty returned a 95 at Turnberry 11 years ago - his brave de-cision to ignore his wretched form rendered utterly foolhardy. "You don't have an option but to complete the round," he said. "You can' say to yourself 'Oh well, I'll walk in now' or something like that. You have to keep on going and just try your hardest. That's all I could do." Last year he played in the Open at Royal Lytham then went into semi-retirement beer memories and older friends Three successive bogeys bad to give it a go this week. the 36-year-old Australian reduced to laughing at himself afhe said. "I played nicely in the much trouble, I thought I should go and do it."

Which was fine until the sixth where he found a bunker, fluffed a chip and got one of six double bogeys. When you start bogeying or worse," he said, "you be-gin to wonder what everyone is thinking. You start noticing the cameramen, all that stuff. It's hard to focus on the job when you're shooting horrendous like that.

"It gradually got worse. Earlier in the round I wasn't really playing that poorly, maybe a bad chip, one or two bad drives. Everything just went wrong. That can bappen.

Unfortunately for Baker-Finch ter he had to hack the ball out practice rounds. It wasn't too it is happening far too often.

Moorcroft picks up athletics' poisoned chalice

Moorcroft: Pedigree as e performer allied to proven

Athletics Correspondent

If anyone can do something about the fragmented nature of British athletics then Dave Moorcroft, who was named yesterday as British athletics' new chief executive, is the man.

The 44-year-old former 5,000 metres world record holder, who fills the gap vacated by Peter Radford three months ago, has a deserved reputation as one of the nicest men in the sport. It was typical of him that after the official announcement was made in London, he planned to get back home to Coventry for his regular Thursday night track session with his 16-year-old son, Paul.

that be would bring an under-lying toughness to the £70,000 to be respected. I hope the de-tator for the BBC-a job he will for a number of years, he esa year job which be will take up termination I have shown in on 1 October. He will need it. other areas of my life will be there Radford's period of office was while I do this job. I will take deblighted by losses of half a milcisions and stand by them." non pounds, a costly pay dispute with leading athletes including Linford Christie and Cohn Jackformed British Athletic Federson, and an on-going lawsuit by Diane Modahl who is seeking a further £500,000 in damages

following her successful appeal against a doping ban. There are extremely tough people who hide behind quiet exteriors and lots of people who give the impression of being tough hut who have little substance," Moorcroft said. "I have a conviction of what I think is the right way to do things. I do not believe I need to ultimately impossible to carry the sport with him as he attempted to professionalise the top level. Radford encountered increasing animosity from the rank and file of the sport, who felt he was concentrating on the elite at their expense. His efforts took place

His predecessor, who took over at the bead of the newly ation three years ago, found it sorship and television contracts. Communication was not Radford's forte. Moorcroft, who has spent the last three years de-amid falling revenue from sponnow give up - is patently a better performer in that area.

Asked to comment on the latest example of poor communication within the sport - the failure of selectors to inform the team captain, Roger Black, that he was not in the individual 400m team for the World Championships before he beard it from the media - Moorcroft said: "I think the decision the selectors came to was appropriate within their terms of reference. If there was a problem it was the process beyond that."

Moorcroft also has a pedigree as a performer on the track, but what made him a favourite for a job that attracted 120 appli-cants was his proven ability as the world cross-country silver tablished a thriving community sports project - Centre AT7 in his home town of Coventry. More recently, he was appointed chairman of the company set up by the BAF to administer National Lottery funding.

Moorcroft's role will differ from that of Radford's in that he will not be chairman of the management board. He will have the power to hire and fire, but will not be a selector. "He is a man who has the ability to bring this sport of ours logether," the BAF chairman, Ken Rickhuss, said.

Moorcroft has regularly attended BAF endurance conferences in recent years, and has medallist Paula Radcliffe, on a regular basis. Malcolm Arnold. the BAF chief coach, welcomed the appointment. "He's a good man, his heart and soul are in the sport," Arnold said.

"Dave is very popular, but that is not what is going to determine his success in the job. All parts of the sport have to down their axes and put their shoulder to the wheel Popularity is one thing. Giving him a chance and assisting him is the real thing. Ulumately it is the people in the sport who will determine his success."

Radford's first major task in 1994 was to execute the dismissal of Andy Norman from his role as promotions officer of the BAF for inappropriate conduct following the charge that he had contributed to the sui-

Temple by making allegations of sexual barassment against him.

Moorcroft, a close friend of Temple, was a strong crine of Norman, calling for his dismissal. Norman, who has maintained a successful career as agent for leading athletes such as Jonuthan Edwards and Kelly Holmes, was recently given a role advising Channel 4 on their coverage. Moorcroft's appointment is likely to limit his growing influence in British athletics.

My thoughts on Andy are well documented and go back a number of years," Moorcroft said. It is right that Andy no longer works for the federation. But it is equally right that people who choose to use his tal-

Ravanelli's pay packet sinks deal

Footbaff

toman remains

Service of the mandellist.

THE BLAN

der eine proce falle before and the second section

Service of the party hours

the second to the second to the

and the state of t er er file einzwich fest

MAS ON Speeders

730er

the same of the same and is ser revealed

STATE OF THE PARTY OF THE PARTY

the sale of the sale

 $P_{n}(u_{n}) = q_{n}(u_{n}^{-1/2})$

ALAN NIXON AND NICK DUXBURY

Fabrizio Ravanelli's wage demands have a habit of taking the breath away and the Middlesbrough striker yesterday left Everton choking on a request for £50,000 a week.

The pay hike from the £42,000 be is paid at Boro led Howard Kendall, the Everton manager, to pull down the shut-ters on a £7.5m transfer that would have saved Ravanelli from Nationwide League foothalf, but ended up exasperating

Everton supporters and officials. On the day the club's coffers were enriched by a £2m, threeyear sponsorship deal with a mobile phone company, negotiations with the Italian international failed to come up with the right numbers, with Evertoo reported to be offering only £25,000 a week: ...

I contacted Ravanelli's representative because we wanted to sort something out either way," Kendall said. "We put our offer to him and they came back and said 'no'. The terms were not agreeable. It's disappointing because we've gone so far, but we've got other targets and we'll start pursuing them."

He will not, however, be pursuing the Danish right-back. Thomas Rytter, while the Israeli captain, Tal Banin, has preferred Brescia to Goodison.

Bolton Wanderers have looked to Spain for more forward power and have offered £3m for the 24-year-old French joined Borussia last summer. international striker Nicolas Ouedec of Espanyol ter Stuart Pearce's sudden decision to leave relegated Nottingham Forest after 12 38,000 crowd.

years. "Any manager would like to have Stuart Pearce playing for them and I'm no different," the Forest manager said. "But he wants to be involved with England in the World Cup next summer and feels he needs to be playing his chib football at the highest possible level."

The 35-year-old Pearce, who had three years remaining on a £12,000-per-week contract, has been given a free transfer. "Tve had 12 marvellous years which I wouldn't swap for anything but it's time for me to move on,"

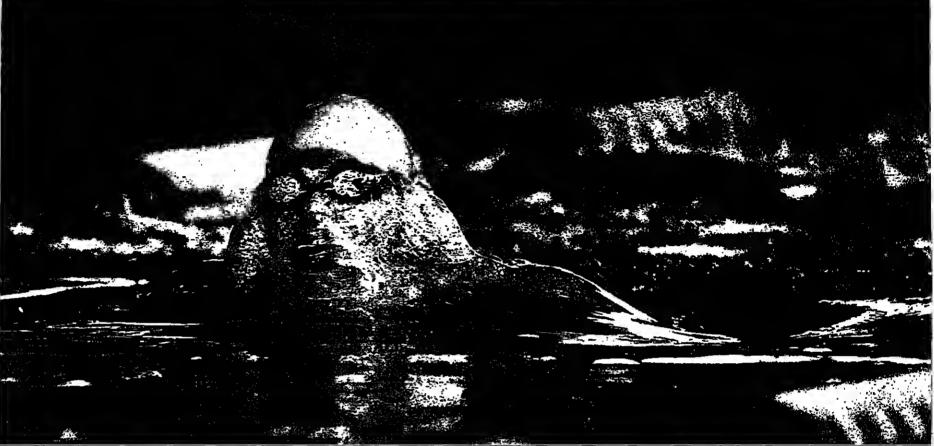

Pearce's England team-mate. Matthew Le Tissier, will miss the start of the season, after breaking an arm in a friendly match in Germany. The Southampton striker fell awkwardly during the 1-1 draw with SVP Ansbach. "It's a terrible blow for Matt and for us," a Saints spokesman said.

Another absentee come August will be the Sunderland striker Craig Russell, who bas had a hernia operation.

Sunderland will be a banned word around Alex Perguson should the First Division club sign the American striker Jovan Kirovski for £700,000 from Bornssia Dortmund.

The Mancbester Untied manager tried three times to get a work permit for Kirovski when he was at Old Trafford, where be was the reserves' top scorer two years running. Ferguson even made a trip to Loodon to seek political help, but Kirovski, tipped as a new Mark Hughes, was not allowed to stay and United opened their tour of the Far East with a 2-0 victory Dave Bassett's most pressing over a Thailand XI in Bangkok. A angled drive from Nicky Butt and a late own goal sealed United's success in front of a

Sarah Potton scythes through the water in heat two of the women's 400 metres individuel medley at the Amateur Swimming Association's National Championships at Crystal Palaca yestarday.

Karan Pickering, the former world short course champion, looked set to echieva the qualifying time for next month's European Championships in Seville after winning her heat. The 26-year-old from lpswich, forcad the paca over tha first 100 metres of her 200m freestyle haat in 5B.88sec and finished in 2min 02.38sec.

Andraw Clayton, the British short course record holder, is another searching for an individual swim in Spain. In yesterday morning's heat he cruised to a 1:53.65 victory in the 200m fraestyle heats but to clinch a placa in Saville he has to shave mora than three and a helf seconds off that time and finish ahead of Gavin Meadows, the fastest qualifler; and James Salter, a mamber of the 4x 200m freastyle raley that finished fifth at last summer's Olympic Games in Atlanta.

Stephen Parry, of Liverpool, caused the upset at last April's European Championship trials when ha beat the British record holder, James Hickman, in the 100 and 200m butterfly.

At Crystal Palaca Parry was tha quickar of tha two swimmars in the 100m raca. His tima of 55.16sec was 0.83 ahead.

In third place was Mike Watkins of Torfaen, in 55.92sec, which took 0.04sec off the Welsh racord he established two yaars ago.

Photograph: Robert Hallam

Agassi faces flak after falling to Flach

Andre Agassi's return after a 70day lay-off began inauspiciously when he lost 2-6, 6-4, 6-4 to the unseeded Doug Flach in the second round of the Legg Mason Classic in Washington DC on Wednesday.

Agassi, who bad taken some time off to heal a wrist injury and to marry the actress Brooke Shields, looked sharp in the first set with a crackling serve and effective passing shots, but he then eventually dropped the set when be double-faulted on break point in the ninth game. Agassi again took the early lead in the third set before Flach broke in the fifth and ninth games. "I wasn't expecting a whole lot after not having played in a couple of months," said Agas-si, whose ranking has fallen from No 3 to No 31 in the past 12 months.

"After a good start, I got a in a row at one stage and a bul-weakened. Agassi woo an ear-ly break in the second set but eventually dropped the set I didn't expect my arm to feel little tired. My legs went first After playing for just an bour eventually dropped the set I didn't expect my arm to feel "I was pretty surprised myself" Becker from starting his thirdas if it weighed 30 pounds. But all I can do at this point is take all I can do at this point is take been improving lately," said it one step at a time in getting Flach, who eliminated Agassi in back. Right now I'm baving > it's going to take some time." Agassi had a poor first-serve won matches in percentage of 46 per cent and was guilty of 15 double-faults, including two on game points. don champion, Boris Becker, Flach, who has a ranking of and the French Open cham-174, had 10 aces, including four pion, Gustavo Kuerten, were with those aces, but my serve has the first round at Wimbledon trouble beating Doug Flach, so last year. 'In fact, my whole game has picked up and I've won matches in my last three round match against the Spanish ninth seed, Albert Costa, while Kuerten had to retire in his match against the 10th seed, Felix Mantilla, in the first set because of continuing problems with a chest muscle.

> Another former Wimble-don champion, Boris Becker, early casualties at the Mer-

The Brazilian eighth seed held up his racket in surrender during the sixth game, when he was 4-1 down, giving Manuilla an easy passage mto the quar-

backhand during his secondround exit in Washington after a two-month lay-off

Stalled move puts Prost in mood to quit

Motor racing

Alain Prost, the former world champion, has threatened to give up his Formula One team hecause of bureaucratic interference and political pressure.
"All I care for is to win. If I'm prevented from winning, I will draw all the necessary consequences," the Frenchman, head of the Prost grand prix team, told the French financial daily. Les Echos, yesterday.

Prost said he was angered by the delayed transfer of his team's headquarters from Magny-Cours, site of the French Grand Prix for the past decade, to Versailles, near Paris.

The move set off a political controversy. The Magny-Cours area is dominated by the ruling Socialist party while Versailles is a traditional stronghold of the right, who support the French president, Jacques Chirac. Magny-Cours, a small vil-

RACING RESULTS

4.30: 1. SADDLERS HOPE (M HRs 10-1; 2. Righte in Light 4-1 ½ fav. 3. Your Most Welcouse 4-1 ½ fav. 12 mm. 4, ½. U Fan-share, Newtostled, Tota: £13.50; £5.30, £1.30, £1.70. DF. £37.50, CSF. £47.41. Tr-cest; £17.36. Tru: £76.90. Placepet: £35.00. Quadpot: £18.50. Place 6: £40.25. Place 5: £37.81.

LEICESTER

LEICESTER

2.15:1 GD FOR SALT (K Derich) 6-5 fev.
2.89y Normites 10-1:3. Minuter Star 66-1.
11 ran. 9, 7, 1M Stoute, Newmented. Total:
52.50: £1.10. £1.70. £1.9-20. DF: £7.70.
CSF: £14.74. Time: £233.20.
2.48: 1. DAYNABEE (New Trider) 5-1:2.
Neenan Businosis, 4-1:3. Corsaccas 14-1.
13 ran. £1.4 fev Sugistis, 1/s. 7, (M Trider) Method). Total: £5.40: £1.90. £2.10. £3.20.
DF: £24.40. CSF: £23.51. Time: £52.70.
3.16: 1. SRLVER LINNIG (Net) J Goldsmen)
9-1: 2. Lorins Gold 8-1:3. Welcome Heights 9-2: A Dummen Gold Time 9-1. £7
ran. 4-1 fev Delight Of Deam (Stn). STr-M.
7-1, 4. Jones, Eastbury). Total: £20.50: £3.40, £1.90. £2.50, £1.80. DF: £36.50. CSF:

lage near Nevers in central France, has been the bome of the Ligier team which Prost bought at the start of this season from the Benetton chief, nessman's decision [to leave Magny-Cours]. Looking back. you'll realise Ligier were not efficient enough. It had nothing to do with their very competent staff but it was due to their isolation.

Flavio Briatore. Prost said: "It was a busi-

£59.53. Tricust: £219.13, Tric: £82.30. NR:

ezzorenio. 3.45: 1. WHISKY MACK (R Hughes) 4-1

3.45: 1. WHISKY MACK (R Hughes) 4-1; 2. Who Noise 10-1: 3. The Groweller 10-1. 12 rais. 5-2 kw Inchelong (Sth). 254, 4. (R Hammon, East Eventeigh). Tota: £4.50; £120, £2.70; £2.80, DF. £14.90; CSF. £44.96. In-cest: £356.31. Trior. £94.40. After 8 stew-ards' inquey, placings uneithered. 4.15: 1. EAGLE CARYON (W Ryen) 3-1; 2. Two Socies 6-1; 3. Weight MRT 15-8 fav. 3 rais. 7, 4; (8 Hambary, Newmarks). Tota: £4.00; £1.90; £1.60, £1.20. DF. £13.60. CSF. £20.24. Trior. £12.00. NR: Rock The Bar-ney.

CSF: £20.24. This £12.00. Not Hista the ba-ney.

4.48: 1. LACHESIS () Farming 33-1; 2. Sing With The Band 15-2; 3. Double Matt 68-1; 4. Scoperficide 10-1; 20 ma. 6-1 jt. law Bootin Harry, Morenti. 2, nk. (D Shaw, Newerld. Tothe: £83.50; £15.50; £1.60, £15.50; £1.60, Newerld. Tothe: £83.50; £15.50; £1.60, £15.50; £1.60, Newerld. Tothe: £83.50; £13.965.80 car-ned toward to Newbury soday.

Placepot: £275.60, Qendpot: £86.00. Place 8: £236.48, Place 5: £128.31.

American football Riq Ayub, the Great Britain Lions' coach, blamed tack of fitness, poor preparation and a fear of the big occasion for his team's semi-final defeat in the European Championships. The Lions lost 24-6 to Finland, the holders, in Boltamo, Italy, and must now beat the host nation tomorow if they are to claim third place in the event.

Athletics Stetia Kostadinova, the world high jump record holder, is out of next month's Stefa Kostadinova, the world high jump record holder, is out of next month's World Champhonships in Athens, Sulgaria's Olympic champion has a badly bruised heat.

Webnesbury's LATE RESULTS: Next errors from the common from the common from the common from the common from 120.43: 2 R Griffin (US) 20.50: 3 S Ogariese (highest 20.50: 1,000cm; 1,1 Pooch (Next) 20.41: 2 R Griffin (US) 20.50: 3 S Ogariese (highest 20.50: 1,000cm; 1,1 Pooch (Next) 21.4.96: 3 W Young (highest 21.5.05) 12.1.96: 3 W Young (highest 31.3.05) 12.1.96: 3 P Bick (high 17.51.96; 2 T Myan (highest 1.4 Resum (Mon 17.51.96; 2 T Myan (highest 1.4 Resum (high 13.2.9; 400cm hardless 1.4 Resum (high 13.2.9; 400cm hardles

SPORTING DIGEST Baseball AMERICAN LEAGUE: Boston 4 Batumore 1; New York Yerkess 11 Chaceto White Sox 5; Cleveland 4 Milwaufere 3; Tesse B Toronto 0; Delfand 11 Karses Cet 3; Anahelm 5 Depot 3; Seedle 6 Min-nescos 7.

PASTORAL LEASURE Florins 5 Los Angeles 1; Philadelphia 6 Montreal C; Cinchrard 1 Philadelphia 3: Alarka 2 Colorado 1; Chicago Cubs 6 New York Mets 5; Houseon 8 Sen Prenosco 1; Sen Dego 4 St Louis 2.

Britzin and treiand bowed out of the man's team spee event at the World Championships in Cape Town in the second round yesterday. After beeting Ecuador 48-15 and Croette 45-38 respectively, they lost 45-24 to Hungary and 45-18 to Cuba.

Football

TRADUNE MATCH (NEEDON No. 667-21, 6 Contentry Club 6. n Keymesk England UnMotor racing

Demon Hill has been awarded the Seg-rave Trophy, presented annually since 1930 to the Briton judged to have pro-duced the most outstanding demon-stration of the possibilities of transport,

Mike Golding has secured continued backing from his Group 4 sponsor to enter both the 1998-9 Around Alone and 1990-2000 Vendée Globe singlehanded around-the-world races nended around-the-work races. Two firsts yesterday pulled Nick Rogers and Steve Irish up to fourth place in the gold fleet of the 470 European Championship as Nieuwpoort, Beiglam, behind Portugal's Roche and Barreto, France's Philipe and Canou and Brestavets and MassAenko of the Ulvaine.

STETTO NACOYA GRAND TOURNAMENT (Nagoya, Japan) 12th day (of 15): Goporo (4-5) bi Kuchmasan 16-69; Rido (7-5) bi Yarosbi (3-5); Tochnohae 8-49 bi Shistana (6-6); Rido (6-6) bi Kolony (7-5) bi Karosbi (6-6); Tochnohae (6-6); Tochnohae (6-6); Tochnohae (6-6) bi Kolony (7-5) bi Kolony (6-6); Tochnowae (6-7) bi Tochnohae (6-6); Tochnowae (6-7) bi Tochnohae (6-7) bi Kolonovae (6-7).

SWESSMERING

ASA NATIONAL CHARMONISM Feasis (Crystal Palaes) MRK 50th Present (Crystal Palaes) MRK 50th Present (Crystal Palaes) MRK 50th Present (Silved) 29.75 3 R Maden Recrotin Acusbers) 29.92. 100th butterfly: 1. S Party (Livernot) 55.10cc; 2.1 Hckman (Stocknot) Merch 55.75; 3 M Maden; (Torken) 55.92 (With second, 200th freestyle: 2.6 Meadous (Leods) June 51. Palae; 2.18 sites (Earthury) 153.18; 3 A (Layan (Stritul 2.18 sites (Earthury) 153.18; 3 A (Layan (Stritul 2.18 sites (Earthury) 153.18; 3 A (Layan (Stritul 2.18 sites (Earthury) 155.18; 3 (Leods) Maden (Earthur) 155.73, 1500th freestyle 5-rath 1 Million (Leods) 15rm 47.80cc; 2 G Smath

(Stockport Metro) 18:11.93; 2 P Palmer (Bath University) 18:14.16. ISTOSPANT MODID JECALES, A Province consultation of the Model Page 1 (2014).

WOMER'S 60th Invastationies: 1 A Bross (Gerl 33.45cer, 2 6 Brownsdon (Coverny 33.70; 3 S Rotch (Moucastler 33.77, 200th Invastigles 1 K Podering (Ipparell) 2005. 17: 3 J Behon (Bradford) 2:05.66. 200th betterfly: 1 M Pedder (Portamouth Northeee) 2/mirs 17, 73cer, 2 N Heizer (Gerl 2:20.94; 3 J Hebrel (Leck) 2/21.20. 400th mediagr 1 S Nestor, Portamouth Northeee) 4/mir 52.565cer, 2 J Swellow (Moternstate) 5:00.94; 3 N Hebrel (Berl 2:24.20.94; 2 J Nestor (Moternstate) 5:00.94; 3 N Hebrel (Berl 2:24.20.94; 2 J Posterrouth Northeee) 4/mir 24.24sec; 2 Portamouth Northeee 4/24.36; 3 Lects 4/28.73.

Carl Preen, the England No 3, has moved up two places in the latest men's world rankings yesterday. The 29-year old is now 36th and the highest-ranked English player Lisa Lomas is again the highest-ranked English player despite dropping one place to No 73.

Rein prevented play yesterday at the LIA women's tournament in Frinton.

LESS MASSON CLASSIC (Mechangeon) Men's einger, second yearset 9 Pach 1183 to 4 Agests (183 2-6 6-4 6-4; 7 Heas (Ber) to 18 Mershern (183 6-4 2-4 6-3; M Testoutt (Aus.) bt C Weedon's (183 6-3 0-3; V Spades (185) to 8 Shehon (185) 6-4 6-4; 0 Wheston (185) to 8 Shehon (185) 6-4 6-4; 0 Wheston (185) to 8 Shehon (185) 5-6 6-1; R Schutzler (Seri Kill Heiser (Ger 7-5 6-2; S Campbell (185) to 8 Heyord (185) 6-4 6-6-5; F Wibor (Neth) to 19 Scala (1) 7-6 6-3; K Cansen (Den) to 6 Pozz (to 6-2 6-4; P Roset (12 Rep) tir F Waler (Neth) 6-6-4; S Dapor (Aus.) to S Campbell (185) 6-3-6-6.

TODAY'S FIXTURES

Procticali

Procticali

Procticali

Procedury MATCHES: Bray Wanderers v Posetorough 17,45; Cobh Rambices v Darleg; fon (7,30); Galway Ltd v Fulham (7,30); Newcaste Town v Oxford Ltd (7,30); Pymouth v QPR (7,45); Shamrock Rovers v St. Johnstone 17,0); Si Potticis Alhietic v Celtic 17 45). TEX United v Oritonelle (7,0); Torport v Losester (7,15); Winsford Utid v Stoke (7,30); Wyoonbe v Aston Villa 17,45) (Yeard v Safndon (3,0); Marcdesfield v Manchester Cry (7,30); Southport v Preston (7,45).

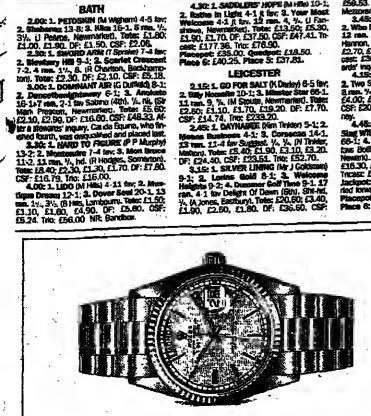

Ringby League
SUPER LEAGUE Visa World Club Champlonship Pool & Perinth v Warmigton (10.30)
Pool & Leads v Adelatide (7.30); Ottham v
North Queensland (7.30).

Speedway

Specific Stated
ELITE LEAGUE: Belle Vue v Peterborough: Kinglis Lynn v Coventry 17,451.
PREMIER LEAGUE: Arena Essex v Long Ealon (8.0); Enriburgh v Eveter: Glasgow v Newport: Oxford v Reading.

Other sports

GOLE: Open Championship (Royal Troon). ROWING: Briesh National Championships (Not TENNAS: Men's Challenger tournament (Mar) chester): Women's LTA Tournament (Findon)

It always goes round in sixty.

OFFICIAL TIMEKEEPER TO THE OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP.

tempt cight f

At ( his gar scrumi

than c

kicket "No ji said."

out bu Thing
Bei thing his gol recent

THE 126th OPEN: Outsiders Clarke and Furyk head the leaderboard as the favourites feel the full force of a windy links

High ball: All eyes are on Tiger Woods as he plays his second shot on the third hole at Royal Troon yesterday, hitting out of the long grass on his way to a one-over par 72

Woods warms up as rivals feel chill

ANDY FARRELL

reports from Royal Troon

For all the bot air of the practice days, it was a cool breeze that determined the ings yesterday. The leaderboard was meant to be filled with those at the top of the game's ladder.

instead the Open reverted to type and gave us Darren Clarke and Jim Furyk at four under. The favourites were scat-

\Vhe

took eight "a p! "skin

a po stuck

term Ti

Flor

want of tl land but I

Win

dista

ICT (

Post

gree

As i Col

awa ting play over wicl

hok clut

ting Mo

ed a tere

last alor

one to:

SON

យា រ ced

froi

car "I j

h t

at t

tiru

tered. But with two birdies in his last three holes, Tiger Woods managed to leave the 18th with a smile and a 72, nne over par. A gallery of 31,000 was here to see the 21-year-old phenomenon, which was only some 3,000 up oo the first day eight years ago. "A 72 is still in the ballne," he said. "The leaders are still in touch and if the weather stays like this, it is going to be hard to go low."

The defeoding champion, Tom Lehman, came home in 40 for a 74, the US Open winner Ernie Els had a 75 and local bero Colin Monteomerie a 76. "Jecz, this game can drive you insanc sometimes," Els said.

Only oine of the first 123 players broke the par of 71. At two under, Greg Norman had been happy to get to the clubhouse early oo and he was joined by the Americans Fred Couples and Justin Leonard. Bernhard Langer had a double-bogey at the last for a 72, while Nick Faldo, after a run of seven consecutive pars, birdied the last in get in at level par.

terms with dealing with the wind on links courses. He hit a 435-yard drive at the fourth, and found greenside bunkers at the 364-yard first - where Tommy Tolles did manage to scatter those putting ahead, and holed the 402-yard seventh, but be also had to hit a four-iron from 165 yards at the last. The distractions of a few camera clicks was nothing compared with Trooo's back nine, likened by Tom Watson to coming up against Woods' hero, the hasketball star Michael Jordan. At the 11th, where Jack Nicklaus had an 11 in his first Open in 1962, Woods took a seven. He drove into the gorse on the right and had to take a penalty drop before only managing to move

EVELLEND MYCHENE

Woods is still coming to common with dealing with the find on links courses. He hit a 35-yard drive at the fourth, and found greenside bunkers at the strong was oot bad today and strong was on the strong it was even better with a seven

> For most of the day, those as that of Eamonn Darcy and only had figures up for the first few boles. Clarke, a 28-year-old Ulsterman who plays his golf at Royal Portrush and will be making his Ryder Cup debut in September, and the American Furyk, 27, managed to bang on despite both bogeying the last in their 67s.

oo the card."

The highlight of Clarke's round was holing a 70-foot putt from the edge of the 11th green. To make a three felt like an exgle," he said of the hole which was a par-five io previous

Clarke was glued to the Open on television as a youngster, but Furyk is still learning the links game. He is a quick learner, since he shot an 85 on his first outward half playing downwind venture last year at Camoustie.

it in the wind. "I have been successful in Hawaii and in Texas when it has been windy, but I'm not one of those people who would want it to really blow tomorrow," be

He has a swing as unorthodox said. While the US Masters sometimes indulges in the socaky tac-tics of shaving the greens and forgetting to water them nn a Wednesday evening noce everyone has completed their practice rouods, the natural elements, in the form of a switch in the direction of the wind, produced a completely different golf course yesterday morning. This was the true Troop, the and the back nine playing longer than War and Peace. I hit more long irons on those oo the US PGA Tour," said Watson, who went out in three under and came back in three over. "This course is like playing the Chicago Bulls: you know at the end of the game they're going to be coming back at you. The back nine is like Michael puts on quite a show." Nicklaus, oow 57, achieved the rare feat of playing the inward half in the level-par score nf35. "There are about six par-. fives on the back nine." the Bear said. "At least, there were six

Jordan when he gets mad and holes I could not reach in two shots." The six supposed parfours range in length from 431 yards to 465 yards, but the problems really stem from the fact that a two-iroo oeeds to be ing up birdies on the opening seg-ment, no one beat Fred Couples' score of 31, five under, to the turn. The three birdies that did not come at the par-fives were achieved by using his sand wedge for his approach shots. "I'm thrilled with the round," said the American who was sixth here in 1989. "But I could easily shoot anything tomorrow." It has been a difficult year for Couples, despite he fact that he started it in fine form. At the US Masters, he recorded his seventh top-10 finish in eight tournaments, but has only played four times in three months since. He split up with his loogterm fiancée and has been visiting his 74-year-old father. Tom, as he fights leukaemia. "He weot through chemotherapy, but it did not work," Couples said. "But his blood count is getting better and so he cau start to get a little stronger.".

His preparation for the US Opco included a month off in which he went to Switzerland and popped in nn the French Open - the tennis, that is, "I doo't like playing when I can't see where the ball is going. There was nothing really to play for. I have a lot of confidence, though, and as long as you don't lose that, all you need is a few days playing in feel good about my game."

Open reports, page 30

THE INDEPENDENT CROSSWORD

ACROSS Staff ranel distributed goods held for sale (10) Peak expert going round top of mouotain? (4) 10 Blatani cui, say, held back schedule (7) 11 Flights emerge from this suffering vibrations (7) 12 Prostitutes coming round car in part of London (9) 13 Spike's carrying oew weapon (5) 14 Plant is placed next to border (5)

15 Determined various dates wheo one doesn't eat (9) 17 Let us open out on a geoerous scale (9)

20 Bubbly girl going to Goverament department (5)
21 Stagger religious institu-tion, replacing Chief with Liberal (5) into teams (9) 25 Blood group's in provide explanation for pardon (7) 26 Mug's about to go down. shot from a short distance 27 Cut short walk for mechanised transport (4) 28 "Daringly artful" possibly encompasses description of 14 Van Gogh? (10)

DOWN Gather fool has taken in graduate (5)

Bird seen from some rocky feature (9) Watering-place - a refuge from the sand of course (10.4)

They may be best at spin-

Resident of Ur led each astray (7)
The Scottish play provides ooe character with name

Primitive laying siege to home in all seriousness (9) Played a trick, and had to look sharp to avoid being run over! (6.1,4.3) Willing to follow drink? That could make you a beggar (9) 16 Various news areas informed state (9) 18 Disgusting site of live TV coverage? (7)

19 Second nne hurried up in vehicle (7) 22 God and Saint taking nn a religious follower (5)

Indian soldier certainly holding work up (5)

EARLY FIRST-ROUND SCORES FROM THE OPEN 77 Hen de Media (FR) Bellessense (SN) B finant (NS) V Stegs (ER) T (Our (U.S) B Andrews (U.S) M Braudey (U.S) (68 and hi maess DARM Salar Chipers EBLISA J LOTTES 67 73 J PUNKTUST L Westware L Westwood J Nickteus (US) P Street (LS) 69 6 Norman Clus. F Couples (US) 1 Leonard (US) 76 - 70 A Cabress Dvg 74 D Hart (US Calcavacchia (US E Romero (Arg) S Manujerne (Jap) O Lore II (US) A Mission (US) J. Parmedit (Seria) M Long (NZ) C Steller (US 71 Orsid Cap 79 (Woosness Watson (US) D Tatathy Strange (US) 75 S Webster
D Howes
R Bones
W Wester (SN)
R House (LS)
R Goussin (SA)
J M Olerabel (So) 72 T Purper (US) P Lorent (Aus) S Stricker (US)

The up:			u.			01	y C	~ 1.		e y	~	-		00	1110	ГЦ		IIC	VΙ	JCI
Hole	٦,	2	3	-	5	8	1	8	3	10	11	112	13.	24	15	26	37	38	Out,	4	1
P		4	4	8.	â	8	4	3	£	4	4	4.		3		5	4	*	36	35	7
Yeards .	36 4	391	379	557	210	S/J	102	126	423	438	4	435	85	169	桓	512	223	12	3929	eri,	1
J Furyk (US)	3	4	4	4	3	5	3	2	4	4	3	4	5	2	4	5	3	5	32	35	67
D Clarke (N Ire)	4	3	4	4	3	4	3	3	4	5	3	4	4	3	4	4	3	5	32	35	67
G Norman (Aus)	77	4	3	4	4	4	3	3	3	4	4	4	5	3	4	5	3	5	32	37	6%
N Faldo (Eng)	4	5	4	4	3	4	4	3	5	5	4	4	4	3	4	5	3	3	35	35	7:
T Woods (US)	4	4	4	4	3	۵	4	4	4	4	7	4	5	3	4	4	3	3	35	37	7:
T Lehman (US)	4.	4	4	4	2	5	4	3	4	5	4	5	4	3	5	5	4	5	34	40	74
C Montgometie (Sco)	4.	4	4	4	3	4	5	4	5	5	4	5	5	3	5	5	3	4	37	38	70
I Baker-Finch (Aus)	4	8	5	8	3.	7	4	5	4	5	5	5	8	3	6	8	5	5	44	48	g.

Stricker no longer feeling stricken

A double-bogey, bogey finish turned a potential 69 into a nneover-par 72 for the American Steve Stricker at the Open yesterday, but did little in lessen his conviction that he is no the way back.

After two biles and seven top 10 finishes in 1996, Stricker has been far less successful so far last week's Quad City Classic at Coal Valley, Illinois, convinced him be was now returning to

"My problem was that I was trying to get used to some new equipment," Stricker said after his opening round. "I then had the last two holes kind of hurts a loss of confidence but now it's a little."

in 1997. But a seventh place at coming around. I'm driving a lot better and my confidence is up

> "After that it was disappoioting to finish that way, considering I played pretty good throughout the rest of the round. To finish three over on

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL

Follow the Open golf live on our hole-by-hole leaderboard

www.sporting-life.com total sport on the net Sporting Life

OPublished by Newspaper Publishing FLC, 1 Canada Square, Canary Whatf, London E14 5DL, and printed at Mercor Colour Print, Se Albans Road, Watterd and Hollanwood Avenue, Oldham, Back goyet available from Historic Newspapers, 01958 840370. Respected it a newspaper with the Post Office